JURORS ACQUIT SINCLAIR; SAY EVIDENCE 'LOOKED BAD' BUT LACKED DIRECT PROOF

VERDICT IN 2 HOURS; CASE 4 YEARS IN PREPARATION

Member, Learning Facts Denied Them at Trial, Says Verdict "Makes Us Look Like Sapheads."

"VERY, VERY HAPPY," SAYS OIL MAGNATE

Still Under Jail Sentences for Contempt and Jury Shadowing in Teapot Dome Case.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Harry F. Sinclair was set free today by a Washington jury which refused to convict him without direct, first-hand evidence that he bribed and conspired with former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall for a lease on Teapot Dome Naval Oil Reserve in 1922. On less positive evidence, the Supreme Court of the United States had previously branded him as a corrupt conspirator and canceled the lease on the grounds of illegality and fraud.

As one of the most celebrated criminal cases in American history came to an end, the burly oil magnate moved from the courtroom smiling through his tears, to be met outside the door by his hysterical wife, who flung herself up on him with wild sobs. It was a dramatic spectacle.

Nevertheless, Sinclair remains under two jail sentences—one of six months, for jury shadowing, and one of three months, for contempt of the Senate. Thus, by a curious turn, he stands acquitted of the main criminal charge against him, but is under conviction for two minor offenses which grew out of the main act. The two convictions are on appeal.

Evidence Considered Two Hours.

The evidence laboriously gathered in more than four years of reckless investigation by Senate committees, special prosecutors and the Government secret service, was considered in less than two hours by a jury of mechanics, clerks and small business men, and pronounced insufficient.

"It is simply impossible to convince a Washington jury that it is wrong to defraud the Government," gloomily declared Special Prosecutor Owen J. Roberts, who shares with Senator Walsh of Montana, the principal credit for unearthing the facts.

The jurors, it was learned by Post-Dispatch reporters who interviewed them later, based their verdict on the fact that the Government had presented only circumstantial evidence of a corrupt agreement between Sinclair and Fall, and had failed to show by first-hand testimony that the $293,000 in Liberty bonds and cash which Sinclair gave Fall constituted a bribe. It "looked bad," they agreed, but the proof was inconclusive to their minds.

In the light of their several explanations, it appeared that only a downright confession of guilt by one of the conspirators would have induced them to return a verdict of guilty.

Lack of Illumination.

However, it was quite plain that the outcome had been deeply affected by the legal rules of evidence, under which the jury was either prevented from learning, or was prohibited from considering, many facts and circumstances which might have illuminated the case. This forbidden evidence might have supplied many of the gaps which left them in doubt.

The jurors had never heard of the Supreme Court's decision in the civil case, or of Sinclair's other convictions. They were not allowed to weigh Sinclair's failure to take the witness stand. They were wholly ignorant of the fact that Fall's son-in-law, M. T. Everhart,

MIGHT AS WELL HAVE LAW AGAINST TRYING MAN WITH $100,000,000 SAYS NORRIS

WASHINGTON, April 21.—THE following comments on the Sinclair acquittal were made by interested persons and officials:

Senator Norris (Republican) of Nebraska: "Sinclair has too much money to be convicted. We might as well pass a law providing that no man with $100,000,000 con be tried for a crime."

Senator Walsh of Montana: "I'm not crying over spilled milk. At least we recovered the reserves."

Senator Hiram Johnson: "And so, after all these years, the arch-conspirator goes free and stands convicted only of contempt of the Senate. What a crime that is, by comparison."

Senator Borah: "I must have misread the Supreme Court decision. I'll look over it again."

WIVES OF BREMEN PILOTS MEET ABOARD GERMAN SHIP

Bouquets and Rings Given Mrs. Koehl and Mrs. Fitzmaurice at Reception on Dresden.

QUEENSTOWN, April 21.—Two women, both of whom suffered agonies of suspense while the Bremen flew westward, met here tonight on the bridge of the liner Dresden. They are Mrs. James Fitzmaurice and Mrs. Hermann Koehl. Pat, the Major's little daughter, was there also.

Speaking in uncertain English, Frau Koehl, a trim figure in gray sports skirt and blue beret, asked Mrs. Fitzmaurice: "If your husband flying back?"

"I wish I knew. Is yours?" Mrs. Fitzmaurice returned, smiling.

Mrs. Fitzmaurice was greeted with cheers as she came aboard. The steamer's lounge was turned into a reception hall. Bouquets were presented to the two women on behalf of the German American Board of Trade of New York, the Irish Free State army and the North German Lloyd Line. Each also received a gold ring engraved with the arms of Cork harbor and presented by the Lord Mayor on behalf of the citizens of this city.

MISTOOK LONDON FOG FOR FIRE

American Film Actress Aroused Hotel on Returning to Room.

LONDON, April 21.—It may have been a real misunderstanding of London weather, or only a publicity stunt, but when Miss Fern Andra, American film actress, returned to her London hotel room one afternoon, she threw open the door, stood in the doorway, blinked, choked and rubbed her eyes. Then she ran into the hallway, rang the bell, and shouted: "Fire!"

In a moment the hotel was in turmoil. Bellboys, clerks and managers rushed to Miss Andra's floor. "Where?" they cried. "In there." Miss Andra pointed. Billows of something resembling smoke were pouring from the actress' room. The hotel staff rushed in. They rushed out. "That," they said, "is only the fog."

MILLIONAIRE KILLED IN PLANE

THE PAS, Man., April 21.—Carl Sherritt, millionaire prospector, who recently flew to his home here from Miami after only a week's flying instruction, stalled his engine at low altitude today and was killed when his plane crashed. A passenger was injured.

Sheritt, who was staker of the Sheritt-Gordon mine in Northern Manitoba, took off with G. Johnson as passenger to inspect some property in the northern mining field. The plane left the ground smoothly, but when between 200 and 300 feet altitude had been gained the engine stalled and the ship fell out of control.

WIFE OF JUSTICE OF PEACE HELD FOR BANK HOLDUP

Mrs. Bernice Hitchings Arrested in Belleville After Auto Robbers Used Is Traced.

Mrs. Bernice Hitchings, wife of Justice of the Peace T. J. Hitchings of Belleville, and Newman A. Cox, an insurance salesman, of 747½ North Fifteenth street, East St. Louis, have been arrested and another man and woman are being sought, under a John Doe warrant, for the $3200 robbery of the Farmers & Merchants' Bank at Vernon, Ill., April 4.

Cox is 25 years old and Mrs. Hitchings is about 20. She and the Justice, who is middle aged, were married last June. She is held in the Marion County jail at Salem, Ill., and Cox at East St. Louis police headquarters.

Witnesses of the robbery, during which the cashier and his young woman assistant were imprisoned in the vault, saw two men, who were the robbers, run from the bank and get in the rumble seat of a Buick coupe, in which two attractive young women had been waiting. During the escape of the robbers the machine required repairs at Trenton, Ill., and the men hid while the women took it to a garage.

Car Traced by Description.

According to Detective-Sergeant Floyd Combs and Detective James Coyne of East St. Louis, the car was traced by description to Belleville, where it was found to belong to Justice Hitchings. Mrs. Hutchings was arrested at her home Wednesday night and was identified by witnesses at Salem, according to the officers, as one of the women in the car.

On information supplied by Mrs. Hitchings the detectives declared Cox was arrested at his home, where $650.57 in currency and gold and silver coins was found in a dresser, and two revolvers also were found. L. E. Green, the bank cashier, identified some of the coins as old ones he was keeping, the police announced. According to the officers, Cox admitted participation in the robbery, saying the other man planned it and induced him to join because he needed the money, and adding that he had supplied himself and his companion with the two revolvers.

Cox was quoted as confessing that he was given $800 of the loot by the other man, who maintained that only $1800 had been obtained.

Mrs. Hitchings Wears a Wig.

When arrested, Mrs. Hitchings, whose own hair is cut very short, was wearing a bobbed blonde wig, similar to the hair observed by persons in Salem on the woman driving the Buick. The other woman is a brunette, also with bobbed hair.

Sheriff H. D. May of Marion County tried to stop the car in which the robbers escaped, but it was driven directly toward him and he had to leap to escape being hit. State's Attorney C. F. Dew issued the John Doe warrant, but was not informed as to the persons arrested under it.

Following her marriage to the Justice, Mrs. Hitchings took his automobile to Chicago, where he had her arrested for removal of mortgaged property, but the charge was not pressed.

This Is What the Doctor Says, Anyway

As to Exercise and Fresh Air: "An impartial examination of all the means yet proposed to lengthen life leaves me with the conviction that nothing anybody does to himself after he is born makes more than a few hours difference at the most."

As to Diet: "The ones who feel bad, however, are always seeking for some explanation of why they feel that way. One of the many explanations they light on is that they do not eat the right kind of food. This cannot be true, because the rest of the population, those who feel good and those who do not feel at all, eat exactly the same kind."

These are just two quotations from one of the most widely read books of the day, "The Human Body," by Dr. Logan Clendening. It will be printed in serial form, daily, beginning in the Post-Dispatch Daily Magazine tomorrow.

$750,000 IN GIFTS FOR MEDICAL WORK OF WASHINGTON U.

Jackson Johnson and Frank C. Rand Give $300,000, General Education Board $450,000.

IN RECOGNITION OF SURGICAL ADVANCES

Hospital Facilities of School Will Be Doubled, Giving Largest Teaching Capacity in U. S.

Gifts totaling $750,000 for research and the necessary facilities in the Department of Surgery of Washington University School of Medicine in Barnes Hospital were announced yesterday by the trustees of Barnes Hospital.

Two St. Louisans, Jackson Johnson, chairman of the board of the International Shoe Co., and Frank C. Rand, president of the International Shoe Co., each gave $150,000. The General Education Board, which is the organization for the distribution of John D. Rockefeller gifts to education, gave $450,000.

The General Education Board's gift will support the medical school activities in the hospital; that of the two men will provide quarters—a three-story addition to the present three-story surgical pavilion of Barnes Hospital which is affiliated with the School of Medicine.

Recognition of Advances.

The gift for surgical advancement is in recognition of notable contributions to the progress of surgery in recent years from the Washington University department and Barnes Hospital, notably the discovery of a method for the use of the X-ray in the diagnosis of gall bladder diseases; the development of chest surgery; the work in plastic and oral surgery; new methods for the diagnosis of kidney and bladder troubles; diseases of the pancreas and stomach, and surgery of the brain.

The surgical work, for which $450,000 is now available, is to be under the direction of Dr. Evarts Graham, professor of surgery in the University and surgeon-in-chief of Barnes Hospital.

The gifts of Johnson and Rand will substantially increase the usefulness of Barnes Hospital to the St. Louis public. Two of the new floors will be for ward beds and the third for low-priced private rooms for surgical patients. On the roof there will be a solarium for heliotherapy and the promotion of health by direct sun rays. The present surgical capacity of Barnes Hospital will be approximately doubled and the hospital henceforth will have 200 surgical beds comprising teaching facilities in surgery larger than any other American medical school and for the first time bringing an American school to the plane of Continental European universities in this respect.

Johnson, who is a trustee of Washington University, dedicates his $150,000 gift in memory of his son, Jackson Johnson Jr., who died in 1918 while in Europe with the American Expeditionary Forces. Rand's $150,000 is given in memory of his brother, Edgar E. Rand, one of the founders of the Roberts, Johnson & Rand Shoe Co., who died in 1907. Rand is chairman of the board of trustees of Barnes Hospital and a trustee of Washington University.

More Than $4,000,000 in Gifts.

Dr. W. McKim Marriott, dean of the Washington University Medical School, said yesterday that gifts to Washington University Medical School in the last five years now total more than $4,000,000, some of which follow: Six hundred and fifty thousand dollars from the General Education Board for research in obstetrics and care of the newly born in the St. Louis Maternity Hospital and for which a new building recently was added to the Washington University group; $400,000 from the General Education Board for bacteriological research and public health; $500,000 for the departments of medicine and surgery, of which Robert S. Brookings contributed one-half; $1,000,000 building and endowment for the Mallinckrodt Radiological Institute, ground for which will be broken next month, a part of which was the gift of the Edward Mallinckrodt family and the remainder of the General Education Board; $50,000 from the General Education Board for the development of chest surgery, and $1,000,000 for an eye, ear, nose and throat hospital by Mrs. William McMillan. The erection of the latter hospital will begin as soon as an additional endowment fund of $400,000 is obtained by gifts. Efforts to raise the latter fund are now in progress.

SEVENTEENTH CENTURY VOYAGER'S DESCRIPTION OF DEAD MAN'S ISLAND

DOEDMANSOEIRO is in the strait between Dane's Island and Amsterdam Island, a place known to Arctic whalers as a haven. A voyager of 1671 wrote of it:

"In this south haven the ships ride at anchor, between high mountains; on the left as we sail into it is a hill, called the Beehive; close to it lieth a large and high mount, called the Devil's Huck, commonly covered with a fog, and if the wind bloweth over it, it darkeneth the haven, and seemeth as if it smoked, filling the haven therewith. On the top thereof are three small, white hills covered with snow. Two of them stand near to one another. In the middle of this harbour is an island, which is called the Dead Man's Island, because they bury the dead there after this manner: They are put into a coffin, and covered with a heap of large stones, and notwithstanding all this, they are sometimes eaten by the white bears."

PARLEY ON FLOOD BILL FAILS; TILSON FORECASTS VETO

House Committee Unable to Reach Agreement on Revisions Proposed by Administration.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Representative Tilson, the House Republican leader, today admitted that negotiations had failed between administration leaders and the flood control group in the House on the incorporation of the President's proposed revisions in the Senate flood measure.

The two groups are hopelessly apart, he said. He predicted that consideration of the bill in its present form would be resumed Monday on the floor.

He said he expected the measure would pass the House and probably the Senate again in amended form, but "would receive a veto from President Coolidge."

Reid to Lead Fight.

The impending House fight is expected to find Chairman Reid of the Flood Control Committee, heading a group composed of many Western Republicans and virtually the solid Democratic membership, against the administration forces headed by Tilson, supporting the position of President Coolidge.

Reid said after a committee meeting late today that he could muster sufficient votes to pass the flood control bill by a "large majority" while Tilson countered with the statement that the administration camp had the votes to sustain the President in the event he should veto the measure.

Consideration of the bill in the KING AT 'WAR OF ROSES' GAME

LONDON, April 21.—King George and Queen Mary and the Duke and Duchess of York were among the 93,000 spectators who saw the Blackburn Rovers defeat Huddersfield Town, three goals to one, in the English Football Association cup final at Wembley Stadium today.

More than half of the crowd came by train from either Lancashire or Yorkshire for football's "war of the roses." The Rovers are from Lancashire; Huddersfield Town is in Yorkshire, and each partisan wore the red rose of Lancaster or the white rose of York.

$1,000,000 DAMAGE IN MEMPHIS STORM

Wind Wrecks Many Homes—Six Southern States Swept, With Three Deaths.

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 21.—Heavy windstorms, accompanied by rain and lightning, swept through parts of six states early today, leaving at least three dead, 40 or more injured and extensive property damage.

Heaviest damage was reported in West Tennessee. The storm struck two sections of Memphis and virtually wiped out the village of Atoka, 28 miles northward. Arkansas, North Louisiana, North Mississippi, East Texas and West Kentucky also suffered.

The wind, which reached a velocity of 70 miles an hour, destroyed or damaged more than 100 houses in South and East Memphis, then swept on to Atoka. Damage in Memphis was estimated at more than $1,000,000 and Atoka bankers said the loss there would approximate $100,000. Atoka has a population of between 300 and 400. Twenty persons were injured there and one, Paul Forber, 13, was killed.

A Negro was crushed to death near Sardis, Miss., by a falling tree. Robert H. Smith, 18, Negro, was drowned at Memphis.

Twenty-one persons were injured, and damage to houses, livestock and timber was estimated at $125,000 in Bowie and Miller counties, Tex., Approximately 150 residences were demolished. The area hardest hit was 14 miles northwest of Texarkana.

Several hundred derricks in the South Arkansas and North Louisiana oil fields were reported leveled by the wind, and many houses were unroofed or damaged. Wind and rain caused thousands of dollars' damage to roads and bridges in West Kentucky, in the vicinity of Paducah.

The United States Weather Bureau at New Orleans today issued a flood warning for Arkadelphia, Ark., and predicted that the Ouachita River at that point would exceed 18 feet by tomorrow morning. Residents of the vicinity have been advised to prepare for still higher water if the rainfall again becomes heavy.

Severe Quake in South Africa.

JOHANNESBURG, Union of South Africa, April 21. — Johannesburg experienced the most severe earth tremor ever recorded here at 6:30 o'clock tonight. The observatory seismograph showed a tremor lasting 6½ minutes. There were extensive rock falls in the upper levels of a nearby mine.

"NO FOXES SEEN," CODE MESSAGE, TELLS NEWS

Aviators Flew 2100 Miles From Alaska to Spitzbergen in 20 Hours Elapsed Time.

FORCED DOWN ON DEAD MAN'S ISLAND

Weather Halted Them There Five Days Before They Could Proceed to Green Harbor.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., April 21.—Capt. George Hubert Wilkins, veteran Arctic explorer, and Lieut. Carl B. Eielson, Alaskan pilot, have flown across the "top of the world," from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Spitzbergen.

In a brief message to the Detroit News today, Wilkins reported the successful accomplishment of the 2100-mile flight across the Arctic ice pack in these words:

"Reached Spitzbergen after 20½ hours flying. One stop five days account bad weather."

Later it was learned the stop was at Doedmansoeiro (Dead Man's Island), 25 miles from Svalbard, whence Wilkins' radio message was sent. The message was dated April 21 and timed 12:31 p. m.

The precise date of the take-off from Point Barrow is not known, although Wilkins had intended to start from there April 5. Wilkins' message might be taken to indicate that he left Alaska about last Sunday.

"No Foxes Seen."

The words "no foxes seen," in a radiogram from Capt. Wilkins to Dr. Isaiah Borman, director of the American Geographical Society of New York, today gave the information that Wilkins had discovered no land in his flight over the north pole.

Before flying from Point Barrow, Wilkins sent to Dr. Bowman the code in which he would report whether he discovered land, and, if he did, its extent and location.

A black fox in the distance was to refer to mountainous land, while a blue fox in the distance would denote flat land. The estimated number of square miles would be denoted in the message above (so many) foxes, black or blue according to the terrain.

The radiogram Dr. Bowman received says: "Traversed course outlined. One stop account bad weather. Arrived 20 and one-half hours' flying time. Five days from Barrow. No foxes seen."

A Copenhagen dispatch says that the newspaper Politiken received word from Svalbard that the crew of the plane was in excellent condition.

The same dispatch said that no further details of the flight were forthcoming at Copenhagen from Spitzbergen tonight. The only additional fact that was proffered was that the plane landed at Green Harbor, 40 miles from the radio station.

When the aviators landed, a slight northerly wind was blowing. The weather was moderately clear over the whole western part of Spitzbergen and there were 21 degrees of frost.

The flyers received every assistance at Green Harbor, where there is a station well provided with food, sleds and dogs. Long Year City, where there are between 300 and 400 residents connected with Norwegian coal mines, is not far distant.

Third Attempt Succeeds.

It was Wilkins' third attempt to span the Arctic wastes and word of its successful culmination came after fear had been expressed that he had been lost after having left Point Barrow. He was last heard from at Point Barrow early this month, when his radio sent out a fragmentary message about plans for a take-off shortly. He carried

PLANE EXPECTED TO GO TO RELIEF OF BREMEN TODAY

Balchen Plans to Proceed to Greenly Island Possibly With 'Duke' Schiller as Co-Pilot.

THEY WILL CARRY REPAIR PARTS

If Trans-Atlantic Ship Can Be Put Into Shape She Will Fly to New York as Soon as Possible.

By CHARLES J. V. MURPHY,
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and North American Newspaper Alliance.
Copyright, 1928, in all countries by North American Newspaper Alliance.

LAKE ST. AGNES, Que., April 21.—The first comprehensive effort to release the German trans-Atlantic flyers and the Bremen will be started tomorrow. At 5 a. m.—at the first crack of dawn over the hills—Bernt Balchen, Commander Byrd's trans-Atlantic pilot, will take off the three-motored monoplane provided by the New York World and the North American Newspaper Alliance, on its 710-mile hop to Greenly Island.

Only a blinding fog or storm will delay the start, Balchen announces. The cold which caused him to defer the start scheduled for today had apparently diminished, and he was eager to get under way.

Reports received direct from the Greenly Island lighthouse today said that the Bremen was standing virtually ready to install the spare parts carried by the Alliance's plane. The Bremen, it was said, might be made ready to fly Monday afternoon or Tuesday morning. Weather conditions were reported to be favorable.

Spare Parts to Be Carried.

Loaded in the Alliance plane is the entire equipment needed to condition the Bremen for flight. It includes a new propeller, landing gear, oil and fuel lines—100 pounds of oil and 60 gallons of gasoline—enough to fuel the Bremen for the nonstop flight to Murray Bay.

When the plane, which has been designated by the Mayor's reception committee of New York City as the official relief plane gets off, she will carry Maj. James J. Fitzmaurice, Ernest Koeppen, the Junkers mechanic, pilot Balchen and the correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the North American Newspaper Alliance.

There was a possibility that Floyd Bennett, who with Balchen flew the relief plane here from Detroit yesterday, would be in shape to fly tomorrow. His condition was much improved today, but he will await examination by a doctor from Murray Bay before attempting the flight. If Bennett decides to await the return of the Alliance plane and the Bremen to Murray Bay, C. A. (Duke) Schiller, pilot of the Canadian transcontinental Airways, will act as relief pilot for Balchen. It was Duke who first flew to Greenly Island and took out Maj. Fitzmaurice.

Irish Ace Apologizes.

The Major himself was much excited over the takoff tomorrow.

"It's the only ship that is capable of bringing us out," he said, after examining the plane, "and the Baron and Capt. Koehl most certainly will be glad to see it come into sight. Believe me, they have not been enjoying themselves on that blasted island."

The Major was particularly interested in the operation attending the changing of the wheeled gear on the Alliance machine. It was the first time he had seen such a maneuver.

"It is a pity," he said, "that we caused you so much trouble."

Wenzell, the mechanic, and Tom Mulroy, the chief engineer of Commander Byrd's expeditions, worked through the night to install the skis, load the Bremen's equipment and refuel.

At a conference in which Miss Herta Junkers, daughter of the Bremen's designer, Maj. Fitzmaurice, Bernt Balchen and the correspondent participated, it was decided that the monoplane should stop at Seven Islands, 240 miles from here, and take on more fuel, instead of attempting a nonstop flight, as was originally planned. As a consequence, the Alliance plane will tak off from here with only 440 gallons of fuel instead of 650, which will make a difference of 1200 pounds in the plane's load, an important consideration in the takeoff from Lake St. Agnes.

The Alliance plane, however, will make the return with the Bremen nonstop. Overnight, the mechanics will restore the wheeled gear and both planes will be in readiness for the jump to New York, the Alliance plane acting as escort for the Junkers.

"We'll all pitch in and help in the repairing of the Bremen," said Balchen. Maj. Fitzmaurice estimated it would not take more than six hours to make the repairs. "By this time," he said, "Baron von Huenefeld, Capt. Koehl and Dr. Louis Cuisinier, who flew up to the island with Schiller, will have everything in readiness. I expect they have the Bremen propped up and all we'll have to do is to attach the new landing gear. Installing the new oil lines and the propeller should not take very long."

Sinclair Acquitted of Oil Conspiracy

who testified that the payments of bonds and cash were innocent transactions, had previously refused to testify on the ground of self-incrimination.

So, unnaturally, they were unaware that his explanation of the payments had been made only after an act of Congress had driven him from his refuge of silence. They were not permitted to hear of the Elk Hills lease, the Fall-Doheny case, and the scandal of the "Little Black Bag." They knew nothing of the Continental Trading Co. or its $3,080,000 corruption fund, out of which Sinclair got the bonds that he gave Fall.

"Makes Us Look Like Sapheads."

The youngest juror, learning these facts tonight for the first time from an afternoon newspaper, ruefully exclaimed to the writer:

"Why didn't they tell us all this stuff about Sinclair? How did they expect us to understand what it was all about when they didn't give us half the facts? It makes the jury look like a lot of sapheads."

The youngest juror was Howard A. Bradley, 22, an automobile accessory salesman. He was puzzled by the judge's instructions, and chagrined to learn that he had dissented from the Supreme Court. He expected to get a good "razzing" when his father, a railroad conductor, got home. He had often heard his father say that Sinclair ought to go to prison, but, after hearing the lawyers argue, he decided that the "Old Man" hadn't known the facts. Now he was afraid the "Old Man" might have been right, after all.

He heard with astonishment that Justice Jennings Bailey's instructions had been pronounced by lawyers to be more vigorously favorable to conviction than any charge ever delivered in the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

"It sounded just as strong one way as it did the other," he said. "I had expected the Judge to make it pretty clear how we ought to vote. He would go along all right on one side for a while; then he would switch over and give the other side. I was balled up worse after he finished than when he began."

Some Jurors "Undecided."

Not a single vote was cast for conviction during the one hour and 50 minutes that the jurors deliberated. On a tentative ballot taken immediately after the jury retired, four jurors recorded themselves as "undecided" and on a second tentative ballot this number was reduced to two. On the third and only formal ballot which was taken all 12 voted for acquittal.

Not Enough Evidence for Jurors.

Juror Kenneth Carter, the 28-year-old railroad agent, voted for acquittal because he felt that the Government had not proved its case. "I didn't want to do anything so serious as sending a man to jail without being absolutely certain that he was guilty," Carter said. "There was no evidence presented to us to show that Sinclair made a deal with Fall before the leasing of Teapot Dome."

Carter gave a lucid account of what happened in the jury room during the hour and 50 minutes' deliberation.

"Knowing that we were going to get the case today, we elected Mr. Anderson foreman last night," he said. "When we got in the jury room this morning we thought that it would be a good idea to find out how everybody stood and decided that everyone should vote what he thought. I guess we did a unique thing when we decided to vote 'guilty, not guilty' or 'undecided.' We didn't sign our names to our votes. We did this because we didn't want to be influenced by each others vote.

"When we found that four were 'undecided,' we sat around the table and every man gave his version of the case. Some of those who were undecided asked questions and when everyone had spoken we voted again. We had been in the room about an hour when the second vote was taken.

"After the second vote, we again discussed the case. We had agreed that every man was entitled to his own opinion and that we would stay as long as necessary. There wasn't any hard feelings anywhere and we talked over the case in the friendliest way. We had our own sergeant-at-arms, Mr. Brown, to keep order, but that wasn't necessary. Everyone could talk as long as he wanted to. About three-quarters of an hour after our second vote we took a third. Everyone was for acquittal then."

Court Decision a Surprise.

Carter declared that the jury considered only the evidence that had been presented in court. He said that, if any juror knew that the United State Supreme Court had unanimously found that Fall was a "faithless public officer," and that the transaction had been consummated "fraudulently by means of collusion and conspiracy" between Fall and Sinclair, he didn't say so in talking over the case in the jury room. Carter said that he did not know about the Supreme Court decision and was surprised when told what it said. He was likewise surprised when told that Everhart had refused to testify at previous trials for fear of incriminating himself.

"If we had known about those things, we certainly would have given them serious consideration," Carter said. "Why didn't they tell us about them?"

The young railroad agent said he was confused at the beginning of the trial. "I couldn't understand what it was all about. I hadn't read anything in the newspapers about the oil reserves except the headlines. A person can't keep up with all that rig-a-marole without giving it all his time.

"It seemed to me that the Government started its case backwards by bringing on the New Mexico witnesses first. It took me quite a while to catch on."

Thought Secrecy Was Strange.

"Did the secrecy over the payment of bonds and cash to Fall make any impression on the jury?" he was asked. "We thought that was strange but the Government didn't give any evidence to show that was a conspiracy," he replied. "I personally wanted to know how much the ranches were worth but we weren't told. It seems to me that they could have figured that out by the tax payments."

When told that the assessed valuation was $125,000 and that people in New Mexico placed the value at not more than $200,000, he was again surprised that the jury had not been told the facts.

"Sinclair's lawyers showed us a chart of the ranch and talked about the number of water holes there," he continued. "You know, when you have a cattle ranch, the water is what counts. The fellow that has water for grazing cattle has the best ranch."

"How about the secrecy surrounding the lease—did that have any effect on the jury?"

"It didn't with me. Admiral Robinson—I mean Robison—testified that there was a national emergency and that oil might be needed. Events later showed there wasn't an emergency but there might have been. As I see it, those lands were set aside for the navy and the Secretary of the Interior had charge of them. Now, if the navy needed the oil in an emergency, it wouldn't do to have the oil in the ground. The navy had to have that oil where it could get to it. That meant pipelines. As I understood the witness from Texas (Amos Beaty, former president of the Texas Company), his company wasn't willing to put in pipelines. I thought it was all right to give the lease to Sinclair since he was willing to put in the pipelines. Pipelines were the key to the situation."

Carter was again surprised when the Supreme Court had held that there was no need for secrecy and that there had been no emergency.

Just Summed Up Evidence.

"Did Justice Bailey's charge to the jury have anything to do with the verdict?"

"I don't know. It seemed to me that he just summed up the evidence. I sat on a jury once before and I had been told that the judge might instruct the jury about a verdict. I couldn't see that he gave us any instructions one way or another."

Juror William H. Wrenn, 57 years old, clerk in a large grocery, was willing to talk about the accommodations and food furnished by the marshal, but he countered all questions about the verdict with, "It's all over and I can't talk about it." Then for the benefit of fellow clerks who were listening in, he volunteered in all seriousness, "You can say that I done my duty as I seen it."

The defense claimed that the $233,000 in Liberty bonds which Sinclair gave Fall immediately after the signing of the Teapot lease was the purchase price of a one-third interest in Fall's New Mexico ranch; that the subsequent cash payments of $35,000 were advances to cover improvements on the ranch, and that a final payment of $25,000 of Liberty bonds was a loan. The jury accepted this explanation; in the absence of direct, first-hand, positive proof to the contrary.

The strange circumstances under which the payments were made were insufficient to convince them that they constituted a bribe. Sinclair gave $198,000 of the bonds to Everhart in Sinclair's private car in the Washington railroad yards. He gave him another $35,000 at his New York office. The $10,000 cash advance was made to Everhart at Three Rivers, and the $25,000 lump was handed over in the Wardman Park Hotel here. The $25,000 package of bonds was sent by express to an El Paso bank, and delivered to Fall.

Strange Business, They Agree.

This was a strange way to do business, the jurors agreed, especially for a man of Sinclair's standing in the business world. They did not understand why he didn't pay by check in the usual way. They saw no reason why his stock in Fall's ranch should have been kept in Everhart's name. Nevertheless, unless some witness was put on the stand to testify point blank that the payments comprised a bribe, they were unwilling so to characterize them. No such witness was available.

They were convinced that the granting of the lease was surrounded with secrecy, and that Fall favored Sinclair in making it. They felt that Fall and Sinclair "understood each other," and that Sinclair's competitors never stood much chance. But they were unwilling to declare that a conspiracy had been entered into in the absence of some direct, first-hand positive testimony that such an agreement had been made. No such testimony could be produced.

For evidence of the conspiracy, the prosecution could only show how the defendants acted. For evidence that the payments were corrupt, it could show only how they were made. It was enough for the Supreme Court, but it was not enough for the jury.

Juror No. 1 was Harry E. Brooks 25 years old, a steamfitter. He was preparing to leave the rooming house where he boards when the writer found him. Brooks is short, wiry and assertive.

"I figured the Government didn't make out no case," he said. "We went over all the counts in the indictment, and decided that none of them had been proved. Of course, anybody could see that the lease wasn't made out in the open, and that Sinclair had the inside track, but they never did show where Fall and Sinclair had entered into any agreement about it."

"Government's Bad Luck."

He was asked how it would have been possible to show the actual agreement, unless either Fall or Sinclair turned Government's evidence and told about it. "Well, that's the Government's bad luck," he said. "All we had to go on was what they showed us."

"Were you convinced that the bonds and cash represented a legitimate purchase of an interest in the ranch?"

"Of course, it looked pretty fishy, and there must have been something wrong about it," he replied. "But Everhart said it was an honest purchase, and the Government had nobody to contradict him."

Brooks had never heard of the Supreme Court decision, the contempt cases, Everhart's plea of self-incrimination, the Fall-Doheny trial, the jury-shadowing episode, or the Continental Trading Company. In fact, he had never heard anything about the oil investigations.

"I don't read the newspapers hardly at all," he said, with a trace of boastfulness. "Just the comic page and baseball news and maybe an accident or something like that. I don't have the time. I work every day and I'm out every night having a good time."

The jurors who were interviewed admitted having been greatly impressed by Martin Littleton's dazzling plea for Sinclair at the close. He made them feel, they said, that, while there were a "good many funny things" in the case, there was absent the absolute proof of guilt which was required to send a man to prison. On the other hand, they were high in praise of Roberts, who, they thought, had been earnest and fair, and "would have made a case if anybody could."

"Not surprised—but very, very happy," smiled the burly oil magnate as he pushed his way out of the courtroom in the midst of a throng of backslapping, handshaking lawyers and friends, following the verdict.

Immediately after the verdict was rendered Sinclair authorized this statement:

"I have felt since the inception of the oil cases that I would be acquitted of any charge of conspiracy to defraud the Government when the evidence went before a jury."

In his instructions, Justice Bailey charged the jury particularly to consider the secrecy in which the Teapot Dome lease was obtained—whether that was the customary order of business—and to consider the payments of $258,000 in Liberty bonds and $35,000 in cash, which Fall subsequently received from Sinclair.

In this connection, he emphasized that the $35,000 was in cash instead of by check.

Moreover, he reminded the jurors that Sinclair had not taken the stand in his own defense, although instructing them not to consider it against him.

SINCLAIR VERDICT "GRATIFIES BUT DOESN'T SURPRISE" FALL

Former Interior Secretary in Pasadena, Where His Condition Has Improved.

By the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Cal., April 21.—Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, said here today he was "gratified, but not surprised" by the acquittal in Washington of Harry F. Sinclair, with whom he was charged with having conspired to defraud the Government in the Teapot Dome oil lease.

Fall's condition is declared to be materially improved since his arrival here. Under physician's orders he had denied himself to interviewers until today. He declared he would have no further comment to make.

Wilkins and Eielson Saw No Land on Flight

a radio but evidently it was not effective at no message was received from him on the way.

Plans for organizing a rescue expedition were being talked of here when Wilkins' message from Svalbard was received.

Whether Wilkins actually flew over the North Pole was not known. His plans, however, contemplated a course between the Pole and North American continent where he desired to make scientific observations of the so-called Arctic "blind spot" an unexplored" region in which was thought there might be land.

Word also is awaited whether he and his companion found land in the unexplored area they crossed, and whether they were able to observe ocean currents, temperatures and make soundings in the interest of meteorology.

That Wilkins himself may have sent the radiogram announcing his achievement was indicated by news that the radio operator at Svalbard was killed a short time ago in an accident and that the new operator was not due to arrive to replace him until April 24.

Plotted Course South of Pole.

Before leaving for Point Barrow, Wilkins said his course would lie about 300 miles to the south of the North Pole, so that he could traverse a section of the globe never before seen by man. The object of his expedition was to obtain meteorological data and Wilkins said he might land on the ice several times during his flight to Spitzbergen. His plane was equipped with skis and he felt sure he would be able to make a safe landing almost anywhere in the Arctic.

A 30-day food supply was taken by the explorers in case they should be forced down far from civilization.

Wilkins' expedition was known as the Detroit News-Wilkins Arctic expedition. The scientific supervision of the expedition was under the auspices of the American Geographical Society of New York.

Wilkins Succeeds After Twice Failing in Attempt.

The feat of Capt. Wilkins and his pilot was a triumph of persistence. It represented unabated effort in the face of tremendous difficulties since December, 1925, when the flight first was planned.

The expedition, financed in part by the school children of Detroit, who gave 5 cents each, was organized for a start in March, 1926. Three airplanes were obtained for the venture. One was destroyed by fire in Detroit. The two others were shipped to Fairbanks, together with fuel and food supplies, and there other misfortunes quickly overtook the party. Shortly after their arrival, Palmer B. Hutchinson, a Detroit newspaper man, accompanying the party, was killed when he walked into a whirling propeller.

First, it was planned to haul the 15 tons of supplies from Fairbanks to Point Barrow by sledge and fly the planes empty to the same destination. The hauling program, however, collapsed when the two snow motors drawing the 15 tons of supplies on 10 sledges broke down with only 70 of the 600 miles covered. A few days later one plane was wrecked in landing, after a trial flight at Fairbanks. Then, after considerable delay, the flyers reached Point Barrow with the other plane and 3000 pounds of supplies. On another trial flight they landed on the ice and were lost for several days. Finally, the trans-polar flight was given up for that year and the flyers returned to this country.

Halted Last Year by Storm.

In May, 1927, Wilkins and another pilot, Alger Graham, made a second attempt, but were forced to give up again when they were unable to cross the mountain between Fairbanks and Point Barrow. Their plane, buffeted by snowstorms, was able to attain an altitude of only 3500 feet, with mountains towering 12,000 feet in front of them. Again the flyers returned to await another spring. The third annual effort succeeded.

This year Wilkins and Eielson went to Alaska in February. They assembled the plane in Fairbanks, at the end of the Government railroad. The explorers made an unostentatious departure from Fairbanks. The presentation of an American flag by the local post of the American Legion was the only ceremony when on March 19 they flew to Point Barrow, 500 miles northwest. There they refueled and awaited until a favorable opportunity came for the hop over the Arctic ice pack.

Wilkins began his career in aviation in 1912 after having studied engineering in Australia. He earned his way around the world through work with his camera, taking pictures from airplanes. He served in the Vilhjalmur Stefansson Arctic expedition in 1913, and when the World War broke out commanded the Australian photographic section on the Western front.

A second in command he sailed to Graham's Island with the British Imperial Antarctic expedition in 1921 and on this cruise made a 300-mile trip through Antarctic waters in a whaleboat. Successively he was with Sir Ernest Shackleton on the "Quest" expedition; did special investigation for the British Government in Russia and spent two and one-half years in command of the Wilkins Australian and island expedition. He then concentrated on his polar enterprises.

Eielson's Adventurous Career.

Eielson, known as the "Gypsy of the Air," is a native of North Dakota and a graduate of the university of that State. He did his first flying when he enlisted in the World War, and obtained a commission as First Lieutenant. Later he orgaized commercial flying enterprises and for two years flew the air mail in Alaska, inaugurating the route from Fairbanks to McGrath, a distance of 300 miles. His record in Alaska brought about his connection with the Wilkins Arctic expedition.

Use of a wooden plane for the dash constituted a radical departure from the practice of other trans-oceanic flyers. Capt. Wilkins chose a wooden craft because he believed it would be less affected by ice and hence more manageable than the all-metal ship he has used in the past. The plane was built by the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation and taken from San Pedro, Cal., to Seward, Alaska, by steamer, thence shipped to Fairbanks by train. The flyers then piloted it to Point Barrow, flying over the Endicott mountain range at an elevation of 12,000 feet, before taking off on the final hop. They reached Point Barrow March 20.

The plane is a trim, fast craft with bullet-shaped fuselage. Its cruising speed is about 115 miles an hour and its cruising radius 3200 miles. On the polar flight it carried, besides the weight of fuel and passengers, a radio set and 100 pounds of extra food and clothing. Its tanks have a capacity of 370 gallons of gasoline.

Conquests of North Pole.

The North Pole has twice been crossed by air, the first time by Lieutenant-Commander Richard E. Byrd who flew over the pole in May, 1926, and the second time, only a few days later, by the Amundsen-Ellsworth expedition in the dirigible Norge which flew from Kings Bay across the pole landing at Teller, Alaska, after 71 hours.

Gen. Umberto Nobile, Italian dirigible expert, who was aboard the Norge on its flight, is now at Stolp, Germany, making preparations for another dirigible flight across the pole.

Description of Region in Which Flyers Landed.

Svalbard is the name applied to the entire archipelago of Spitsbergen, Bear Island and the adjacent islands.

The radio station at Spitzbergen is at Kings Bay, which is popularly known as "the halfway house to the pole." It is only 600 nautical miles from "the top of the world."

Of the three Spitzbergen settlements, Kings Bay is nearest the pole, and access to it is much superior to the approach to the other two settlements, Advent Bay and Green Harbor. Kings Bay is situated almost directly on the Arctic Ocean and is virtually the only place in Spitzbergen where the ice-covered mountains recede a few miles inland, leaving a wide level plain on which landings may be effected.

Islands Belong to Norway.

The Svalbard Archipelago was a no man's land until 1919, when it became officially Norwegian territory by virtue of the acceptance by the Oslo Parliament of the Paris treaty of 1919 conferring the sovereignty of the islands on Norway.

Scattered over the Kings Bay plain are the little wooden shacks of a mining village which is operated by a Norwegian coal company. During the brief summer months it is the home of from 300 to 400 miners who come from the European Continent for the mining season.

JUDGE PUTS OVER EDENBORN TRIAL UNTIL JUNE 20

Faris Wearies at Length to Which Evidence Is Drawn Out in $76,000,000 Estate Suit.

CHILDREN TAKE STAND FOR MOTHER

Says She Called Millionaire "Pop" — Her Husband May Testify When Hearing Is Resumed.

After hearing testimony for a week, Federal Judge Faris twice registered impatience yesterday at the mass of detail being brought out in the trial of the claim of Mrs. Sophie Meier, "farmer's wife of Gumbo, St. Louis County, to a daughter's share of the $76,000,000 estate of William Edenborn, railroad owner.

A criminal docket beginning tomorrow made a postponement of the Edenborn trial necessary. Summoning lawyers for Mrs. Meier and for the Edenborn estate to the bench, Judge Faris gave them the choice of resuming testimony in the eight-day period beginning May 2, if that would be time enough, or beginning June 20 "when I can devote the entire summer to it." The lawyers selected the "entire summer" period.

Judge Objects to Delay.

Previously, when Clinton Meier, son of the claimant, was testifying, Judge Faris objected to a long cross-examination by counsel for the Edenborn estate. Meier had testified that Edenborn often visited the Gumbo farm and recognized Mrs. Meier as his child and her children as his grandchildren. The witness identified a book given him by Edenborn, who had inscribed his name on the fly-leaf.

In answer to a series of questions, the witness said the book was written about the World War, that he had read it, that the names of Pershing and other Generals were mentioned, and that——

"You're dragging this case out beyond reasonable length," Judge Faris interrupted. "The gift of a book is rather colorless, anyway. Now, I gave a book to Judge Kenyon recently, but it doesn't prove he's my grandson."

(Judge Kenyon is a member of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for this district.)

Hid Relationship From Wife.

Laverne Meier, 19-year-old daughter of the claimant, testified Edenborn visited the Meier farm whenever business trips to St. Louis permitted—sometimes every week, sometimes a month or six weeks apart.

"Sophie, my daughter," "My child" and "Sweetheart" were terms Edenborn used in addressing Mrs. Meier, the witness said. In turn Mrs. Meier called Edenborn "Daddy," "Pop" and "Grandpa."

The witness recalled that years ago, when she was a little girl, Edenborn brought his wife, Mrs. Sarah Drain Edenborn, and her sister, "Aunt Nettie" Drain, to the Meier farm on a visit. That was the only time, Miss Meier said, on which she did not call Edenborn "Grandpa." She refrained from any show of affection, she explained, because Edenborn had asked the Meier family not to disclose their close relationship in the presence of his wife and her relatives.

"I loved my grandfather and did anything he asked me to," the witness added.

Miss Meier identified a pile of Christmas and birthday cards which she had received from "Aunt Nettie" who was in court, but did not testify.

"Equitable Adoption" Plea.

The intent of the week's testimony has been to show that a case of "equitable adoption" existed between Edenborn and Mrs. Meier who claims he was her father—that he took charge of her shortly after her birth, when her mother, Fida Dettly, gave her up; that he paid for her board and education and arranged her marriage with Frank Meier; that he paid for the farm and house in which she still lives; that he continued to visit her and her children, and that he promised to provide for her in his will. No will was found after his death two years ago, and his widow, who has no living children, obtained the estate.

Mrs. Ida Schwartz, 4114 Page boulevard, was the last of a long list of witnesses who testified that Edenborn recognized Mrs. Meier as his child. Mrs. Schwartz related that 11 years ago she visited the Meier farm to buy some pigs and she admired a brood sow. A tall, broad-shouldered man, gray-haired and fashionably dressed Edenborn was standing by and agreed the sow was a fine specimen, remarking: "I bought it for my daughter, Mrs. Meier."

Mrs. Meier, the central figure in the trial, is ineligible to testify under the rules of evidence, Judge Faris has decided. Frank Meier, her husband, is eligible and may testify when the case comes up again in June. He was ill yesterday and did not appear in court.

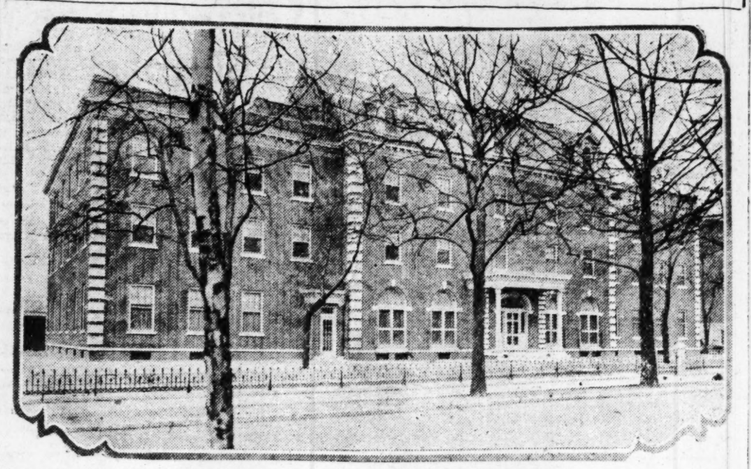
New Home for Girls in East St. Louis



THE Buelah Club, a home for girls in East St. Louis, which will be dedicated today. It is the gift to the Y. W. C. A. of Walter P. Murphy of Chicago, who formerly worked as a railroad brakeman and fireman in East St. Louis.

601 Prize Dogs on Display, And Only 60 Cups for Them

Judges to Decide Tonight Which 541 of Entries at Annual Bench Show Shall Go Unrewarded.

About 60 silver cups and 601 dogs are on exhibition in the sixteenth bench show of the Mississippi Valley Kennel Club, which will close tonight at the Coliseum.

That discrepancy in numbers is what it's all about. There aren't enough cups to go around. If there were, all the material business of the show could be transacted in less time than it takes five men to pull one police dog off an "enemy" in the nightly field trials at the south end of the arena.

With only one cup for every tenth dog, the show consumes three sessions a day for three days. The dogs glare and snap and howl at each other, and sometimes their exhibitors obviously feel little more reticent. Anxieties accumulate to the breaking point and the tumult and the barking reach their height tonight, when the best dog in the show, the best German shepherd in the field trials, the best terrier, toy, sporting dog, working dog and non-sporting dog are to be selected, and 541 dogs are to be sent home cupless.

Big Cups and Little Cups.

The cups are quite a show in themselves. There is an enormous cup for the best in the show, two huge cups for the best pointer and the best setter, nine very large cups for winners in special classes, a dozen large cups, a score of middle-sized cups and goodness knows how many little tiny cups for German shepherds—41 cups for the one class.

No less than 88 of that increasingly popular breed are entered in the bench classes, and many of them are taking part in field trials. The best field dog in the lot will be entered in the National field trials. The finals in field work will begin at 8:15 p. m. today, and the "best in the show" will be judged at 9.30 o'clock.

Second in number are wire-haired fox terriers, which are coming up just as the police dog was before it ousted the airedale six years ago. Altogether, 53 wire-haired terriers are entered, and following them come 42 bulldogs—an extraordinary number of his homely but stanch pal, which is very hard to handle on the show circuit; 40 collies and 38 pointers.

Varieties of Arctic Dogs.

Rarely seen in St. Louis are a half dozen Spitz-like Russian Samoyedes. Also from the far North are an enormously broad-domed malamute and a lithe, wolf-like Eskimo dog. Glittering with rhinestones and petted like an Infanta, a four-pound toy black and tan peers with beady little eyes across the aisle at Independent Bob, a dozing 175-pound St. Bernard.

An unusual number of the larger dogs are on view—Newfoundlands, Great Danes, wolfhounds and Doberman pinschers, which were police dogs in Germany before the German shepherd was adapted. Another former member of the police, and one rare in shows hereabouts, is the Schnauzer, a side-whiskered fellow with a terrier nose, now ranged with the terriers, although it used to have a place beside the pinschers. Somewhat like it, in whiskers at least, is the wire-haired pointing griffon, but the toy Brussels griffon is much more like a Pekinese or toy spaniel than like its mansize namesake.

Other rarities include a golden retriever (Princeton '04, Phi Beta Kappa, by its mien and glance); a Sealyham terrier, a pair of Chesapeake Bay dogs, native American gentleman among sporting dogs; a cairn terrier, tiny but intelligent—sufficiently so to curl up and nap while ordinary aristocrats of dogdom yowl at each other; a woolly, bouncing Old English sheep dog, and a big Irish water spaniel with a twisted brown mop half hiding its wise, friendly eyes.

$300,000 DORMITORY GIFT OF EX-BRAKEMAN

Walter P. Murphy Gives Building to Be Operated by East St. Louis Y. W. C. A.

A $300,000 dormitory for business girls, built by a former East St. Louis brakeman, now a Chicago millionaire, in memory of his dead sister, will be formally opened today at Ninth street and Ohio avenue, East St. Louis. The donor is Walter P. Murphy, who 35 years ago was coupling freight cars on the old Cairo Short Line Railway. Today he is executive head of one of the largest railroad equipment businesses in the world.

The ultra-modern three-story building, to be operated by the Y. W. C. A., has been in process of construction for the better part of a year. The fact that Murphy contributed the funds for putting it up was not made public until yesterday. The magnate had one sister. She died when a little girl. Her name was Beulah. The dormitory is to be known as the "Beulah Building."

"Beau Cabinets" a Feature.

Innovations known as "beau cabinets," small rooms providing privacy for a young woman entertaining her young man, are included in the design. One large room has been partitioned into eight compartments, each with a curtained doorway giving on a small hall. If one of the girls wishes to be alone with her admirer, she may retire into one of the "beau cabinets" with him, pulling the curtain. Each compartment has two arm chairs and a small table.

In addition the building boasts a large sewing room with full-length mirrors, where young women can make their clothes and try them on. There is also a chamber called the "kimono room," where, says A. B. Frankel, the architect, the young women may gather for fudge parties.

The dormitory has 75 rooms, each equipped with bed, dresser, writing desk, reading lamp and reclining chairs. There is also a roof sleeping porch. The structure will provide quarters for 80 young women.

Rapid Rise in Business.

Murphy's rise in the world of railroad supply manufacturing has been rapid. First a brakeman, he turned later to firing on the Illinois Central. He saved his money and on a small scale began to manufacture railroad supplies in East St. Louis. He moved to Chicago in a few years and invented a freight car end of corrugated steel that found immediate success. His business expanded. He added a second supply bussiness when his brother, Clinton C. Murphy, died in 1917, leaving him his factories. The companies were merged and later the manufacturing business founded by Murphy's father also was taken into the concern.

Murphy's gift will cut living costs substantially for the business girls who live at the Beulah house. The weekly charge will be from $6 to $10 a person—this including room and board.

Donald Defrees, Chicago attorney for the Union Metal Products Co., of which Murphy is executive head, will deliver the presentation speech at 2 o'clock today at formal exercises. Mrs. E. H. Bottom, president of the Y. W. C. A. Board of Directors of East St. Louis, will respond. Mayor Frank Doyle will take part in the presentation.

D. A. R. CONGRESS PUNISHES AN INSURGENT MEMBER

Mrs. Key, Who Seconded Kansas Woman's Protest, Loses Contract for Pins.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The Thirty-seventh Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution meted out swift punishment today to one of the insurgents who met defeat at yesterday's session, and then adjourned.

By a unanimous vote the Congress passed a resolution submitted by its insignia committee cancelling the contract for members' pins that has been held for several years by Mrs. Ellinora Dutcher Key, of Maryland. Yesterday Mrs. Key seconded the resolutions of protest against the national officers and their policies introduced by Mrs. St. Omer Roy of Kansas.

Speaking in her own defence, Mrs. Key protested that she had seconded the Roy resolution without realizing that they opposed national defense in any way. She added that the contract had meant no pecuniary advantage for herself, and that the use of her design by any other producer would be "unethical." Members of the insignia committee replied that "a similar design" would be used.

Other resolutions reaffirmed the Congress' emphatic endorsement of the national officers and their policies, and of a Navy program "in accordance with the 5-5-3 agreement." Specific approval of Mrs. William Sherman Walker's much criticized appearance before the House Naval Affairs committee was also voted in a resolution authorizing "the President General or any loyal member" to appear before Congressional committees.

Mrs. Carnegie Sails for Scotland.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, widow of the steel magnate, sailed today on the Transylvania for Scotland, where she will spend the summer at her estate, Skibo Castle. Sixteen servants accompanied her and 25 had gone before. Later her daughter, Mrs. Roswell P. Miller, with her husband and three children will join Mrs. Carnegie.

GOV. SMITH ADDS 84 VOTES IN WEEK TO TOTAL PLEDGED

New York Executive Far Ahead of Field, With 301 Delegates for Presidential Nomination.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—With conflicting claims of strength they will be able to show at the national conventions, the various presidential candidates and their managers, both Republican and Democratic, are pressing their campaigns for delegates with eyes turned to three important primaries just ahead—in Ohio, Indiana and California.

Admittedly none of the three primaries will prove a conclusive test, but the vote-getting ability of Herbert Hoover will be shown in Ohio Tuesday and in Indiana two weeks later. Sandwiched in between, on May 1, the Democratic primaries in California will give a line on the strength of Gov. Smith, who is in a three-cornered contest there with Senators Reed and Walsh.

The Republican convention gets under way at Kansas City seven weeks from Tuesday. Two weeks later—on June 26—the Democrats assemble at Houston.

583 G. O. P. Delegates Chosen.

To date 583 Republican delegates have been selected, 38 more than the majority of 545 needed for a nomination. Democratic delegates chosen thus far total 442, with nearly 300 more than that necessary for a two-thirds nominating majority.

On the face of delegates actually designated, Hoover holds a lead among the Republican aspirants, with 233 either instructed for him of generally conceded to him. Frank O. Lowden, the runner-up, has 175 on the same basis. Managers for each are claiming additional strength from among the 112 delegates whose preference has not been publicly disclosed. Hoover headquarters today issued a statement claiming 282 delegates.

Smith is far in the lead among the Democrats with 301, or 60 more than he polled on the first ballot at Madison Square Garden in 1924. Three opponents—Reed, Senator George of Georgia and former Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska—have 80 sure votes among them, with the destination of 61 delegates a matter of dispute.

Although Smith must get more than 700 votes at Houston, his friends say he is in an advantageous position because there appears to be little concerted opposition on the part of rival candidates to his selection.

Reed, however, has passed the word that he is in the fight to stay, and various Democrats — among them Heflin of Alabama and Simons of North Carolina in the Senate—have taken occasion to defy Smith anew.

As for Hoover, the candidates in the field against him are putting up a fight that is growing in intensity and scope. In some instances they have effected combinations to head him off in his quest for delegates.

Lowden Men Optimistic.

Supporters of Lowden, particularly, are making claims of the growing strength of the former Illinois Governor, and are telling the world that they not only will "stop" Hoover, but will put Lowden over at Kansas City.

In the background and less active are Curtis of Kansas, who is being talked up by his friends as an ideal compromise candidate to turn to in the convention deadlock they predict will develop; Vice President Dawes, the close friend of Lowden who insists he is not a candidate himself; President Coolidge, whose name again is being mentioned with frequency, and a number of others in the class of dark horses.

The Republican situation in Ohio was upset by the death a month ago of Senator Willis, who was making a "favorite son" fight for delegates against Hoover, and conditions there have been so unsettled that few are predicting the outcome of Tuesday's primary. The stake is 51 delegates, with agreement general that the delegation will be split, but in what proportion a matter of debate.

In 1920 Warren G. Harding lost nine of the Ohio delegates to Leonard Wood, yet won the nomination at Chicago. This year the Willis delegates have indicated a willingness to support various candidates, but not Hoover, and a number have given the word they would welcome an opportunity to go to Dawes, who was born in Ohio.

Whatever is the outcome in Ohio, it generally is agreed that a setback would not knock Hoover out of the running any more than a smashing victory would clinch the nomination for him.

Line-up in Indiana.

In Indiana, Hoover is lined up against Senator Watson, who has been a political power in that State for years, and who is friendly with both Lowden and Dawes. It is a "winner take all" proposition in that primary, as whoever carries the State will get the entire delegation of 33.

Having just cleared the way for the support at Houston of the solid Illinois and Iowa delegations, which added 84 votes to those pledged for the Governor, Smith's supporters are contending that he will be "as good as in" if he wins in California over Reed and Walsh. A setback, they concede, would slow up their candidate, but they refuse to admit that it would prove a stumbling block to his nomination.

The Smith opposition, however, believes if he gets a trouncing in California, they will be able at Houston to rally the opposition needed to prevent his nomination. To that end they are making every effogrt to turn him back in the first primary contest in the West.

While Smith has been enjoying a golfing vacation at Asheville, N. C., his New York supporters have formally projected him into the presidential race. At a meeting held Tuesday to round out the delegation of 90 that will go to Houston pledged to support the Governor to a finish, a resolution putting him forward as a candidate was adopted. It is expected to draw a statement from Smith on his return from the South, that probabl will go into some of the issues confronting the nation.

On the New York delegation is John W. Davis, Democratic standard bearer in 1924. He will serve as a delegate-at-large and the indications are that he will make the nominating speech for Smith. Others on the delegation at large include Mayor Walker, and Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for Vice President in 1920, who in 1924 managed Smith's pre-convention campaign.

Despite his several announcements that he does not wish to be considered a candidate, President Coolidge has been very much talked of recently as the possible Republican nominee. Whether his latest (yesterday) public disavowal of the "Coolidge-for-President' movement will quiet these discussions remains to be seen.

There have been the plainest indications that several state delegations were preparing to go to Coolidge on the first ballot at Kansas City. Most, if not all, of the uninstructed delegation of 17 from Connecticut are said to favor his renomination, as are some of the delegates from Delaware, New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Georgia and other states.

It has been predicted that the delegates from his native Vermont would call for his selection, and some of his friends have declared that more than 100 votes would go to Coolidge at the outset of the convention.

Although the two major political parties will not name their nominee and adopt platforms until June, the Socialists already have done both. Meeting in convention in New York, they selected Norman M. Thomas, a Protestant clergyman, editor and lecturer, who has long been identified with the Socialist movement, as their nominee for President. James H. Maurer of Pennsylvania, was named as his running mate.

Smith Has 301 Delegates Pledged; Hoover Leads Among the G. O. P.

WASHINGTON, April 21.

A total of 583 of the 1089 delegates to the Republican National Convention and of the 545 needed for nomination have been selected.

Only 442 of the 1100 Democratic Convention votes actually have been allotted, with 733½ necessary to nominate.

SAYS WILKINS MET WORST HAZARDS IN HISTORY OF FLYING

Companion on 1927 Expedition Asserts Uncharted Course Explorer Took Had Unusual Difficulties

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., April 21.—The hazard faced by Capt. George H. Wilkins and Lieut. Carl B. Eielson in flying from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Spitzbergen, "has never been exceeded by any in the history of aviation," A. M. Smith of the Detroit News, who accompanied Wilkins on his 1927 expedition, said today of the achievement.

"They took a course never before charted," Smith said, "and under Arctic conditions of ice and weather which are more difficult to overcome than any other known flying conditions in the world, with the one assumed exception of conditions to be met by Commander Byrd at the South Pole."

Pointing out the futility of any attempt to rescue the explorers had they become lost, Smith said flying by compass over the Arctic Ocean was impossible.

"The speed of a plane, and the sharp curve of variation of magnetic lines near the Pole, particularly in the region between the geographic pole and the mganetic pole, make constant and rapid correction of compass course necessary," he said.

The flight was undertaken for purely scientific observations and the sole object, the writer said, was to observe ocean currents, make soundings, get temperatures of the Arctic waters at different depths, obtain samples of the ocean bed and to explore land if any was encountered.

"There is a firm conviction in the minds of Arctic explorers and Eskimos that there is land, continental or an extensive archipelago, north of Barrow in the great Beaufort Sea," he said. "Eskimo traditions lend tales of inhabitants who once drifted in, or worked their way in from such a land.

"Capt. Wilkins hoped to throw light on this question of unexplored arctic land. But more than that, he hoped to gain valuable data which would aid science in its effort to provide more complete weather forecasts for the lower zones of the northern hemisphere.

"Leading meteorologists of the world long have contended that knowledge of arctic weather conditions and oceanography must be supplied and added to similar data from the south polar regions before a complete weather bureau service for the entire world can be supplied."

Nothing to Compare With It, Roald Amundsen Declares.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, April 21.—Roald Amundsen expressed gratification over the news of Wilkins' flight, and said:

"No flight has been made anywhere, at any time, which could be compared with it."

GOV. SMITH ENDS CAROLINA VISIT TO REST NEAR HOME

Southern Hospitality and Political Interest in Him Interfered With Vacation He Desired.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 22.—The World today prints the following dispatch from Frank L. Hopkins, its staff correspondent with Gov. Smith:

ASHEVILLE, N. C., April 21.—Gov. Smith today unexpectedly announced he would cut short his vacation in North Carolina tomorrow. He will leave Biltmore in the afternoon, en route for Washington, drop off there for an hour or two on Monday morning, and then go to Absecon, N. J. There he will continue his holiday at the Seaview Golf Club.

There is no doubt that he will leave the State a figure at least 100 per cent stronger both politically and personally than when he entered it.

The Governor told his hosts today that he was leaving the State because his golfing companions, James J. Riordan and William F. Kenny, had been called back to New York on business and he didn't care to remain without them. There have been, however, a variety of circustances which have contributed to his desire to accompany Kenny and Riordan back to New York. The hospitality which the Southern people have shown him and the interest which they have taken in him hive interfered with the sort of vacation he likes best.

Longer Line at His Door.

For the first few days it was possible for him to have virtually all the time for his favorite pursuits. The situation has been changing rapidly, however; each day has seen an increase in the length of the line assembling in front of the Biltmore Club just before noon to meet him.

Politicians have been coming from all parts of the State and from Kentucky and Tennessee. There have been requests for appointments which could not be denied. There has been a flood of hospitality which could not be declined without giving offense.

Persons close to Gov. Smith deny any political considerations are inducing him to leave the State. There has been no break in the favorable reaction which his presence has aroused. Just today State Corporation Commissioner William J. Lee, a strong political figure, came out for Smith, thus breaking with Senator Simmons. This means another powerful ally in the State convention.

The Smith wave in North Carolina appears to be approaching a crest. Those with the Governor agree there can be no harm in his leaving now. Some persons in Asheville think it would have been wiser politically for him to continue his vacation in another Southern state. But the Governor, who has made several visits to Absecon, likes that resort, particularly the salt-water baths. He still refuses to be placed in the position of going out on a search for votes. Local observers said that, while the North Carolinans would be disappointed, there was no danger of any serious resentment at his sudden departure. His stay was announced when he first arrived as an indefinite one.

Knoxville Editor Visits Him.

The Governor was joined today by Matthies Nicoll Jr., Health Commissioner of New York State. Dr. Nicoll, who is traveling through the South in connection with studies of rural health work, dropped off at Asheville for a game of golf. Others who visited the Governor at the club included E. J. Meenan, editor of the Knoxville (Tennessee) News, and Mayor Gallatin Roberts of Asheville. Meenan brought glowing reports of the strength the New York Governor is developing in Tennessee.

Gov. Smith was the guest this evening at a big reception given to him by Mr. and Mrs. John Francis Amherst Cecil—Mrs. Cecil is the daughter of the late George W. Vanderbilt—at their home, Biltmore House, not far from the Biltmore Club. The socially elect of this section of the country were there, as well as many men and women who are active in North Carolina politics. Tomorrow he has promised to drive out to Otelon Hospital for a visit to the 1200 war veterans who are patients there.

PARLEY ON FLOOD BILL FAILS; TILSON FORECASTS VETO

House chamber was deferred for the second consecutive day to permit the negotiations to proceed unhampered and also to enable the House Flood Control Committee to remain in almost continuous session to consider the question.

From the outset there was a difference of opinion over two of several revisions outlined last night by President Coolidge to House administration leaders at a White House conference.

The House supporters of the Senate bill declined to accept Mr. Coolidge's proposal that states assume the cost of levee rights of way along the spillways and floodways, and also the suggestion that the City of New Orleans and the State of Missouri shoulder the cost of damages on the Bonnet Carre spillway and the New Madrid River Bank floodway, respectively.

"Impossible," Reid Says.

Reid said the proposed revisions would block any comprehensive flood control project and were "impossible and unfair" to the Mississippi Valley. He added that the payment of damages for the new Madrid floodway would necessitate changes in the constitutions of Illinois and Missouri.

Local interests in the two states, he continued, were opposed to the floodway, and the Federal Government was the only agency which could acquire the needed lands and carry out the project successfully.

Reid characterized the proposed court procedure for redress to the floodway and spillway land owners as "re-enacting the constitution." He explained that in this specific case he felt that the Government should provide another means of redress than the Courts because of the unusual factors entering into the situation.

Agree on Some Points.

The group, however, did express willingness to revise the measure to meet other objections raised by the President, so that the Federal Government would be absodved from responsibility for damages suffered from floods, of a provision proposing the construction of reservoirs on tributaries and freedom from any damages that might be suffered by railroads in the carrying out of the control program.

The bill's suporters agreed, also, to a modification of the agency which would have supervision over the program to provide for a directing board composed of the chief of army engineers, the head of the Mississippi River Commission and one civilian engineer, to be appointed by the President.

At a meeting of the Flood Control Committee early in the day, at which were present both Tilson and Representative Garrett of Tennessee, the Democratic leader, the whole flood situation was discussed. The committee voted unanimously to have Tilson move on the floor that consideration of the Senate bill be deferred to the first of the week.

This the Republican leader did, but not until two Democratic members, Garner of Texas and Bankhead of Alabama, had inquired as to the nature of the many conferences being held over the measure.

Garner said the Senate had passed a bill by a vote of 70 to 0, but since that took place the President had issued a statement asking that the country be protected against the railroads, lumber and land interests, while Bankhead inquired as to what was taking place at the "subterranean conferences."

Tilson denied the conferences were subterranean, and said that in his opinion they might result in bringing about better flood legislation. He said that Garner, who made his remarks in the form of a question, had not made a fair inquiry.

THREE FILE FOR NOMINATION TO ST. LOUIS APPEALS COURT

Robert L. Sutton, Now Commissioner, Would Run for Judgeship; 2 Republican Contenders.

Three men have filed their candidacies at Jefferson City for nomination as Judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, whose jurisdiction covers St. Louis and several counties in the eastern part of Missouri. They are Robert L. Sutton, now a Commissioner of that tribunal, seeking the Democratic nomination, and Judge William Dee Becker, incumbent, and Henry G. Stein, St. Louis attorney, running for the Republican nomination.

Sutton was appointed as Commissioner by the Court more than four years ago. He previously practiced law at Troy, Mo., and was Prosecuting Attorney there for Lincoln County for two terms. He was born and reared on a Pike County farm and educated at the University of Missouri.

'ONE-MAN' BANK CASHIER ADMITS HE HID SHORTAGE

West Line, Mo., Man Tells of Juggling Accounts and Removing Ledger Sheets

SOLD BONDS LEFT BY DEPOSITORS

M. N. Stark in Statement Confesses He Allowed Oil Man Overdrafts of $50,000.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HARRISONVILLE, Mo., April 21.—Wrecking of the Bank of West Line, Cass County, the losses in which are estimated at approximately half the total resources, with untangling of the records still to be completed, is charged to the "one-man" management of Cashier M. N. Stark, in a report filed here by the State Finance Department with Prosecuting Attorney T. M. Haynes.

Stark has signed statements, which are in the possession of the department, admitting juggling of accounts, concealment of more than $60,000 in overdrafts, removal of ledger sheets to cover up the condition of the bank, sale of bonds left with the bank by customers for safekeeping, and other irregularities.

Many "One-Man Banks" Fail.

"One-man banks" have figured extensively in the number of bank failures in Missouri in recent years. Developments after failures, whether due to criminal irregularities or loose management, have shown the affairs of many of the banks were controlled by one officer, usually the cashier, with the directors exercising only perfunctory supervision.

Bank failures in the last four and one-half years total 204 most of them small banks. Fifteen banks have failed so far this year.

The Bank of West Line was the only depository in a village of less than 200 population near the Missouri-Kansas line.

Aside from the number of irregularities found, the failure of the bank disclosed the unusual situation of manipulation of the records to make it appear the bank was less than half of its actual size. In most failures where there are irregularities, the examiners find manipulation of the records to show more growth and a better condition than actually exists.

Concealed Size of Bank.

When the bank failed March 17, its statements showed total resources of $74,966 and deposits of $31,251. After examiners had reconstructed the accounts from a mass of uncredited items, and recovered a number of missing ledger sheets, the bank books showed total resources of $176,461 and deposits of $118,335.

When the bank closed Stark's books showed only $775 in overdrafts, but the examiners found a total of $86,091 in overdrafts. Of that amount the directors said $74,153 likely would be uncollectable and be a loss. The loss on the $176,461 book value of the assets was estimated at $89,009 in the official report. In addition, there is $25,653 in assets classed as doubtful, on which the loss could not be determined, and $24,487 in loans classed as slow or objectionable.

In signed statements given to the bank examiners, Stark blamed much of his trouble on deals in oil leases with a man named Jacob Weisser, of whom the directors said they knew virtually nothing. Stark said he became interested in Miami, Kan., oil leases with Weisser and kept advancing funds to him, covering his overdraft checks with transfers from other accounts.

Stark said he removed Weisser's sheet from the deposit ledger to conceal it from the directors and had not posted Weisser's checks for more than a year. He estimated Weisser's overdrafts at $50,000 or more.

Other statements by Stark covered manipulation of several accounts, including a discrepancy of $7000 in that of a relative; placing in the bank assets of a note he admitted he forged, bearing the name of E. G. Stark, a relative, to replace bad assets removed; that some notes carried as bank assets had been paid by the makers; that certificates of deposit had been issued without being recorded in the register, and that several thousand dollars in customers' bonds, left for safekeeping, had been sold by him without knowledge or consent of the owners.

Stark also signed statements that he had manipulated accounts he carried as administrator of an estate and as a guardian. In each instance, he declared, the manipulation of the records was for the benefit of the bank, to keep it operating. He denied he had received any of the proceeds of the operations.

Fire Drives Residents From Town.

MEXICO CITY, April 21.—A dispatch to the newspaper, Excelsior, from Tampico, says that more than 30 houses were destroyed by a fire that for a time threatened the entire town of San Miguel in the State of San Luis Potosi. The inhabitants, fearing that the town would be wiped out, fled to the neighboring hills.

ORDINANCE WOULD REMOVE PAGE BOULEVARD PARKWAY

Director of Streets Brooks Proposes to Meet $25,460 of Cost With Bond Issue Funds.

An ordinance to remove the central parked strip in Page boulevard and extend the asphalt paving for the full width of the street, to facilitate traffic movement, is to be introduced in the Board of Aldermen. The parkway extends for two blocks between Spring and Vandeventer avenues and for two blocks between Pendleton and Taylor avenues.

Property owners offered no objection to the removal plan, at a hearing called by Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks. He proposes to have $25,460 of the estimated expense met with bond issue funds and $8340 from general city revenue.

SERVICE UNNECESSARY, BUT LAWYERS GET $500

Widow Settles $1250 Claim on Contract for Collecting Insurance Money.

The claim which two attorneys had on the insurance money of Mrs. Victor Vincent Moore of 2095 North Fourteenth street for the death of her husband six months ago, has been settled for $500 to be divided between them, instead of $1250, or one-half of the insurance, the basis for an agreement the lawyers had signed with Mrs. Moore.

As has been told, the services of the lawyers were not necessary to collection of the claim, which had not been resisted in any way by the insurance company. Announcement of the settlement was made yesterday by Otto J. Schultz of 1330 Benton street, Mrs. Moore's neighborhood grocer, who volunteered to assist her without pay in preventing payment of the larger fee.

It became known that the insurance money was being held up more than a month ago, after the attorneys, Harry J. Faul, in the Title Guaranty Building, and George W. Barker, in the Fullerton Building, had notified the insurance company of the agreement. The legal department of the insurance firm ruled the agreement was binding, but the company resisted payment of the fee, which was considered a useless expenditure of the widow's insurance money.

A conference was held recently, at which Frank H. Sullivan, of counsel for the insurance firm, recommended that Mrs. Moore's lawyers accept the $500 fee. It is understood Paul will get $375 and Barker $125.

OKLAHOMAN HEADS SOCIETY OF EDITORS

Debate on Hypothetical News Story Held at National Convention.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Election of Walter M. Harrison, managing editor of the Oklahoma City Daily Oklahoman, as president, and discussion of a newspaper's duty to publish legitimate stories, although they may cause unhappiness, featured the closing session of the seventh annual convention of the American Society of Newspaper Editors here today.

Other officers elected by the Board of Directors were: Willis J. Abbott, Christian Science Monitor, first vice president; Grove Patterson, Baltimore Sun, second vice president; Marvin Creager, Milwaukee Journal, secretary, re-elected, and E. S. Beck, Chicago Tribune, treasurer.

Prior to the election of officers, the society elected the following members to the board of directors: Willis J. Abbott, George E. Miller, Detroit News; Fred Fuller-Shedd, Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, and Herbert Bayard Swope, New York World. Paul Bellamy, Cleveland Plain Dealer, and Donald J. Sterling, Portland Journal, were elected to short terms on the board to fill vacant posts.

Punishment Plan Held Over.

The society failed to take action on a report by the committee on revision of the constitution, in regard to a plan fostered to expel members who violate the ethics of the organization. The matter was left to be handled at future meetings. The report of the committee said: "It is convinced that nothing is to be gained for the society or for journalism by the prosecution of members for unprofessional conduct. There is nothing to be gained because such prosecutions would be futile. Ours is an institutional and not an individual profession."

The committee did recommend, however, that the board be empowered to take action on charges of disgraceful personal conduct by a member of the society, such as an act of a criminal nature, but no action was taken.

A debate on a hypothetical question between Walter M. Harrison and Paul Bellamy was held at the closing session, with the former taking the negative. The question was whether a newspaper should publish a certain story, based on a prominent business and social leader, who is active in semi-public charitable organizations, being in an accident wth a woman who was not his wife. The hypothetical problem sought to show that following the accident a reporter learned that the two were drinking, on the way from a road house and that police were willing to overlook the affair.

Decision to Publish Story.

After considering all questions involved, the family disgrace and unhappiness, and other features, it was the consensus among those present that the story should be published. It was agreed, however, that it should be published in a straight, matter-of-fact manner, devoid of sensationalism.

Ex-Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas, publisher of the Wichita Beacon, criticised newspapers for departing from the rule of publishing news and filling papers with sensational syndicated articles, instead of relying upon their own reporters and staff men.

Allen charged that the advertisers are "controlling the press," adding: "We've organized a detective bureau called the A. B. C., which has done more to sop the newspaper business than any other corporate interest ever born."

He criticised demands for increased circulation as responsible for the prevalence of "cheap" syndicated reading matter in the newspapers.

"I'm hoping," he said, "that we can go back to printing for the highest elements of our audience, instead of down to the lowest units. I'd be glad almost any time to get back to the editing of my own newspaper. I wouldn't care if all the syndicates went broke."

The annual dinner with William Allen White as assistant toastmaster closed the two-day session.

The honor guest at the dinner was Ambassador von Prittwitz-Gaffron of Germany, who declared the trend in modern affairs everywhere was toward better organization on a simplified basis.

"This new conception," he said, "applies to international relations as well, and in this connection the idea of outlawing war should be welcomed, as it means settlement of international conflicts by peaceful methods and replaces weapons of force by arguments of justice."

Senators Fess of Ohio and Vandenberg of Michigan, and Dr. Max Mason, president of the University of Chicago, also spoke.

"Enlightened public opinion is the most powerful thing in our civilization, and the power behind it is the editor's," Fess said. He cited the recent unanimous passage of the flood control bill by the Senate as an example of how public sentiment, reinforced by concise and logical argument, could facilitate legislation.

Senator Vandenberg, one of the founders of the society, characterized journalism as "a stewardship before it is ever a business."

Pilot and Plane Student Killed.

FRESNO, Cal., April 21.—George Faw, 26 years old, a pilot for the Beacon Airways, Inc., of Fresno, and Ray E. Dustin, 24, a student pilot, were killed near here today when their plane fell 600 feet.

ALTENHEIM RESIDENTS TO VISIT NEW QUARTERS

Most of the 65 men and women who live at the Good Samaritan Altenheim, Jefferson avenue and Dayton street, will have their first glimpse of their new home in the former Liberty Hospital building, Taylor and Washington boulevard, today, when those who are able to attend will be taken to the new quarters for the formal dedicatory exercises.

The ceremony, which will be conducted in both English and German, will be at 2:30 p. m. There will be services on each of the three floors of the building, with those in German conducted by the Rev. Dr. J. Irion on the first floor. The two other services will be in charge of the Rev. Dr. Paul Press, pastor of the Friedens Evangelical Church, and the Rev. Dr. K. Schneider of Immanuel Evangelical Church.

In the new home it is planned to care for 100 men and women. Capacity of the old home is 65. The hospital building, which has been remodeled, was bought for $252,000, of which $200,000 remains to be raised by subscription. A campaign to obtain that amount will begin May 1.

Stomach Disorders First Revealed by Coated Tongue

How to Stop Them Before They Get Serious

YOUR TONGUE is nothing more than the upper end of your stomach and intestines. It is the first thing your doctor looks at, no matter what seems to be ailing you. It tells at a glance the condition of your digestive system—and, as you know, the physicians say that 90 per cent of all sickness starts with stomach and bowel trouble.

Look at Your Tongue Every Morning!

A Coated Tongue Is a Dangerous Signal!

It's a sign of those digestive disorders which lead to so many kinds of serious illness. And it's a sign that you need Tanlac. This good old reliable medicine has helped thousands who were physical wrecks from stomach and bowel troubles—who had "tried everything" in vain and about given up hope.

That coated tongue tells you why the least exertion tires you out; why you have pains in the bowels, gas, sour stomach, dizzy spells. See how the first bottle of Tanlac helps you.

Tanlac contains no mineral drugs; it is made of barks, herbs and roots—nature's own medicines for the sick. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

Just See How These Sufferers Were Helped:

Mrs. Homer Marshall, R. D. 23, Parkersburg, W. Va.: "I was troubled with indigestion and had a poor appetite. I would get such weak spells I could not raise my arm. After three bottles of Tanlac I have a fine appetite, have gained 6 lbs. and wake up rested."

Mr. L. C. Coltrain of 259 Maryland Av., Memphis, Tenn.: "I had no appetite and couldn't retain food in my stomach. Tanlac soon cured my dizzy spells. I could retain my food and got so I could put in a full day's work."

Mrs. Edna F. Sawyers of 1229 Fourth Av., Huntington, W. Va.: "I was seriously troubled with gastritis, constipation and terrific headaches. I could hardly do half my housework. After two bottles of Tanlac I was eating everything, and gastritis hasn't troubled me again. Tanlac also did away with constipation completely."

E. H. GARY ART AUCTION BRINGS RECORD SUM

$2,297,763 Total of Two Days' Sale—$245,000 Paid for Houdon Baby Bust.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Previous art auction records for all time were broken today by the sale of the collection of the late Elbert H. Gary, which rolled up a total of $2,297,763. Until today the greatest total had been $2,207,866 from the Charles T. Yerkes sale in 1910.

Today's session in the American Art Galleries furnished the spectacle of rival bidders pushing up a small marble bust to $245,000 at which Sir Joseph Duveen retired and the coveted piece went to M. Knoedler & Co. Bidding had started at six figures. As it swiftly mounted spectators were spellbound in watching the two competitors, and at the end the victor was applauded for a triumph certain to be remembered as historic.

The bust is a chiseled portrait of Sabine Houdon done in white statuary marble in 1788 by her father, Jean Antoine Houdon, the most eminent French sculptor of his time. It is 17½ inches high and presents a child with delicate baby features and short hair, the head turned slightly toward the right shoulder and the lips pursed. She was 10 months old at the time. The marble remained in the possession of the family of Sabine Houdon until 1904 or 1905, when Jacques Doucet of Paris got it. Duveen brothers bought it at the Doucet sale in 1912 and sold it to Mr. Gary at a price not reported, but said to be less than half yesterday's auction figure.

Duveen Gets Palace Rugs.

The Gary palace rugs provided other theatrical moments at today's session. Sir Joseph Duveen outstayed other eager bidders for the choicest of them. He paid $106,000 for a Sixteenth Century rose Pompadour Ispahan carpet, 27 feet, 7 inches long by 15 feet, 10 inches wide; $50,000 for another Royal Ispahan of the same period, sold by him to Mr. Gary; $36,000 for a gold and silver Polonaise rug, and $31,000 for a similar weave that was once in the Yerkes collection. He bought also an Acajou and King Wood marqueterie boudoir table for $71,000, a Louis XV marqueterie table for $28,000, and a Beauvais tapestry carved and gilded suite made for Louis XVI for $60,000. These purchases totaled $382,000.

P. W. French & Co. paid $33,000 for a marble group, "Cupid at the Toilette of Vénus," by Etienne Maurice Falconet. French eighteenth century sculptor, $26,000 for another Falconet of Venus "Chastising Cupid;" $14,000 for an eighteenth Century acajou and tulipwood commode, and $10,000 for a sixteenth century Ispahan rug of rose red and turquoise. Parrish-Watson paid $30,000 for two sixteenth century silk Polanaise rugs.

Library on Sale Tomorrow.

Sale of the Gary effects will end Monday when his library will be offered. There are 336 offerings of library sets, fine bindings, sporting books and choice miscellaneous.

Outstanding items comprise a complete set of Annals of Sporting and Fancy Gazette, with Aiken and Cruikshank plates; a first edition of the Decameron in English; a leaf of the manuscript of Conrad's "Chance;" engravings of Constable's landscapes; an original leaf from the 42-line Guttenberg Bible; a Sun dial edition of Conrad; the first American Notes, and a set of the first editions of Symonds.

THREATENED WITH BOMBING FOR PARKING AUTO IN STREET

Isidore Horwitz Turns Letters Over to Police; Promises to Move Machines.

A warning letter, on which was pasted a newspaper headline about a recent bombing, was turned over to police yesterday by Isidore Horwitz of 5840 Ridge avenue, with the explanation that he would remove a sedan and a touring car from the street in front of his home as soon as he could repair them sufficiently to move.

Under the headline was written: "If you don't want this to happen to your house you better remove those junk machines from in front of your yard. If you don't take them away you'll be sorry, as the neighbors have stood it long enough with your turning the street into a Seventh street junkyard.

"If you don't take away soon, look out for your family and house. BEWARE."

TERMINAL FREIGHT TRAFFIC HEAVIER THAN IN APRIL, 1927

148,652 Loaded Cars Interchanged as Against 134,126 in Corresponding Period Last Year.

Terminal Railroad records of freight interchanged between railroads here indicate better business in the first three weeks of April this year than in the corresponding period last year. There was an exchange of 148,652 loaded freight cars so far this month, compared with 134,126 last year, an increase of 14,526.

Henry Miller, president of the Terminal, said the increased freight movement indicated that a recession in business, as shown by the same index, in the last four months of 1927, was only a temporary lull. The Terminal expects to handle more freight this year than last, and the volume in 1927 was exceeded only by that of 1926, the company's record year.

FLYERS' MEMORIAL ON SEINE

Americans to Visit France to Dedicate It July 4.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 21.—More than 250 former members of the Lafayette Escadrille, and relatives of those who died in that fighting unit during the war, are coming from America to France for dedication of the Escadrille memorial July 4.

The memorial, a triumphed arch and crypt or sanctuary, where the bodies of 24 of the Escadrille's dead will rest, stands in an 11-acre glade in the beautiful park of St. Cloud overlooking the Seine. It is considered one of the most imposing war memorials in all of Europe.

H. M. BIXBY WILL LEAD BERLIN-MOSCOW PARTY

Commerce Chamber Chairman and Others to Make Air Cruise This Summer.

Harold M. Bixby, chairman of the board of the Chamber of Commerce, will head a delegation in an airplane flight from Berlin to Moscow this summer for the purpose of studying aviation development in the Soviet republic, Stanley Clark, chairman of the Air Board, announced yesterday.

The flight will be one of several side trips to be taken by members of the board on their European trip during the summer. Bixby's party will leave the main party at Amsterdam, stop at Friedrichshafen to view the giant dirigible L-127, under construction there, stop at Berlin and then continue to Moscow.

Another party, headed by Carl F. G. Meyer, will fly from Berlin to Riga, Norway, to inspect aviation routes there, while Clarke and a third section will go to Coddingham, England, to view the dirigible RS-100 and to extend its builders an invitation to visit St. Louis with the huge ship when it crosses the Atlantic next fall.

About 75 men and women have made reservations for the European trip.

Your tongue is the best barometer of your physical condition. Look at it every morning before breakfast. If it is coated with white, yellow or brown coloring, and does not have a clean red appearance you are constipated and not well.

Heed Its Warning

Constipation causes more ailments than all other diseases, and is the result of not having a daily bowel movement. Sick-headache, indigestion, biliousness and sallow complexion follow. Ask your druggist for a 25c red paper-package of CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS "Safe Laxative". Take a dose to-night and continue one pill after each meal. Don't stop—until your tongue is clean. Flyers Found Baldonnel Ideal Field for Ocean Flight Takeoff, Baron Von Huenefeld Asserts

Help of Irish Free State Government Praised in Finding Suitable Airdome by Backer of Bremen.

By BARON GUNTHER VON HUENEFELD,
Commander-in-Chief of the German Junkers Airplane Bremen on Her Trans-Atlantic Flight.

(Copyright, 1928.)

FOURTH INSTALLMENT.

By Airplane to Seven Islands and Murray Bay and by Land Wire to New York.

GREENLY ISLAND, April 21.—We have now covered the general ground of the flight from Baldonnel to Greenly itself and have spoken of the difficulties which beset our path when Koehl and I were arranging for the Bremen and making our plans for the flight from east to west across the Atlantic.

Today it is my intention to tell America of the wonderful assistance which those wonderful Irish people gave us in making possible our great adventure and of the events in Ireland which preceded our hopoff from Balldonnel when, after missing a wooly Irish sheep by a hair's breadth, as we took off, we were enabled to see the fruition of our dreams by reaching the mainland of America.

Plans Start From Ireland.

To make our flight as safe as possible, Koehl and I had determined to make our start from Ireland and, with this in view, I caused inquiry to be made to the Irish Government through my friend Herr Kloser, who is well known in Ireland and is an officer of the North German Lloyd. The inquiries were answered in the most friendly manner imaginable.

In fact the reception to the proposal to use Ireland as the base for our flight met with such warmth that, after the difficulties we had encountered in Germany, we felt greatly encouraged. Not only did the Irish authorities give us both starting and landing permission, but they placed at our disposal all possible facilities for the flight.

When the Bremen was fully arranged for and my financing arrangements complete, therefore, Capt. Koehl and I, together with Mr. Kloser, visited Ireland at the end of February to study the field conditions personally. We had been giving consideration to the use of the flying field at Oranmore, near Galway, but, after inspection, it was decided it had been in disuse so long that it would strain my limited resources past the utmost to render it available for flying purposes again. Oranmore was in such condition that it would have been impossible for a machine so heavily loaded as the Bremen had to be for her flight to America to take off.

Finds First Field Unsuitable.

After our inspection, the Irish Government, in most friendly manner, intrusted a survey of conditions at the field to Capt. Heron of the Irish flying service. His report confirmed our view. Oranmore would not be suitable as the Bremen's takeoff base. So we continued our examinations.

Soon Capt. Heron informed us he considered the field at Baldonnel, near Dublin, quite suitable for our purpose. This is a military field. It was from this field that, in September, 1927, Commandant Fitzmaurice of the Irish Air Force and the English Aviation Captain, McIntosh, left for a flight to America from which they wereforced to return in a few hours on account of the storms, just as we were forced to return in August. This is my own comrade Fitzmaurice, the "Fitz" who did such gallant work on our successful flight to Greenly.

So we decided to make Baldonnel the starting point. The reception which Koehl and I received from the Irish aviation corps was overwhelmingly friendly and comradely. Koehl made a study of the field and decided, with Heron, that it was absolutely suitable. Together we visited Baldonnel and were entertained by Fitzmaurice and his brother officers.

With Fitzmaurice, we inspected the runway and flying terrain. There could be no doubt that Baldonnel would be the ideal place from which to take-off on our flight to America.

Flyers Return to Germany.

Koehl and I were overjoyed. At last everything seemed to be turning to daylight, after long months of darkness. We bade our friends at Baldonnel adieu and departed for Germany to complete our arrangements for our Bremen and the departure for Ireland.

The return from Ireland was made on the Lloyd Liner Muenchen. As we sailed from Queenstown for Bremen our joy, perhaps, was dampened slightly by the zephyr-like quality of the mild east wind and the brightly shining stars. Koehl and I felt that such a night as this would have been ideal for us to be winging our way across the ocean. We felt confident we could have made our journey safely under such ideal skies, but returned to Bremen happy men.

Of course we had to begin again the work of preparation with great care. The machine, after its winter sleep, was thoroughly overhauled. The motor was examined in all its details and, in the meantime, I chartered a machine of the same type as the Bremen for Koehl, so he might make very important test flights at Berlin's Tempelhof field, together with his former non-commissioned officer pilot, Spindler.

Friends Warned of Danger.

The public again paid attention to us. Again the newspapers urged against the "folly" of further flight attempts. Again the wiseacres bemoaned our madness. But we were adamant in our purpose, paying no attention to warnings after warnings of well-meaning friends and journals against our dream plans.

The press discussed the technical questions of such a flight. The option of using a seaplane or a landplane for the voyage was the subject of much discussion. At other times the matter of motors was under journalistic consideration. Should we use one motor or several motors in our plane? But Koehl and I had our own plans and we paid no attention to the warnings of those who sought to deter us.

The question of motors, of course, is an important one. It is one to which I shall return at a later point in these articles, though my point of view may be obvious by virtue of my own apparent love for the single-motored Bremen, an affection which Koehl shares, as I am certain Fitzmaurice does, too.

Stuck to Own Plans.

On this important question of power, however, we were not influenced by the clamor of public opinion. We had our plans and to those plans we were pledged to adhere, regardless of the cost to ourselves.

So, in the face of this dispute in the press of Germany, we left from our own field in the fatherland and, after nine hours of smooth sailing, landed on Baldonnel.

Koehl made a perfect landing at our home-away-from-home, and we taxied the Bremen into the hangar. The reception of the Irish authorities, both military and civilian, was very hearty. We became, at once, the guest of the Irish aviation corps and received assistance, cooperation and hospitality which could not be rivaled. Everything that could be done for us was done. Nothing was too good for us.

My comrade and I were overwhelmed by this display of cordial friendship. We discussed the way in which we might repay all this kindness. At length we decided that the best manner in which it could be done would be to extend to Commander Fitzmaurice, the officer in command at Baldonnel, an invitation to take part in the flight of the Bremen as second pilot with Koehl.

Fitzmaurice Decides to Go.

Commander Fitzmaurice was visibly moved by our offer and asked for a short time for consideration. He had many things to think of and to weigh against each other, as any man must have but, within the time asked for, he replied to us that he would like to join us.

Thus we had found what we are used to call our German-Irish crew. Koehl and Fitzmaurice began at once to organize the supplies for the flying and navigation of the Bremen during our journey.

Together they ascended into the air and returned after test flights. Then Fitzmaurice went up on solo tests of his own. The two pilots, than whom there are no better in the world, fitted into each other's flying habits like hands into old gloves. We were elated and felt that the Providence which had seemed to be against us in certain of our darker days in the Fatherland had smiled upon us under the sunny skies of the Emerald Isle.

So the days passed and lengthened as we studied weather reports—Koehl, Fitzmaurice and I—and waited, hoping for the news that would tell us conditions were as favorable as we might expect and that the time had come when we might mount our Bremen on the runway of Baldonnel and be on our way to the western world.

Good Use Made of Delay.

These were not easy days of waiting, those of the beginning of April. Hourly we scanned the skies. Several times each day we peered through the reports of the Weather Bureau, looking for our sign. But it was as well that we had to wait, for it enabled our two pilots, Koehl and Fitzmaurice, to learn to know each other thoroughly and to become acquainted with each other's methods of airmanship and to know our other gallant comrade, the Bremen itself, better than if we had gone away in haste.

Fitzmaurice, who has flown so many hours that he cannot count them, was delighted with our craft, declaring it to be the loveliest bird he had ever flown, so light to the touch and so beautifully balanced by those amazing people of the Junkers factory that one could fly it with nothing more than two fingers on the controls.

At length came the night of April 11 and, with it a report that the weather, which we had begun to consider against us for all time, had turned in our favor and that we might expect nothing but sunny skies and favorable winds until we had reached the Grand Banks, where storm conditions and fogs would prevail.

Flyers Decide on Takeoff.

We consulted and decided the time had come for our flight. The Bremen was given a last going-over to ascertain that everything was in readiness for her long journey. All tests proved her to be ready and airworthy, so while the world was still under its cloak of darkness, our craft was wheeled to the runway by the mechanics.

Rations and all the requisites of the flight were placed inside the cabin and the Bremen's crew climbed into their places.

The engine was started and warmed up for the takeoff.

Hand clasps and farewell greetings were exchanged with our good friends of Ireland as the sun crept up over the horizon. And so we were off, away from those splendid people whose hospitality had meant so much to us and to whose warm friendliness and comradeship is due much of the credit for what the Bremen has accomplished.

Found Friends in Ireland.

We had come to Ireland suffering from some sense of disappointment, Koehl and I, but we left it feeling that here in this island which guards the gateway to the Atlantic we had found, not only a comrade to join us in our great adventure, but other true friends who believed in our ambition and whose own desire for the advancement of aviation enabled them to understand the dream that was in the hearts of all three of us.

Had it not been for the hospitality and cordial help of those splendid Irish friends at Baldonnel the story of Koehl and Fitzmaurice and me might have been otherwise.

To them, if for nothing else, both Koehl and I offer unending thanks for the fact that it was through this Irish hospitality that we met our comrade, Fitzmaurice, who has played so magnificient a role in the success of our flight from Europe to America in the Bremen.

314th Engineers Organize.

A permanent organization of the 314th Engineers and Train, which was with the Eighty-ninth Division in the World War, was effected last Tuesday night in St. Louis, and Saturday, Oct. 13, was fixed as a date for a reunion of the regiment in this city. At Tuesday's meeting officers were elected as follows: Henry I. Cohn, president; W. D. Stuart Jr., Columbia, Mo., vice president; Edwin Meinicke, secretary; W. J. Flynn, treasurer; Walter F. Stuart, historian; A. M. Auckley, custodian of records, and E. R. Bloss, Macon, Mo., outpost representative.

REED GOING SOUTH INTO VIRGINIA AND FLORIDA IN MAY

Opinion in Washington Is That Senator Will Open Direct Attack on Gov. Smith During Tour.

LEAVES CAPITAL TUESDAY NIGHT

Speaks at Lewisburg, W. Va., Then in the Old Dominion—At Birthplace Mansfield, O., Friday.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 21. — The Reed-for-President organization leaders, professing themselves to be undisturbed by the claims of strength advanced by the supporters of Gov. Smith of New York, here today outlined definite plans for a continuation of Reed's speaking tour, Florida and Virginia having been added to the states in which Reed will make a determined fight for delegates.

Branding the Smith claims as "propaganda in an attempt to stampede the convention for Smith even before the delegates are chosen," Charles M. Howell, Kansas City lawyer, who is the strategist behind the Reed plans, said today that after going over the reports from nearly all states, he was convinced that Smith would not be nominated and that Reed would be.

Denies Smith Makes Headway.

"Never in the history of American politics has there been such an effort to stampede a convention two months before it convened and when less than one-third of the delegates had been chosen," Howell said. "Except for the two Dakotas, Smith has not won a state which we did not concede to him from the first, and as to the Dakotas, Reed will get more votes in those two states than Smith will get in Arkansas, which has been claimed for him. While the Smith forces are claiming California for him, information which I received yesterday is that their own inside opinion is that they will not exceed six votes for Smith out of the California delegation of 26. Reed is assured of at least 20 votes in the State, and he may get all of them.

"It has reached a point now after the spasm of propaganda that Democrats are remembering that it not only is necessary to nominate a candidate, but it is necessary to elect him if the nomination is to mean anything. It seems to be conceded everywhere that corruption will be the campaign issue. That arises from two causes. Reed has made it the issue, and with that the issue, it is hard to understand how the delegates will take the standard away from the man who has created the issue and place in the hands of someone else."

Reed May Open Fire on Smith.

While some of the plans of the Reed organization are being guarded, the belief prevails here that within the next week Reed will open a direct fight on Smith. The necessity of stopping the Smith wave, if Reed is to have even a chance in the convention, is as apparent to the Reed organization as it is to everybody else in Washington. The newspapers of the East are filled with the Smith claims and have been for weeks, Smith supporters being quoted to the effect that Smith may even be nominated by acclamation. Some of the papers are even discussing the vice presidency, arguing that the presidency is settled. This has had an effect on the Democratic members of Congress.

It is the contention of the Reed supporters that there is no basis for the broad Smith claims, and that the last-ditch opposition to Smith is sufficient to prevent him from getting within 100 votes of the two-thirds required for nomination.

Reed conferred here with Howell, Senator Hawes, Lee Meriwether, manager of Reed's Washington headquarters, and with other Democrats. As a result of a canvass of the entire situation, it was announced that notwithstanding the impression attempted to be creaed by the Smith publicity bureau, the prospects for Reed were shown to be brighter than at any time since he began his campaign and plans for further vigorous campaigning were made.

Leaves Washington Tuesday.

Reed will depart from Washington Tuesday night for Lewisburg, W. Va., where he will speak Wednesday afternoon. That evening he will go into the home congressional district of the late President Wilson, speaking at 7:30 o'clock in Covington, Va., and at 9 o'clock in Clifton Forge, Va. He will speak in Huntington, W. Va., Thursday, and Friday in Mansfield, O., where he was born. At noon Saturday he will address the City Club in Cleveland and in the evening will speak in Akron, O.

He will go to Florida the first week in May, speaking in Jacksonville, Tampa and Miami. On his return North he probably will go into North Carolina for one more speech and into Virginia for several.

CAR MEN'S UNION TO SEEK ANOTHER WAGE CONFERENCE

Will Inform Company Officers That Men Voted Unanimously Against Pay Reduction.

The Wage Committee of the street carmen's union will ask the Public Service Co. officers tomorrow to set a time for another wage conference, at which the union officers will officially inform the company that the carmen at a special meeting Friday voted unanimously against a decrease in wages of about 9 per cent, proposed by the company.

The carmen have calculated the average wage of their 4800 member-workmen under the present contract with the company at $36 a week. The company has figured the union demands would increase the average employe's wages $12.50 a month. The union demands were rejected by the company partly on the ground that the revenue does not justify an increase. Figures prepared by both sides in support of their demands are being analyzed by both sides and will be the subject of discussions at meetings to be held this week.

By the Associated Press.

RENO, Nev., April 21.—Richard Barthelmess, motion picture actor, and Mrs. Jessica Haynes Sargent of Reno, formerly of New York, were married here last night by Judge Bartlett, it became known today. Barthelmess' first wife was Mary Hay, dancer. They were divorced. Mrs. Sargent was divorced from Harry Brooks Sargent, New York broker, in Reno last January.

PLEA OF DAUGHTER SLAYER

Seattle Prosecutor Opposes Review in Supreme Court.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Prosecuting Attorney Colving of Seattle, Wash., filed in the Supreme Court today a brief opposing the review asked for by Wallace C. Gaines, convicted of murdering his daughter.

The Supreme Court recently dismissed Gaines' appeal and gave him until Monday to show why it should, in its discretion, grant him a review.

A Greater Bank To Serve A Greater City

The Consolidation of FRANKLIN BANK AND AMERICAN TRUST COMPANY

Tomorrow, Monday, April 23rd, 1928, the Franklin-American Trust Company, a consolidation of the Franklin Bank and the American Trust Company, will open its doors to the public, as a new institution with Capital of $2,000,000.00, Surplus of $1,000,000.00, and with resources of over $30,000,000.00, and backed by the combined traditions, the past experience and the years of service of two old established banking institutions.

While the Franklin Bank and the American Trust Company, on that date, will cease as separate entities yet in consolidated form and united in strength they will continue to preserve not only the name but also the spirit of the former organizations. In the new Franklin-American Trust Company, the customers of both of the institutions will find the same quality of service, the same personal treatment to which they have been accustomed. They will find the same familiar faces of men and women who served them in their former bank and who will continue to serve them in the new one.

They will have at their disposal an institution which, while twice the size of either the Franklin Bank or the American Trust Company will be as ready and willing to serve its smallest customers as it is ready and able to serve its largest.

By this consolidation, the Franklin-American Trust Company will possess broader facilities for service and will be able to offer the personnel, equipment and resources to meet all your financial requirements.

The growth of St. Louis with its increasing industries and steadily expanding business places an obligation upon its financial institutions to meet the enlarged financial needs of its growth. In response to that demand, the Franklin-American Trust Company places its services before the people of St. Louis and welcomes you to its new banking offices on the southwest corner of Seventh and Locust Streets.

In "Franklin," the new institution, honors the Father of American Thrift, representative of economy, hard-work and clear thinking. In "American," it honors a name that signifies the best in life; liberty, security, prosperity and opportunity.

SPECIAL NOTICE

The Savings Department of the Franklin-American Trust Company will be open every Saturday afternoon and evening until 7:00 P. M.—and on weekdays until 2:00 P. M.

Gas Makes W Cross and

"When I ate I would bloat up with stomach gas. I couldn't get any sleep and was cross and nervous. Adlerika has given me real relief." —Mrs. M. Meyer.

The simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, saline, etc., (known as Adlerika) has a most surprising DOUBLE action. First, it acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel (most medicines act on lower bowel only) and removes foul matter that often poisoned the system for months. Second, Adlerika clears all GAS and sourness from stomach and bowels, bringing INSTANT relief from stomach trouble. And in addition, Adlerika removes metabolic poisons which cause neuritis, rheumatism, etc.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation if you write to me. Eugene M. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of the rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

MINE UNION HEADS SAY COMMUNISTS BACK RIVAL BODIES

Executive Board Lays Disaffection in Ranks of Coal Workers to Radical Influence.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 21. — The International Executive Board of the United Mine Workers, after a series of meetings behind closed doors here this week to discuss disaffection within the miners' union, today denounced the Save-the-Union-Committee and the Pennsylvania-Ohio Relief Committee as "Communist organizations" and ordered all of their members expelled from the miners' organization.

The two bodies were described as "dual organizations to the United Mine Workers of America," and as the union's constitution prohibits a member from affiliating with such a group, all local unions were instructed by the executive board to close the doors on those constituting the two organizations.

Communist Financing Charged.

"These four units," said a resolution adopted by the international officers, "co-ordinate and are working together for the consummation of their purpose. All four organizations are controlled by communist influence and some, we believe, are financed by communist money and nonunion coal operators' money."

Among the individuals condemned were William Z. Foster, who was described as "head of the communist movement in America"; Alfred Wageknecht, relief director of the Pennsylvania-Ohio Relief Committee and "a leading communist"; John Brophy, Patrick Toohey, Powers Hapgood, Anthony Minerich and Vincent Kamenovich, other officers of the dual organizations, and the "anthracite president," Stanley Dziengielewski, and secretary, George Papcum.

Says Foster Outlined Policy.

Foster, the union statement said, outlined in the April issue of "Labor Unity, an avowed communist magazine," the policy to be followed later by the Save-the-Union Committee, which, at a convention in Pittsburg April 1, adopted the slogan, "Lewis Must Go," meaning that "John L. Lewis must be driven out of office as president of the United Mine Workers and a communist elected in his place."

While the Pennsylvania-Ohio Relief Committee "purports to supply food and other relief to miners on strikes in coal-mining fields," the statement added, they "issue relief only to persons who subscribe to the policies of that committee and its policies are directly in opposition to the policies of the United Mine Workers."

As to Wageknecht, it was said he issued an appeal to the workers of foreign countries for aid and one line in the appeal was "long live the International."

"Backed by Nonunion Oowners."

"It is a well-known fact," the statement went on, "that in nonunion towns, closed to officers and members of the United Mines Workers, the emissaries of these dual organizations have free access in order that they migh ply their nefarious work. In fact, nonunion operators see to it that their nonunion employes are supplied with copies of various circulars and newspapers published by the aggregation."

The Pittsburg Coal Co., one of the largest nonunion operators in the soft coal field, was charged with financing "a so-called labor paper called the National Labor Tribune to fill its columns with attacks upon the United Mine Workers and its officers."

Similar material, it was alleged, now was being printed in the Coal Digger, published by the Save-the-Union Committee and "distributed among the strike-breakers of the Pittsburg Coal Co. and other nonunion companies as a substitute for the National Labor Tribune."

Warning of Expulsion.

Declaring the Senate Coal Investigating Committee had developed that representatives of the dual organizations had called meetings of children in an effort to destroy their faith in God, the union officers said the "church and the labor unions are the American bulwarks against communism and they must be destroyed if the soviet propaganda is to be successful."

Failure of any local affiliated with or subservient to these dual organizations to sever their connection with them, the edict read, will "bring on themselves the penalties provided for by the Constitution of the United Mine Workers of America."

47 Nonunion Mines Cut Wages.

By the Associated Press.

BUTLER, Pa., April 21.—Owners of 47 nonunion mines in Butler County today announced a cut of $1 a day for day men and a reduction of approximately the same figure for miners working on a tonnage basis. The operators said the wage cut was necessary to meet southern competition. The general pay reduction was from $6 to $5 for miners working by the day and from 66 cents to 60 cents a ton for men paid by the ton. Outside labor was cut from $5 to $4 a day and inside from $6 to $5.

MARINES PURSUE NICARAGUANS

Detachment Hunts for Band That Raided Mining District.

By the Associated Press.

BLUEFIELDS, Nicaragua, April 21.—A large band, believed to be under the leadership of Augustino Sandino, today invaded the mining district of Tunky, northwest of Prinzapolca. A detachment of Marines under Lieut. John A. Tebbs has left the latter place in pursuit of the raiders.

On a previous occasion when Sandinistas appeared in the neighborhood, the inhabitants of the mining towns fled at their approach. It is reported that several employes of the mining companies were captured by the rebels today but communication with the district is difficult.

Santa Fe Value $580,613,098.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Final valuation of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad was fixed at $580,613,098, as of June 30, 1916, in a supplemental report issued today by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The original valuation was increased by $1,458,000 because of inclusion of the Grand Canyon Railroad and hotel properties.

U. S. NOT LIKELY TO FAVOR FRENCH ANTI-WAR PLAN

No Official Comment Pending Study, but Many Restrictions Raise Doubt of Acceptance.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 21. — France's suggested treaty for the renunciation of war is generally deemed here to be so hedged with restrictions that it will prove unsatisfactory to the United States. There has been no comment from the State Department, however, pending a thorough study of the document.

France has sent the same draft treaty also to Great Britain, Germany, Italy and Japan.

The French draft consists of six articles under which France seems to be willing to condemn war as an instrument of her individual spontaneous and independent political action, but apparently reserves the right to go to war in agreement with any power or under the provisions of the Covenant of the League of Nations or under any registered with the league.

Text of French Draft.

The text of the treaty proposed by France says:

Article 1. The high contracting parties without any intention to infringe upon the exercise of theirrightsof legitimate self-defense within the framework of existing treaties, particularly when the violation of certain of the provisions of such treaties constitutes a hostile act, solemnly declare that they condemn recourse to war and renounce it as an instrument of national policy; that is to say, as an instrument of individual, spontaneous and independent political action taken on their own initiative and not action in respect of which they might become involved through the obligation of a treaty such as the Covenant of the League of Nations or any other treaty registered with the League of Nations. They undertake on these conditions not to attack or invade one another.

Article 2. The settlement or solution of all disputes or conflicts of whatever nature or origin which might arise among the high contracting parties or between any two of them shall never be sought on either side except by pacific means.

Article 3. In case one of the high contracting parties should contravene this treaty, the other contracting Powers would ipso facto be released with respect to that party from their obligations under this treaty.

Prior Pacts Not Affected.

Article 4. The provisions of this treaty in no wise affects the rights and obligations of the contracting parties resulting from prior international agreements to which they are parties.

Article 5. The present treaty will be offered for the accession of all the Powers and will have no binding force until it has been generally accepted unless the signatory Powers in accord with those that may accede hereto shall agree to decide that it shall some into effect regardless of certain abstentions.

The sixth article merely deals with the technical phases of ratification and deposit of the treaty.

58 MAKE RESERVATIONS FOR GOOD WILL TOUR TO KANSAS

Will Leave St. Louis May 6, Sponsored by Salesmanagers' Bureau of Chamber of Commerce.

Fifty-eight persons have made reservations for the annual good will tour of salesmanagers' bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, which will be in Kansas, leaving here Sunday, May 6. It is anticipated the party will number 100.

Three men specializing in speechmaking at the towns and cities where the tourists will be entertained are to make the trip. They are R. Jules Field, an Associate City Counselor, representing Mayor Miller, as he did on last year's journey in Oklahoma, and John B. Edwards and Lawrence McDaniel, attorneys. Lionel Kalish is chairman of the tour.

It has been observed that these formal visits into the city's trad. territory not only have a good general effect, but achieve considerable publicity for St. Louis in the places where stops ars made.

Records show that 28 similar tours have been made by St. Louis business men in the past. They were begun years ago by the old St. Louis Merchants' Association and later taken over by the St. Louis Salesmanagers' Association. In 1911 that group was absorbed in the Chamber of Commerce, which kept up the tours until 1917. Then war and high costs which followed it prevented resumption until 1922. Since then trips have been made in Texas, Illinois, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Missouri and Oklahoma.

Mexican Bandits Raid U. S. Mine.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Mexican bandits attacked the Los Lugos mines of the American-owned Pacific Mining Co. at Mezquital Del Oro, Zacatecas, April 17, and stole the payroll money, E. R. Lowry, United States Consul at Guadalajara, reported to the State Department today. Military authorities are searching for the brigands.

OLD HYMN SERVICES TONIGHT IN PRESBYTERIAN CHURCHES

"Old Hymn Song Night" will be observed in all churches of the Presbytery of St. Louis tonight, as a feature of the Presbyterian Loyalty Crusade, now i nits fifth week. Congregational singing will be emphasized and only the favorite, old-time hymns will be sung.

Next Thursday evening, at Kingshighway Presbyterian Church, a campaign to raise $217,000 with which to assist the weaker churches of the Presbytery to lift debts and finance their building needs will be launched. This campaign is a direct outgrowth of the loyalty crusade and the same executive committee will direct it.

Black runners and camels brought it to them in the heart of the AFRICAN JUNGLE!

On safari—the famous explorers and big game hunters, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, in one of their African camps. In choosing supplies, they selected Maxwell House above all other coffees

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson tell how they obtained America's favorite coffee on their famous hunting trip

FOUR years in the heart of Africa, hunting big game! What amazing adventures Mr. and Mrs. Johnson had! What wonderful motion pictures these famous explorers made of the naked savages and wild animals! "Simba" is one of the most thrilling dramatic treats ever offered America—see this spectacular film at the American Theatre.

Far from civilization the explorers went. Their lives depended on their baggage. With every ounce precious, carried man-back through the wilderness, only essentials could be taken.

Carefully they chose their supplies, the one best of every kind, say Mr. and Mrs. Johnson. Above all other coffees they selected that rich blend which is America's favorite coffee—Maxwell House!

"Wishing to secure the best possible coffee," Mr. Johnson writes, "we selected Maxwell House. It was delivered to us by camels and black runners throughout our stay in Africa."

The blended richness of many fine coffees is in Maxwell House—a touch of difference that has taken the country by storm. One sip of this fragrant, mellow blend is a new experience in good living. Ask for Maxwell House at your grocer's. In round sealed tins.

Reminiscences of Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr.
The writer of this extraordinary series tells of the days when the incomparable Teddy, himself, organized the activities of his own home.
Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., who went to Sagamore Hill at Oyster Bay as a young bride, has a hundred amusing stories to tell of her difficulty in growing accustomed to the strenuous Roosevelt life.
Mrs. Roosevelt turns the searchlight of her wonderful memory upon the crowded, colorful days of the Roosevelt home. Real human interest stories about this intensely human family—told for the first time.
"My Aunt Alice"
Mrs. Roosevelt, in the second installment of the series, tells an amusing story of how her Aunt Alice was swept along by circumstances, and even then emerged with flying, if false, colors.

BARON, WAITING TO FLY, TURNED TO WRITING

Poetic Testament Composed Just Before Takeoff of Bremen Made Public.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 21.—Poet and dreamer, albeit a daring adventurer, Baron von Huenefeld spent the last few hours at Baldonnel airdrome, before the take-off of the Bremen, composing a poetic effusion of the emotions that surged within him.

Reports from Labrador say that the Baron wrote poetry in the cockpit of the Bremen while the plane was plunging blindly toward its goal, and it was to poetry that he turned on April 11, the day before the take-off. Included in the testament that he wrote on that day is a poem which was rhymed in the original German, but was translated into free verse by the Baron's agent. It is called, "Before the Start," and follows:

"Never before in my life did I sigh a deeper breath of relief than when the ocean flight was financially secured, I realized that the way was free for me to take an active part in a feat which surely required energy, endurance and daring spirit.

"Never for a moment did I doubt that the scientific and technical arrangements were perfect thanks to the iron will inspired by the highest idealism which emanated from Prof. Junkers and his co-operators and which dominated the whole of the Junkers works. I never doubted because I had been in the closest contact with flying since 1913.

"Tomorrow!

"Tomorrow, we shall start on our great journey, after a trying period of expectancy, we have entered upon the stage of certainty. How the last word lies with the God of weathers and to confide in Him is the duty of every sincere sportsman.

"It is difficult to free onesself in these hours of feverish expectation from reviewing the past. The whole of our life, or at least those parts which had meant something to us, pass by. I am trying to bring into verses the feelings which distinguish our atmosphere above all others.

Evening glides down to earth;
And the daylight is slowly dying,
Quietly darkness appeases
Excited and anxious hearts.

Suddenly eye-dreams are broken,
Listen, how strangely a sound
O'er hedges, gardens and meadows,
Nears with a roar and is gone.

Glorious dominant victor,
High over earth and sea,
Plots his course the flyer,
Dreams long dreamt come true.

Propellers that roar out a greeting
Over pastures, fields and woods—
To live, means to hope and believe in Thyself and thy days to come.

"Slowly the waves of relentlessness ebb down during the hours of our deliberations. The weather and ways are being discussed with the same quietness as technical details. The atmosphere is as though loaded with electricity, but this electrical tension of the last hours is not exhausting, but makes you feel that you take part in life Numerous questions which are being put to us could easily make us falter, but they show you the wide interest taken all over the world. You feel that innumerable hearts beat with yours and that you are a link in the one gerat chain.

"Forward we want to go, and forward we shall go. There is not one amongst us who does not put his utmost trust in Junkers and who wolud not believe that we shall manage it. Without this confidence and our faith in God, Who will bless the sincere endeavors of men, we should be lost. If we succeed in that great work, in wihch we are mere wheels in a large clockwork, none of us will leisurely fold his hands. Strongly resounds in our hearts:

Let storm the waves
Against my boat.
I hold my rudder firmly:
He who would win must risk.

$13,000,000 ASKED FOR NAVAL SHORE BUILDINGS

Budget Bureau Approves $3,500,000 Nevada Ammunition Depot, the Largest Single Item.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The Navy Department was preparing today to transmit to Congress the naval shore building program involving an expenditure of approximately $13,000,000. The program was approved yesterday by the Budget Bureau.

The Budget Bureau also approved an increase in the cost of repairs and modernization of the battleships Nevada and Oklahoma from $13,150,000 to $13,600,000 and allowed an addition of $200,000 to the cost of the construction of the submarine V-4, making the total cost $6,500,000.

The largest item on the program is for the acquisition and construction of a proposed ammunition depot at Hawthorne, Nev., to cost $3,500,000.

Among the important items are many improvements for the Pacific Coast and Hawaiian Island naval bases.

CRIMINAL COURT DISCUSSION

Circuit Judges Rutledge and Rosskopf to Speak Tomorrow.

Activities of the Circuit Court for Criminal Causes here will be discussed at a public gathering of the Missouri Welfare League at 8:10 p. m. tomorrow in the lecture room of Second Baptist Church, Kingshighway and McPherson avenue.

Lon O. Hocker, president of the St. Louis Bar Association, will preside. Circuit Judges Rutledge and Rosskopf, two of the jurists now serving in criminal divisions, are to be the principal speakers.

MAN ALLOWED TO DRIVE WHEN THOUGHT TO BE DRUNK FREED

Judge Gayer Rebukes Police in Dismissing Charges Against John B. Tobin.

John B. Tobin of 3326 North Ninth street, whom two policemen testified they allowed to get into his automobile on Feb. 6 when they thought he was drunk and then arrested him for driving while intoxicated, was freed of the charge yesterday by Judge Gayer in Court of Criminal Correction. In Police Court he had been fined $100 and sentenced to 30 days in the workhouse. He had appealed.

"I wish I could fine the policemen for letting you get into your car and drive," the Court told Tobin. "As long as I can't I am not going to punish you."

Judge Gayer said that if the policemen believed Tobin drunk they should have arrested him for being drunk on the street and declared they failed in their duty when they let him get into his car. The appeal of Tobin was heard by Judge Gayer on April 5, when he took the case under advisement.

STEFANSSON HAILS WILKINS' TRIUMPH

He Is Discoverer of Northwest Passage, Arctic Explorer Declares.

NEW YORK, April 21.—A dream of the ages—a northwest passage across the world has been brought nearer practical aschievement through the pioneering of Capt. George H. Wilkins who today completed a 2100-mile flight across the Arctic region, Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Arctic explorer, said tonight.

The flight of Capt. Wilkins—the first airplane journey from America to Europe over the Polar area—was over a course that will shorten by hundreds of miles the distances between continents, Stefansson pointed out. He pictured the North Pole as the new crossroads of the world where air caravans of the future will meet in their journeys from continent to continent.

While Stefansson was warm in praise of the flight, he declared Wilkins' work preliminary to the flight was of far more importance to the development of air transportation in the Arctic Region.

Whether Winkins was able to make any land observations during his five-day stop on his way from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Spitzbergen, Stefansson said he had strengthened Wilkins' theory that there were numerous landing places in the Polar regions, a theory disputed by Roald Amundsen and Commander Richard E. Byrd, who have flown over the Arctic area.

Stefansson mentioned Amundsen's theory that landing sites were available only for flying boats, in openings in ice packs 200 miles or more apart in the Arctic Sea, and Commander Byrd's belief that few if any landing spots were available. He indicated, however, that observations by Capt. Wilkins during his preparations for his flight supported the theory that safe landings could be made.

In support of Wilkins' belief that landing places exist about every five miles in the Arctic, Stefansson told of three forced landings that Wilkins and Eielson made far north of Point Barrow a year ago. Each time the landing was made without injury to the occupants of the plane, and when a wing was damaged on the last forced descent, Wilkins and Eielson dismantled their plane and made of it emergency equipment with which they trekked back to civilization, meanwhile living on wild game.

These adventures, coupled with the aerial conquest of the Arctic, tend to prove the greater safety of transpolar flight over transoceanic flight between continents, Stefansson thinks. Flying conditions in the Arctic generally are far more favorable than those over the North Atlantic, he said, and air travelers in the event of a forced landing have a greater chance of surviving.

Stefansson summarized Wilkins' work: "He has at last achieved the Northwest passage that the Elizabethans dreamed of—the short route to India."

Stefansson scouted the legend of a "lost continent," in the Arctic. He indicated in the section of the Arctic still unexplored there was not room for land the size of Cuba or Labrador. He added nothing but deep sea had been found by his expedition in the area where the "lost continent" was supposed to lie.

During the time of his 1913-18 expedition, when Wilkins was Stefansson's second in command, he studied the floating ice pack, making observations far from land and securing data from which he evolved his theory that safe landings could be made in the Arctic.

12 POLO PONIES SOLD IN SPIRITED BIDDING

August A. Busch Among Buyers at Auction—Saddle Horse Sale Previous Evening.

Twelve polo ponies were sold yesterday afternoon at the annual spring auction of the Missouri Stables, in the new riding arena at 5218 Berthold avenue.

August A. Busch purchased two of the wire animals, "Bambalina" a 5-year-old chestnut filly, which cost $275, and "Texas Jack" which brought $150. Fred Holekamp of St. Louis bought "Bell Boy," another polo pony, for $105.

The horses were auctioned by P. M. Gross, who kept up a running fire of auctioneer's comment as they were paraded in front of about 500 prospective purchasers. For the most part the bidding was spirited.

The auction began Friday night with a sale of saddle horses. The high price of the evening, $5250, was paid by George L. L. Davis of New York and formerly of St. Louis for a gaited saddle horse. Total sales for the evening were $15,045.

During the Friday session Phil S. Medart bought "Jane Packard," a saddle mare, for $1500. Louis Nicolaus purchased "Madam Dare" for $450.

"Crisco," a bay gelding hunter, went to Holekamp, who also purchased "Kentucky Star," a brown saddle mare, for $80. Albert W. Johnson, an attorney, purchased "Dudette," a bay saddle mare, and A. N. Engel of Kirkwood bought "Sir Harold," a chestnut gelding. The sale closed last night.

Altogether, 26 horses were sold yesterday afternoon and 32 last night, when the sale closed. Among the purchases last night were: "Nancy Acres," a five-gaited saddle mare, $1700, and "Golden Go," a five-gaited saddle horse, $1500, to Davis of New York; "Prince Charming," five-gaited saddle horse, to James B. Gander of St. Louis, $725; "Sunny Gold," five-gaited saddle horse, to Lee Bros. of Mexico, Mo., $750; "Dapple Dan," gray high school horse, to Ely Long of Delaware, O., $425; a chestnut five-gaited gelding to N. H. Cooper of St. Louis, $650; "Go Coe," a five-gaited saddle horse, to E. A. Ellerman of St. Louis, $550; "Grey Dawn," a hunter, to Robin Burns of Fort Worth, Tex., $650.

WAGNER ELECTRIC AND SHOE ISSUE WEEK'S FEATURES

Score New Peaks After Wide Ranges in Active Trade — New Record Set for Sales Volume at One Day's Session.

ST. LOUIS STOCK EXCHANGE, April 21.—Setting of a new sales record for one session, with aggregate transactions of 10,030 shares and wide ranges with new peak prices by Wagner Electric and International Shoe on large turnovers, marked the past week on the local market. Included in the total on the record day were 1800 shares of Granite Bimetallic Mining, classed as "penny stick." The previous high was 9272 shares, established in October, 1925. Sheffield Steel, with 17-point raise was an individual feature. Announcement of a 2 1-3 per cent stock dividend was made late in the week.

Wagner Electric sales for the week were 9635 shares, while the turnover of International Shoe was 5645 shares.

International Shoe opened the week fractionally higher at 80¾, ranged up to 87, down to 83 and then rebounded some. The shoe stock is also listed on the New York Curb Exchange.

Wagner Electric starting out unchanged at 66, after a week of rising prices, sold down to 61¾ and then went up to new high of 73 at the closing session of the week. There was a reaction from the high.

Coca Cola Bottling securities sold up to 3: after opening fractionally higher and then reacted to previous weeks close, but closed with net gain. Fulton Iron sales were fairly large on rise to 15.

Johonsen Shoe and Stix, Baer & Fuller sold at new highs for this year.

The feature of the closing session of the week was making of new top of 73 on Wagner Electric followed by lower close.

COTTON FUTURES HIGHER AT WEEK'S LAST SESSION

(By the Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, April 21.—Unfavorable weather reports and relatively firm Liverpool cables appeared to be the factors on the advance in the cotton market here today. July contracts sold up to 20.00c and closed at 19.98c, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 9 to 16 points.

The opening was firm at an advance of 9 to 23 points on reports of heavy rains in the Eastern and Central belts and the business abroad. Active months sold 20 to 23 points net higher right after the call, with May advancing to 20.15c and October to 19.83c. These prices attracted a good deal of realizing, but it was absorbed on declines of about 10 points with the late market very steady on prospects for further rains in the South and the detailed weather reports confirming private advices of heavy rains, particularly in Central belt States. Closing prices were within 5 or 6 points of the best. The recurrence of favorable weather so closely following the chilly and low temperatures reported at the beginning of this week, evidently led to a good deal of covering or returning to the long side by recent sellers. There had been some feeling during the previous day on a belief that weather conditions were improving in the South owing to rising temperatures, and that there would be nothing more than moderate showers. Evidently the rain news came as more or less of a surprise to local traders, and probably inspired some fresh buying for both trade and commission house account as well as covering or rebuying by recent sellers.

This demand, of course, was attributed by local brokers for the most part, to progress over cotton sections owing to the wet weather, and private reports as to necessity for replanting and the advancing tendency of prices for good cotton seed. Liverpool also took a bullish view of the weather news, according to private cable which said that there had been a trade caller together with continental Bombay buying there on the rain reports from the South.

The amount of cotton on shipboard without clearance at the end of the week is estimated at 102,646 bales, against 83,733 last year and 88,040 two years ago.

Spot steady; middling 20.60c.

New York Cottonseed Oil.

NEW YORK, April 21.—The cottonseed oil market was quiet and irregular today, closing 3 points lower to 4 points higher. The trade lacked special features, being confined largely of week-end evening up between locals and further exchanging of lots into the later positions. The advance in cotton and the firmness of crude oil was offset by the reaction in lard and provisions. Sales, 12,600 barrels; prime crude, $8.75; prime summer yellow, spot, $9.10; April and May closed, $10.10@$10.25; September, $10.02; October, $9.78.

Closing prices were within 5 or 6 points of the best. The recurrence of favorable weather so closely following rains and low temperatures reported the beginning of this week, evidently led to a good deal of covering or rebuying by recent sellers. There had been some selling during the previous day on a belief that weather conditions were improving in the south owing to rising temperatures, and that there would be nothing more than moderate showers. Evidently the rain news came as more or less a surprise to local traders, and probably inspired some fresh buying for both trade and commission house account as well as covering or rebuying by recent sellers.

This demand, of course, was attributed by local brokers for the most part, to forecasts over coming crop prospects owing to the wet weather, and private reports as to necessity for replanting and increasing tendency of prices for good cotton seed. Liverpool also took a bullish view of the weather news, according to cables which said that there had been a fair rallier together with continued Bombay buying there on the rain reports from the South.

The amount of cotton on shipboard and in clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 102,640 bales, against 93,733 last year and 88,040 two years ago.

Spot steady; middling 20.60c.

New York Cottonseed Oil.

NEW YORK, April 21.—The cottonseed market was quiet and irregular today, closing 9 points lower to 3 points higher. Trade lacked special feature, being largely of week-end evening up of locals and further exchanging of hands the later positions. The advance in cotton and the firmness of crude oil offset by the reaction in lard and tallow. 12,600 barrels: prime summer yellow, spot, April and May closed, $10.10@10.28; September, $10.69; October, nom.

LONDON'S MAIN TALK IS U. K. BOND LISTING HERE

BY ARTHUR W. KIDDY.

LONDON, April 21.—The listing of the British 4 per cent funding loan in Wall street is momentarily the chief topic of interest here. Of course, it is recognized that the distinctive feature of this transaction is in America's dealing not in a dollar but in a British sterling internal loan, which is equivalent to our old dealings in your dollar bank.

Action of the New York Stock Exchange has already occasioned a sharp rise in our investment shares, and the broad topic of controversy is developing concerning the general effect of the whole affair. Some in the financial district here assert that if America buys largely its control over exchange and the British position will become still easier.

Others, however, urge that this danger is no greater than when large short term American balances are held here, though again in turn it might be urged that such balances are merely a passing phase, depending on the bank rate movements, whereas the present development represents something more permanent.

Britain's great conversion problem is, of course, concerned with the £2,000,000,000 5 per cent war loan maturing at the option of the Government next year.

Fusion of Bank of England notes and currency notes will probably be a feature of the budget, but the immediate effect on the monetary situation is negligible.

Although American balances here are small, our monetary situation is nevertheless dominated by developments in the United States, and any rise in the Federal Reserve Bank rate would sooner or later involve a rise here.

It is believed, however, that the central banks of both sides of the Atlantic still have a desire to avoid any excessive stringency unless compelled by wild speculation to call a halt.

Strength in the belief that the present price of rubber is too cheap is only equaled by the strength in the belief that the real recovery may be long delayed and that a further fall is possible in the meantime.

Industrial and Financial Briefs

NEW YORK, April 21.

Although the Stock Exchange and curb markets were closed today to permit brokerage houses to clear away accumulated work, offices of exchange members remained open for the transaction of routine business. Many of the brokers announced that they would accept deliveries of securities due them until noon.

The Artloom Corporation showed 47 cents a share on its common stock in the first quarter, against $1.23 a share in the same period of last year.

Louis Dreyfus & Company announced the shipment of $2,000,000 gold to Buenos Aires.

Beech-Nut Packing Company showed $1.15 a share on its common stock in the first quarter, compared with $1.13 in the corresponding period of last year. Common shares have a par value of $20.

Theodore Beran, commercial vice president in charge of New York district of the General Electric Co., plans to retire from active duty on May 1.

Graham Paige Motors Corporation in the first quarter of 1928, earned 15 cents a share on its common stock.

Employes of the U. S. Steel Corporation this year will pay $145 a share for common stock under the profit-sharing plan. This is equal to $203 a share for the old stock before the 40 per cent stock dividend.

Net earnings of Howe Sound in the first quarter were equivalent to $1.12 a share on the 100 per value common stock. Compared with $1.17 a share in the same period of 1927. The company produced 9,438,900 pounds of copper, 500,638 pounds of lead, 14,260,000 pounds of zinc and 3050 ounces of gold in the first quarter.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, April 21.—The raw sugar market had an easier undertone today and while no sales were reported, it developed that on the previous day sales were made of 23,000 bags Cuban in nearby positions at 4.43c and of 10,000 bags of Porto Rican nearby at 4.40c. Today duty frees were available at 4.43c, with no interest from buyers.

The failure of the demand to broaden in the spot market and the close proximity of first May notice day were responsible for increased offerings in the raw sugar futures market and final prices showed net declines of 1 to 2 points. The market opened steady at unchanged to 1 point advance on covering, but Cuban interests sold on the upturn and reactions of 1 to 3 points followed. Offerings subsided on the setback and partial rallies followed with final prices a point above the lowest. Approximate sales, 15,350 tons. May closed 2.66c; July, 2.78c; September, 2.80c; December, 2.95c; January, 2.81c; March, 2.78c.

The refined sugar market was quiet and unchanged at 5.60c to 6c for fine granulated.

Although receipts were generally light here the past week, there was an easier feeling in beef steers, especially the better kinds, and declines were registered for this class during the forepart of the week. Later dealings brought out an improved trend, and most of the early loss was regained. Yearlings and cows were mostly steady, with bulls 25c to 40c higher. Mature heifers reached a top of $11.50 for sizeable consignments, while the best price for yearling weights was $13.25. Selling was more active toward the week's close, and a good clearance was effected of all kinds. Bulk of sales of all weights was registered between $10.60 and $11, although some of the inferior descriptions were noted below the $10 column. Butcher yearlings were on a shaky basis the early part of week, largely, with a $20 top paid earlier in the week. Wool lambs were according to condition; 50 sacks Utah large yellow $3 delivered.

Sharp Advance in Hogs.

Continuous sharp advances the past week put local hog prices at the highest level since last October and $1.15 to $1.20 higher than last week's closing quotations. Receipts were light and the demand was broad, which resulted in keen competition and the markets virtually every day the entire week were active and higher deals. The $10 mark was passed in the Thursday session and at the close of the week top was up to $10.60. Hogs weighing 180 to 240 pounds continued in the best demand and usually found the top figure. Other weights found a ready outlet with prices ranging downward according to weight and flesh. Light hogs 160 to 170 pounds were not paid to move as in previous weeks lately, but were penalized 10c to 15c from top, excepting in the latter part of the week when they sold around the top. Light stuff, 150 pounds and down, were very scarce, and values advanced with better classes and at the close of the week were $1 to $1.75 higher, weightier kinds showing most gain. Bulk of lights, 150 to 160 pounds, sold for the week at $9 to $10, with the bulk of 130s and down at $8.75 to $9.25. Packing sows forged steadily ahead, although not as sharply as other classes. As compared with a week ago prices were 80c to 95c higher. Top sows at the close sold up to $8.65. Bulk sales for the period ranging from $7.85 to $8.65. Stags bulked at $7.40 to x—Close of week.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 21.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"True to its reputation for doing the unexpected, the market in stocks maintained its bull place virtually all week in the face of news admittedly unfavorable. More than ever it becomes plain the whole country is in the market on the bull side and unlike the bulls, apparently do not mean to run at the first sign of danger. At least an increase in the rediscount rates both at Boston and Chicago, a $135,000,000 jump in brokers' loans, the sale of $37,000,000 in Government securities and nearly $11,000,000 in bills by the Reserve banks and the prospect of a two-day holiday failed to shake confidence in the market's intrinsic position. Either the general public does not understand the implications of tightening money rates, or understanding, it sees no ground for fear in a 4½ discount level. Late yesterday stocks sagged off throughout the list but the feature of the session was its orderliness, the selling, presumably coming from speculators unwilling to hold a market position over the holiday.

Efforts to Tighten Money.

"However the country may interpret the effect of this week's move by the Reserve banks on the stock market there can be no doubt the system is redoubling its efforts to tighten money. What the reserve system seeks is not more funds for business—nobody could contend the market has deprived industry of needed money this year—but to prevent any further abnormal expansion in earning assets built on the basis of market speculation. So far in 1928 there has been enough money to give business all it wanted despite the record growth in market loans. Member banks since late in January actually increased their commercial loans by $378,000,000 which represents an expansion in the use of funds by industry far exceeding 1927 or even 1926. Obviously the reserve system's policy has not so far interfered with the revival in business over the country so much desired.

Attention to Loan Increase.

"Now that the season of the year has about arrived when commercial loans begin to contract the reserve system can with greater ease of mind turn its attention to the rapid expansion in security credits. Notwithstanding a narrowing in our credit base throughout the continued loss of gold, brokers' loans have multiplied. In turn member bank earning assets have been forced up to a new peak in history over $2,000,000,000 above their level of a year ago. Nobody contends that the reserve officials seeks a severe reversal in the market's trend—and certainly the Government itself would not want that at this time—but doubtless the reserve board feels its facilities have been used to promote great activity in a field not originally assigned to it. The reserve system was created to promote good business through its control over the money market. It was given no guardianship over the stock market. Nevertheless indirectly its extension of credits has provided a broad base for markets speculation.

Bond Market Improvement.

"Significant is it that in the face of gradually tightening money rates the market for gilt-edged bonds lately has improved with that for investment stocks. The British refunding 4s listed here this week have attracted wide popularity, and the general bond market has become more active than at any time in the last year. In a measure the improving demand for bonds despite hardening money rates presents a paradox, but the present market is full of performances for which precedent affords no example. Doubtless a part of the recent strength in good bonds comes from the increased demand for legals by savings banks and insurance companies. The last fortnight has brought a forward-creeping movement in descriptions newly admitted to the legal list, until many of these bonds now hover around their call prices. And that in turn suggests the likelihood of an increasing volume of new bond financing as the market favors such flotations in the months that lie ahead.

STERLING EXCHANGE AT NEW HIGH FOR THE YEAR

ST. LOUIS RESERVE BANK THIRD TO RAISE RATES

THE Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis has increased its discount rate from 4 to 4½ per cent on all classes of paper of all maturities, effective Monday.

The Chicago and Boston banks already have made similar raises.

There was an increase of $15,634,000 in bills discounted the past week.

NEW YORK, April 21.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted foreign exchange market review says:

"There were many interesting features again in the trading in the foreign exchange market during the week, but banking interest was concentrated to a great extent to dealings in sterling. During the first few days, exchange on London was in special demand crossing $4.88⅝ for cables and selling at a new high for the year. The movement was not checked by the engagement of $1,500,000 for export to London that late on Thursday the action of the Chicago bank in advancing its discount rate caused selling on an extremely large scale which continued yesterday morning when cables were down to $4.88⅜ but firmed again after that movement, the offerings being quickly taken and before the forenoon ended $4.88⅛ plus was bid without meeting a supply. The forward position of sterling is extremely strong, there being a broad inquiry for future delivery and only 1-16 discount a month from current rate, or in other words, exchange deliverable in July can be sold at the present time—can be sold around $4.88.

"French exchange held steady at around 3.93¾, but there was steady pressure against Italian exchange which yielded from 5.28 to 5.27¼ for cables. Swiss was actively traded in during the first half of the week, and Dutch was also in special demand, guilders then moving up to 40.35 for cables, but yielded sharply from that level dropping to 40.21 yesterday.

"Japanese exchange was unsettled, yen cables selling at 47.60 on Thursday but recovered part of the loss yesterday.

"Canadian Exchange was in supply all through the week, the premium dropping from 1-26 to 1-64.

"There was little change in South American rates.

"Belgian after showing strength was in larger supply in the past few days.

"Norwegian made a new high for the year at 26.77."

Week's Metal Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 21.—While specific variations against contracts remained general in the steel market and the rate of production fully equal to recent weeks, the reported disappointing volume of new business has brought about unsettlement in prices. In some instances shading of mill quotations was reported. However, there were a few exceptions to this market movement with the principal one an advance in cast iron pipe quotations in all districts. April ingot production has been maintained at the March average. Pig iron is steadier.

Purchases of copper during the past week were confined to comparatively small lots for both domestic and foreign account. Custom smelters continued to offer for small lots at slightly concessions by producers held firm at 14⅜ for electrolytic delivered in the Connecticut Valley. A belief that some home consumers still have to cover May requirements is said to be a sustaining influence.

Tin was higher and dealers were among the best buyers.

Lead held steady, with a moderate demand. Firmness featured the foreign markets. Stocks increased during March.

Zinc was firm, new business remained moderate, although galvanizers were believed to be rather sparingly covered for nearby needs.

Antimony was steady, consuming demand was not active, but sellers were not pressing the market in view of the firmness of offers from China.

CLEARINGS, MONEY AND SILVER

The St. Louis Clearing House Association reported clearings for April 21, 1928: $20,400,000; corresponding day last year, $19,000,000; corresponding day 1926, $21,310,300; corresponding period last year, $2,324,400,000. Reports of debits for April 21, 1928, were: Debits to individual accounts, $28,400,000; total to date, $2,866,000,000; debits to bank and bankers' accounts, $17,100,000; total to date, $1,640,500,000; combined debits were $4,506,500,000; total to date to individual and bank and bankers' accounts, $45,500,000.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Bar silver, 57⅝c; Mexican dollars, 44c.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Treasury receipts April 19, were $8,362,284.94; expenditures $16,899,286.65; balance $276,906,47.

LONDON, April 21.—Bar silver, 26¾d per ounce. Money 3½ per cent. Discount rates, short bills, 4 per cent. Three months, 4 1-16 to 4¼ per cent.

Dry Goods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Business on colored staple cotton goods this week is reported the best in six months. Manufacturers have decided it is about time to cover and are placing substantial orders. The coarse cotton yarn cloth market has been quiet. Prices were firm and bids for a few of the best constructions at lower levels were refused, but the goods were more irregular in quotations. Tendency was toward better quotations. Burlap prices in Calcutta and locally were steady for spots and afloat stocks. The raw silk market was firm with fairly steady buying reported.

TURPENTINE, FLAX AND LINSEED

New York Coffee.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 21.—The market for coffee futures was very quiet today, but working up a few points on covering and covering which is believed to be combined with a little trade buying. The market for Rio contracts opened 3 points lower and 6 to 6 points higher, with July showing an advance of 2 to 7 points, with July selling up from 14.28 to 14.35. Santos contracts opened 2 points higher and closed at a net advance of 6 to 10 points. Sales estimated Rio 12,000; Santos 30,000. Closing quotations: Rio, May, 14.28c; September 14.22c; December 13.99c. Santos, May 21.86c; March 13.78c; September 21.48c; July 21.15c; December 20.26c; March 19.84c.

Spot coffee quiet. Rio 7s 15½; Santos 4s 22½ to 22¾. No fresh offers were reported in the cost and freight market.

Owing to the holiday there were no mild quotations from Brazil. Yesterday's receipts at the two Brazilian ports were 49,000 bags; Jundiahy receipts 20,000.

STOCK TRADE IS STILL LARGE BUT PACE SLACKENS

Three Federal Reserve Banks Raise Rates — Brokers' Loans Up $135,000,000 — Margin Requirements Increased.

NEW YORK STOCK, BOND AND CURB MARKETS CLOSED YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, April 21.

THE New York Stock Exchange was closed today, the Board of Governors voting a holiday to allow member firms to clear up an accumulation of clerical work resulting from the recent string of 4,000,000-share days.

The curb market also suspended trading today to permit its members to catch up on their work.

Both will resume sessions as usual Monday.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 21.—The advance in stock prices, which has been under way with few interruptions for nearly three months, was abruptly checked this week by selling inspired by stiffening money rates.

Raising of the rediscount rates by the Chicago and Boston Federal Reserve Banks was widely interpreted as official disapproval of recent stock speculation.

St. Louis raised its rates today, making third city.

Heavy liquidation, based on fears of the credit stringency, took place in the early part of the week. In its subsequent lowering of call money rates tended to allay fears of tighter money and scores of issues were lifted to new high levels as buying operations were resumed by powerful speculative pools. The announcement of higher rediscount rates after the close of the market on Thursday, coupled with an unexpected increase of nearly $135,000,000 in brokers loans, brought about a sharp reaction in Friday's market.

Trading continued in large volume but failed to maintain the pace set in the series of 4,000,000 share sessions last week. So great has been the accumulation of business, however, that most of the large brokerage houses have been unable to keep their books up to date, necessitating closing of the Exchange today in order to give them an opportunity to catch up, if possible. Unless there is a further slackening of trading in the near future, it is expected that additional Saturday holidays will be necessary.

Margin Requirements Greater.

Outside of the credit situation, there was little in the week's trade news to influence the price movement. Freight car loadings in the first week in April fell below those of the corresponding weeks in 1927 and 1926. Steel output is being maintained at relatively high levels, particularly in the Chicago district. A decrease in crude oil production has been accompanied by stiffening gasoline prices.

One of the most significant developments of the week has been the marked tightening of margin requirements by several of the large commission houses. Margins of 32 1-3 to 50 per cent of market value are required on some of the high priced speculative issues such as General Motors and Radio. Margin accounts generally are reported to be strongly intrenched.

Despite the adverse credit developments in the week, "bear" brokers have been unable to make much headway.

Good buying support has been readily forthcoming from the seasonal dividends paying stocks the earnings of which hold promise of equalling or exceeding last year's figures.

Veteran stock market observers frankly confess that there has been no precedent in recent years for the sustained buying power which has developed in the recent "bull" market. This is attributed, in part, to the relative scarcity of high grade bonds of good yield and to the increasing popularity of common stocks of proved earning power as long term investments. Employee stock purchase and customer ownership plans have created a large army of potential stock market investors while the accumulation of high grade stocks by investment trusts has substantially reduced the floating supply of many issues, thereby facilitating manipulation by powerful speculative forces plentifully supplied with funds.

FRUIT MARKET

ST. LOUIS PRODUCE ROW, April 21.—There was a better feeling in the apple market and prices on good quality hard stock showed more strength. Better inquiry was from outside where receipts have been pretty well cleaned up. A few of the barreled willowtips, $3 and $3.50, and more eating face and fill delivered. Quotations on No. 1 willowtips barreled ben davis and mammoth blacks, $3@3.50; extra fancy and fancy $4, and willowtwigs, $3 to $10 per barrel. Fancy brand and storage fruit mostly less; boxed roman beauty $2.50 to $3; winesaps, $2.35 to $2.60, and some fine fall delicious, $3; scalded and fruit discounted.

STRAWBERRIES—Prices on fancy berries remained unchanged, although supplies were considerably larger and weather warm. PART TWO.

WRAY'S NEWS

Real Heroics.

PLODDING wearily toward St. Louis is a slowly diminishing band of athletes whose efforts, at least at long range, seem even more heroic than De Mar's marathon running.

The Bostonian has won, in the course of his life, many marathons.

In the 20 years of his running career perhaps he has won fifty—but probably not that many. That is remarkable; but not to compare with the efforts of the seventy-three runners in the Pyle transcontinental derby, which is rolling on toward St. Louis, today.

Each of the runners in that race has been running more than a marathon every day for 49 consecutive days! Sometimes they have run 40 miles or even more in one day.

And to make it still more remarkable, they must run these extra-length marathons every day for perhaps 41 days more. If any of them stands up at the finish he will have run twice as much in 90 days as De Mar in his lifetime of 40 years or so.

That is touching the heights of athletic courage and the limits of human endurance.

In the old days they made Pheidippides immortal because he ran from Athens to Sparta. That would be a joke feat, to one of Pyle's iron men.

With Us Today.

INCIDENTALLY the promoter of this unique event is with us today—C. C. Pyle. A genius beyond a doubt is this imaginative man, whose meteoric career in the limelight dates from his exploitation of Red Grange two or three years ago.

Since that time he conceived and carried out, besides football exploitations, the famous tour of Mlle. Lenglen, thereby flouting all our best amateur societies. He made good and he made money. And he proved that the loyalty of our amateurs is frequently qualified by our "economic necessity."

They laughed at Pyle's transcontinental marathon, but here it is almost at our doors, more than half way on that heart-breaking 3500-mile trail.

The conception of such a race argues imagination and its promotion certainly indicates executive genius. It has given the country a real thrill and supplied a useful test of what the human engine can endure under pressure—a test that could have been supplied in no other possible way.

Hard to Believe.

WE know several new things. If anyone had contended before this race that a man could have run a marathon race a day for 49 days he would have been laughed to scorn. The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals would have been after him, or they would have paroled him to a keeper.

But we submit the facts, which are roughly that some 73 men, out of an original 274, have RUN distances averaging 35 miles, each day for one and one-half months!

That should interest scientists, as well as amaze laymen.

Anita Passes.

THE mystery of the race horse Anita Peabody, derby eligible, appears ended, according to a dispatch to the writer from Louisville. It reads:

"Anita Peabody positively will not go in the Derby. Mitchell is pointing her for the Kentucky Oaks and will rely on Reigh Count in the Derby. The filly has not gone over half a mile in any of her preps this season."

That seems to end the suspicion that Anita was secretly the horse with which the Hertz stable intended to win the Derby.

Canter Easy Winner in the Philadelphia Handicap

C. C. Pyle Is Here and His Runners Are on the Way—Stops Uncertain

Master Minds of "Bunion" Derby

70-Odd Men Expected to Pass Through City in Few Days — Race Doing Them Good and Will Be Held Annually, Promoter Says.

By Gerald Holland.

TWO small-town boys who made good arrived in St. Louis yesterday as the advance guard of the transcontinental footrace scheduled to reach St. Louis next week. They were C. C. Pyle, one-time manager of a Champaign (Ill.) motion picture house, and Harold "Red" Grange, Wheaton (Ill.) ice man, later the "Galloping Ghost" of Illinois University's great football team and the first athlete to be exploited by Pyle. With them came Bill Pickens, veteran promoter.

That Pyle, known variously as "Cold Cash," "Conceive and Create," and more recently "Corn and Callous," is not "kidding" the nation with his transcontinental footrace is becoming more and more evident as the 70-odd surviving runners near St. Louis.

They Finish 30 Miles Laughing.

"Honestly," said Pyle, "I'm surprised myself when I watch those boys pounding away day in and day out. I've got sore feet from just watching them. We may drop one or two men before we reach St. Louis, but we will have at least 30 when we hit New York. The runners now are in fine physical condition and some of them are actually gaining weight.

"It's a marvelous thing. I read the other day where Joie Ray crossed the finish line of the Boston Marathon, the country's greatest race, exhausted. Here are our boys often running two such Marathons every day and finishing not limp and tired, but actually laughing.

"I can't hope to convince anybody who has not seen the race of just what it actually is. We've had nothing but crowds, crowds, crowds. Our biggest problem from here is going to be a traffic problem.

Plans Race Annually.

"We've taken a lot of kidding in this run. But here we are. The experts said we wouldn't get past Arizona. And what's more we are not only going to finish in New York but this transcontinental race is going to be an annual event."

"There are no favorites," said Pyle in answer to an inquiry as to a likely winner. "Every man that's running now has a chance to win. A man with a 50-hour lead may sprain an ankle or pull a muscle and lose the whole thing.

"One man hasn't run a step so

HELEN'S BABE SECOND, FIVE LENGTHS BACK

J. E. Griffith's Colt Earns $8450—Scapa Flow Finishes Third — Knapsack Takes Purse.

By the Associated Press.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 21.—The Philadelphia Handicap, carrying a net value of $8450, was run today and 10,000 race fans saw J. E. Griffith's Canter, with Steve O'Donnell in the saddle, gallop off with the purse, leading home the field by five lengths. Driving hard came Hal Price Headley's Helen's Babe. The favorite, Scapa Flow, was third.

The mile and one-sixteenth was run in 1:46 2-5. The day was raw and cold, with rain falling intermittently.

The start was good and Helen's Babe rushed right to the front, with Clean Play and Canter away about fourth. There was not much change in the running positions until the far turn, where O'Donnell rushed Canter up. The colt took the lead, drew away and won by five lengths. Helen's Babe was second, a length over Scapa Flow. Canter paid $7.10 in the mutuels.

Knapsack Is Victor.

W. Byer's Click romped away with the opening event. Infinity landed second money, with Capulet third.

It was Click all the way. He made the pace and won by two lengths. Infinity took the place by a head.

Knapsack, with O'Connell up, scored in the second event, leading Typhoon home by a safe margin. Beauregard was ahead for the first half mile but in the turn to the stretch, Knapsack took command and won by half a length. Typhoon took the place by four lengths over Sun Friar.

Knapsack, a candidate for the Preakness and Kentucky Derby, paid $11.10 for $2.

J. W. Foreman's Contemplate, well played, scored in the third. Contemplate broke well and rushed right to the front. He raced Bulletin into submission, then stalled off the determined rush of Sun Beau to win by a head. Mont Ferrat was third, five lengths back.

Derby Candidate Wins.

M. Hirsch's Kentucky Derby candidate, Tara's Hall, won the fifth. Only five started.

Tara's Hall was away fast and quickly took the lead, never to be headed. The colt outran the speedy Burning Glass and held a length lead until near home, when Arcturus came fast to finish half a length behind the winner. Arcturus took the place by a head from Burning Glass.

Tara's Hall paid $9.70.

Fairyman got the decision by a nose over Houston in the sixth. The later had six lengths to spare over All Blue.

Houston set the pace until after the turn into the stretch, when Fairyman, on the inside, drew up on even terms with the leader. The pair fought it out head and head right to the finish. All Blue tired following the pace, but easily annexed third money. Houston lost several lengths going wide entering the stretch, which cost him the purse.

18-Year-Old "Pro" Who Seeks Reinstatement as an Amateur

CLARKE MORSE.

Morse's case has attracted attention because of his youth.

He incurred the displeasure of the local golf association by accepting employment in a golf shop and was suspended last September.

His case is now under consideration by the U. S. G. A.

Hits—Off Sullivan, 8 in 7 innings; off Stoner, 1 in 1 inning. Umpires—Van Grafian, McGowan and Connolly. Time of game—1h. 37m.

By J. Roy Stockton

Alvin Crowder, the young right-handed general from Washington, pitched a four-hit game against the Detroit Tigers yesterday afternoon and the Browns, breaking the shackles of their batting slump, jumped on Charlie Sullivan, late of Fort Worth, and Lil Stoner, for several years a Tiger, and ended their losing streak of five in a row by trouncing the invaders in the final game of the series, 5 to 2.

Crowder's pitching was excellent, but it was no better than the defense that the Browns threw up in front of the attacking hordo of George Moriarty. There was one Brownie error, but that was a wild throw by Crowder himself. It gave the enemy one run, but as the Browns were working efficiently with their maces, the error did no ultimate damage.

Crowder's performance was praiseworthy, but then, the Browns have had no cause for complaint about their pitching and so it was not unusual to see effective hurling by Howley's mound selection. The thing that did stand out, however, was the improvement in the St. Louis attack.

Manush Hits Three Times.

Heine Manush, the sturdy outfielder from Detroit, counted on as one of the big guns in the Brownie attack, finally found the range and was the batting hero of the contest. Heine contributed a double and two singles in four times at bat, drove in one run and scored two, thus playing a prominent part in smashing the losing streak.

Lu Blue, also formerly of Detroit, didn't do so well, but he did break his string of hitless trips to the plate. After going through three games of the series without a hit, the first sacker singled in the sixth inning to drive in one of the Browns' tallies.

Efficiency On Attack.

There was the same efficiency to the Brownie attack that enabled the team to open the season with four straight victories, three in Detroit and the first at Chicago. They hit safely in five innings and produced a tally in each of those

NATIONAL GOLF RULING AWAITED IN MORSE CASE

District Body Steps Aside Upon Learning the United States Golf Association Is Considering Case.

A final decision on the eligibility of Clarke Morse for amateur golf competition is likely to be given early this week by the United States Golf Association which is now in session. The young Forest Park Municipal Links golfer was barred by the St. Louis District Association a year ago and that body will accept the finding of the U. S. G. A. as final.

A discussion of the case scheduled for the district meeting held at Sunset Hills Country Club Friday night did not materialize after officials had learned of the action by the national body.

The case has been in the hands of the U. S. G. A. ever since Morse was barred from the Junior Tournament in September. At that time, the Forest Park Golf Club requested a ruling but nothing more than an unofficial answer upholding the district's decision was ever obtained.

FOUR RECORDS FALL IN OHIO RELAY FINALS

George Simpson of Ohio State Runs Century in 9.6 Seconds on Rain-Soaked Track.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., April 21.—Despite a steady downpour that slowed time in most events, five records today were broken and a sixth tied during the closing day's events of the fifth annual Ohio relays. Seven records were broken in eight events.

Splashing his way over a muddy track, George Simpson of Ohio State University, turned in the most brilliant performance of the day when he shattered the former Ohio relay record and tied the National Collegiate mark of 9.6 seconds in the 100-yard dash. Kriss Simpson's teammate, trailed him by two yards to give Ohio State two places in the dash. Hester of Michigan, winner of the event last year, placed third. The old mark was 9.8 seconds.

The second dash record of the day fell when Mahoney of St. Xavier College, Cincinnati, beat the old Ohio relay record of 10.3 seconds in the 100-yard dash for "class B" colleges and normal

BOBBY JONES IS NAMED CAPTAIN OF CUP TEAM

Other Stars Will Defend Walker Trophy Against British Invaders This Summer.

By the Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 21.—Robert T. (Bobby) Jones, Atlanta Golf wizard, will captain America's Walker Cup team this summer in defending the amateur trophy against the invasion of Great Britain, Melvin A. Taylor, president of the United States Golf Association, announced today.

Jones' teammates in the fight to retain the trophy, won five times in succession by America, will be Jess Sweetser, George von Elm, Charles Evans, Jr., Francis Ouimet, Harrison R. Johnston, Watts Gunn and Roland Mackenzie, all of whom were on the last cup team with the exception of Evans and Johnson. These two take the place of Jesse Guilford and Robert A. Gardner.

The team, selected by the executive committee of the golf association at its meeting here this week, probably will meet the British team at the Chicago Golf Club, Aug. 30 to Sept. 1. The place was not announced. The date, however, would fall a week before the National Amateur at Brae Burn, West Newton, Mass.

A list of alternates will be named at the June meeting of the executive committee, Mr. Taylor declared. He also announced that the commitee at its meeting this week had changed the conditions governing a possible play off during the National Open at Olympia fields, Chicago in June, to provide 36 holes of medal play instead of 18 as previously announced.

The statement added that Sept. 2, 1929, had been definitely fixed as the date for beginning the amateur champion to be played at Del Monte, Cal., next year.

FOUR CARDINAL HURLERS READY TO FACE REDS

Open Series at Cincinnati Today After Being Rained Out at Pittsburg —Rhem Eager to Work.

By W. J. McGoogan.

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 21.—Forestalled at Pittsburg when an incessant rain prevented the playing of the final game of the series with the Pirates, the Cardinals tonight turned to Cincinnati hoping to continue their successful drive.

With four pitchers available, manager McKechnie was uncertain which he would send against the Reds in Sunday's opener. The Cards will play four games in Cincinnati.

Alexander, Sherdel and Reinhart are fit while Flint Rhem is spoiling for a chance to show his 1928 stuff. Sherdel is the most likely one to get first crack at the Reds for the little southpaw has always been effective against them and it is really his turn to start.

Rhem is due to get his first assignment of the season in the series against Hendricks men and he is in condition to pitch.

"Shucks," Rhem said today. "My arm ain't just altogether right but I can beat these other teams, sore arm and all. I've seen some pitchers working out there that don't have nothing on the ball, not even

ALDRIDGE GETS EXTRA 30-DAY SUSPENSION

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, April 21.—Vic Aldridge, hold-out pitcher of the New York Giants, obtained from the Pirates in the Grimes deal, has been suspended by his club for 30 days, John J. McGraw, Giant manager, announced here tonight. In this time the club will not discuss terms with the pitcher, McGraw said.

The club suspension is in addition to the indefinite suspension automatically meted out to Aldridge by Commissioner Landis last night for the pitcher's failure to come to terms.

ARNOLD JONES, DAVIS CUP STAR, DEFEATS COLLEGE NET PLAYER

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 21.—The American cup Davis team's exhibition tournament at the Los Angeles Tennis Club opened today with a singles match between Arnold Jones of Providence, R. I., former captain of the Yale University tennis team, and Ben Gorchakoff, Occidental College star.

Jones played rings around Gorchakoff to win, 6—3, 6—2. His superb stroking and placements had the local college star running around in circles most of the time. Packed galleries witnessed the play, the first of several local appearances of the American team.

WRAY'S

Real Heroics.

PLODDING wearily toward St. Louis is a slowly diminishing band of athletes whose efforts, at least at long range, seem even more heroic than De Mar's marathon running.

The Bostonian has won, in the course of his life, many marathons.

In the 20 years of his running career perhaps he has won fifty—but probably not that many. That is remarkable; but not to compare with the efforts of the seventy-three runners in the Pyle transcontinental derby, which is rolling on toward St. Louis, today.

Each of the runners in that race has been running more than a marathon every day for 49 consecutive days! Sometimes they have run 40 miles or even more in one day.

And to make it still more remarkable, they must run these extra-length marathons every day for perhaps 41 days more. If any of them stands up at the finish he will have run twice as much in 90 days as De Mar in his lifetime of 40 years or so.

That is touching the heights of athletic courage and the limits of human endurance.

In the old days they made Pheidippides immortal because he ran from Athens to Sparta. That would be a joke feat, to one of Pyle's iron men.

With Us Today.

INCIDENTALLY the promoter of this unique event is with us today—C. C. Pyle. A genius beyond a doubt is this imaginative man, whose meteoric career in the limelight dates from his exploitation of Red Grange two or three years ago.

Since that time he conceived and carried out, besides football exploitations, the famous tour of Mlle. Lenglen, thereby flouting all our best amateur societies. He made good and he made money. And he proved that the loyalty of our amateurs is frequently qualified by our "economic necessity."

They laughed at Pyle's transcontinental marathon, but here it is almost at our doors, more than half way on that heart-breaking 3500-mile trail.

The conception of such a race argues imagination and its promotion certainly indicates executive genius. It has given the country a real thrill and supplied a useful test of what the human engine can endure under pressure—a test that could have been supplied in no other possible way.

Hard to Believe.

WE know several new things.

If anyone had contended before this race that a man could have run a marathon race a day for 49 days he would have been laughed to scorn. The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals would have been after him, or they would have paroled him to a keeper.

But we submit the facts, which are roughly that some 73 men, out of an original 274, have RUN distances averaging 35 miles, each day for one and one-half months!

That should interest scientists, as well as amazed laymen.

Anita Passes.

THE mystery of the race horse Anita Peabody, derby eligible, appears ended, according to a dispatch to the writer from Louisville. It reads:

"Anita Peabody positively will not go in the Derby. Mitchell is pointing her for the Kentucky Oaks and will rely on Reigh Count in the Derby. The filly has not gone over half a mile in any of her preps this season."

That seems to end the suspicion that Anita was secretly the horse with which the Hertz Stable intended to win the Derby.

NINE WESTERN A. A. U. BOXERS TO SEEK OLYMPIC BERTHS IN BOSTON

8 FROM THIS DISTRICT; BOUTS BEGIN TOMORROW

Knost, Stillman, Adams, Graswick, Taylor, Ghnouly, Wilson and Doetzel on Team.

By Damon Kerby.

With a trip to Amsterdam as members of the Olympic boxing team the objective, nine entrants from the Western Amateur Athletic Union are due to arrive in Boston this afternoon for the national tournament which begins tomorrow. Eight of the nine are from the St. Louis district.

The winner and runner-up in each division will be placed on the United States team for the trip abroad.

Those who are representing this district are:

Dave Knost, heavyweight.
D. H. Moore (Oklahoma City), 175 pounds.
Al Stillman, 160 pounds.
Mickey Adams, 147 pounds.
Jacob Graswick (East St. Louis), 136 pounds.
Clyde Taylor (Belleville), 136 pounds.
Jack Wilson, 126 pounds.
Joe Ghnouly, 118 pounds.
Clifford Doetzel, 112 pounds.

One member of the team, Stillman, is national junior middleweight champion, having annexed the crown in the recent tournament at Detroit. Knost was national junior heavyweight champion in 1927. He did not take part in the junior event in 1928 as competition is limited to one year.

All but Taylor and Wilson are district champions.

All but Knost in Fine Shape.

The squad is expected to arrive in Boston this afternoon in first-class shape for the tournament, with the possible exception of Knost, who still favored his right foot when he left St. Louis yesterday.

Knost wrenched the instep last Monday while doing roadwork in the St. Louis University field, when the soggy ground gave under his foot.

The tournament will be run off tomorrow and Tuesday nights. Boxing will get under way tomorrow at 5:30 p. m. and will run continuously until probably after 3 a. m. On Tuesday night, the semi-final and final events will be held in every division.

An All-Night Affair.

Due to the length of the program there is the probability that several hours will elapse between bouts for the local entrants, and they will require good care to keep from growing stiff and stale. Robert Probst, district president of the A. A. U. and two other St. Louisans will assist in looking after the affairs and training activities of the Western entrants. The others are George Wilsman of the Motorbus A. C., trainer, and Julian Kummer, chairman of the local amateur boxing association.

Herewith is a roster with brief records of those who carry the colors of the Western A. A. U.:

Dave Knost, Motorbus A. C. Weight, 190 pounds. Junior heavyweight champion in 1927. He did not compete in 1928. Knost retained the district title last month by knocking out Zurlinden Pearson of the Kansas Aggies, in the second round. He is a hard puncher and a fair boxer. He has been handicapped by lack of opponents, being forced to remain out of competition for several months. However, he is considered a strong entry.

D. H. Moore, unattached, of Oklahoma City. Weight, 175 pounds. Moore is the dark horse of Western squad. He won district title by defeating Jerry Hoffman, Motorbus A. C., in three rounds, and knocking out George Gallagher of Kirkwood, in one round.

Al Stillman, Motorbus A. C. Weight, 160 pounds. National junior middleweight champion. Stillman won district title by defeating Frank Power, South Broadway A. C., in three rounds. He has a good punch and can take punishment.

Mickey Adams, Motorbus A. C. Weight, 147 pounds. Mickey won the district title by kayoing William Pennish, South Broadway A. C., in one round, and getting the decision over Pat Cooney in three rounds. He carries a dangerous left as his chief weapon.

Jacob Graswick, East St. Louis K. of C. Weight, 136 pounds. Graswick won the district title by taking a decision over Gus Mayias, South Broadway A. C., and winning over Clyde Taylor in the same way.

Clyde Taylor, Belleville Turners A. C., Belleville, Ill. Weight, 136 pounds. Although defeated by Graswick, Taylor is believed by many to be the strongest man in his division hereabouts. A vote of the local boxing fraternity probably would show that Taylor is considered to have the hardest right in local amateur circles. Taylor is easy to hit but can absorb punishment. He knocked out William Judge in one round in his first bout of the district meet to enter the final.

Jack Wilson, 138th Infantry, Weight, 126 pounds. Wilson lost on a foul in the first round to an opponent far below his ability in the district meet. He is the outstanding man in his division, and was therefore given a ticket to Boston.

Joe Ghnouly, now of Flori A. C., but who represents the South Broadway A. C. in the tournament. Ghnouly won the bantamweight title by outslugging Tom Wade, 138th Infantry, in three rounds, and knocking out John Udvaros, unattached, in one round. Ghnouly is rugged and can hit with the leaders in his division. He is considered by district officials as having a good chance to place in the finals.

Cliff Doetzel, also of Flori A. C., who changed recently from South Broadway A. C. with Ghnouly. He retained the title among 112-pounders by defeating John Tomazzi, three rounds, and Abe Cohen, Tulsa, three rounds. Doetzel is the cleverest boxer in the group, and one of the best developed here in recent years.

schools. Mahoney made the distance in 10 seconds flat.

Ohio Relay Team Shines.

Ohio State starred again in the 880-yard University relay when the speedy quartet of Kriss, Pierce, Strother and Simpson broke the old Ohio relay record of 1 minute, 30.2 seconds. They covered the half mile distance over the muddy track in 1 minute, 28.6 seconds. University of Chicago was second and Syracuse third.

The fourth record of the day was broken when Ohio Wesleyan University lowered the old Ohio relay mark in the 440-yard sprint college relay from 43.7 seconds to 43.5 seconds. Pettibone, Neigh, Lombacher and Slovasky made up the Wesleyan quartet.

The pole vault mark of 13 feet was bettered by Otterness of the University of Minnesota. The Gopher star cleared the bar at 13 feet, 1 inch. Pickard of Pittsburg, who vaulted the 13 foot mark last year, placed second, and there was a four-way tie for third place.

Bennett, fleet Toledo Lebby dash star, tied the Ohio relay mark in the 100-yard dash for high schools, breasting the tape in 10 seconds flat.

Newark, N. J., Prep, national high school relay champions, captured the two-mile relay in 8 minutes, 47.9 seconds.

Hurdlers Aided by Wind.

Cooper, of Michigan, winner of the high hurdle race last year, joined the ranks of the record breakers late in the meet, clipping one second from the former Ohio relay record of 24.7 seconds. The fast time was not recognized as a new record because of a stiff wind which swept through the stadium after the rain had stopped.

Browns Face Indians Today; Blaeholder Due to Pitch

frames. There were three sacrifices and each time a Brownie laid down his life to put a runner in scoring position, another comrade delivered with a hit to drive the runner home.

Howley's men started their scoring early. With two out in the first inning Manush smashed a double to center, and Schulte followed with a line double that crashed against the wall in right center and sent Manush over the plate.

In the second inning Heilmann's double to right and a wild throw by Crowder enabled the enemy to tie the score. The General covered first on McManus' grounder to Blue and when he saw Heilmann rounding third he heaved home a yard over Schang's head and Heilmann trotted over the plate.

Right Back in the Lead.

It didn't take the Browns long to regain the lead. McNeely walked to open the third inning O'Rourke sacrificed and Manush again swished his mace effectively, lining a single to center to score McNeely.

Manush's third hit was a single to left, starting the sixth inning and after Schulte had sacrificed and Schang grounded out, Blue singled to right to score Heine.

Kress opened the seventh inning with a single to left and this time Crowder did the sacrificing and McNeely banged a single to center to score Kress.

After Johnny Neun had batted for Sullivan in the eighth, Lil Stoner went to the hill for the Tigers and Schulte greeted him with a second double, a line drive that again kissed the pavilion concrete. Schang was called out on strikes and Blue tapped to Stoner, but on Brannon's grounder to Sweeney, Stoner failed to touch first base and Schulte scored the Browns' fifth run

Crowder in Fine Form.

After Heilmann's double in the second inning and Hargrave's wasted single in the second, Crower was a no-hit pitcher until the ninth. He walked McManus in the fourth, Rice in the sixth and Heilmann in the seventh, but they were the only ones to see base until the final frame.

Then Sweeney, leading off, hit a low liner to right cener. McNeely made a desperate dive and came up with the ball after sliding 30 feet on various parts of his anatomy, but Umpire McGowan decided that McNeely had done some of his sliding on the hand holding the ball and so ruled that it was not a fair catch. This gave Sweeney a double and after Gehringer had flied out, Harry Rice hit a real double to right center, scoring Sweeney with the Tigers' only earned run.

Crowder declined to be perturbed by this combination of a bad break and a real hit. He pitched like a master to Heilmann and struck out the slugger, the final strike being a slow ball that Harry of Detroit lunged at viciously but without result.

Howley's men played a daring game in the field. McNeely's diving act was a brilliant one, McGowan and his umpiring racket not withstanding.

Frank O'Rourke also contributed a sparkling play, holding a foul off Gehringer's bat in the sixth inning despite a collision with the concrete wall beyond the dugout. Brannon and Kress played a steady game around second and a double play started by Brannon nullified a base on balls to Heilmann which opened the sixth inning.

Cleveland Here Today.

The Cleveland Indians will call today for a four-game series and George Blaeholder, who has given one earned r un in 15 2-5 innings, will pitch the opener. If the Browns do as well with their attacking weapons as they did in the final with the Tigers, George of Tulsa will register his first victory of the campaign.

Cards Have 4 Pitchers Ready to Face Reds

a prayer and they win, so I know I can."

It was very disappointing to the Cardinals not to be able to play the Pirates today for they felt that the game would have resulted in a victory for them. The Pirates are not right at present. They haven't a pitcher in condition to work. The team ran into abominable training weather and is suffering thereby. A month from now they won't be so easy. So, with the Cardinals in fine condition they were anxious to play.

The St. Louis pitchers are going good, the hitters are hitting and the fielders are fielding.

There is only one man on the club whose physical condition is giving Manager McKechnie any grave concern. He is third baseman Wattie Holm who is suffering from an injured shoulder. It has only been due to his own nerve and to constant attention from Dr. Weaver, the club trainer, that Holm has been kept in the game.

Wattie hurt his shoulder in 1923 when he fell chasing a fly ball and another player tumbled on top of him crushing the shoulder to the ground, the result was a torn muscle. While he was playing the outfield the injury was unnoticeable for he was not called upon to use his shoulder to any extent but since being stationed at third base, constant use has aggravated the old ailment.

Some doctors fear a cyst for which an operation might be necessary but several specialists to whom Dr. Weaver has taken Holm here, disagree with that theory and advise against the use of the knife. It is hoped that Wattie's shoulder comes around all right for with the third sacker batting and fielding the way he is at present it would be a severe blow to the club's chances if he were removed from the lineup.

Aside from Holm the men are in fine condition. Tommy Thevenow has been showing constant improvement at shortstop and is expected to be even better as the days go by for it is pointed out that Thevenow undoubtedly is suffering from enforced absence from the game during the greater part of last year. Some balls probably have gone through his position which won't get by, once Tommy recovers his real form.

O'Farrell and Hafey OK.

Bob O'Farrell has forgotten that there was ever anything wrong with his arm or his thumb while Chick Hafey has ceased to talk of sinus trouble since he started to hit the ball with his accustomed vigor.

Ray Blades is about fit and ready to play, the charley horse from which he was suffering being almost dissipated. But it is not likely that Blades will get into the game soon for with Wallie Roetger playing the way he is in left field there is no room in the Cardinal outfield for Blades at present. It is comforting to know, just the same, that there is such a good outfielder on the bench ready to play when the occassion demands.

BASKET RULES ARE PASSED TO STOP 'STALLING'

Tall Player May Not Tap "Jump" Ball Twice in Succession; Dribble Ruling Rescinded.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Deciding that the regulations of the game needed no drastic revisions, the joint Basketball Rules Committee ended a two-day session here tonight, after adopting only a few minor changes in the code.

The changes consisted principally of alterations in the wording of a few of the rules, to make them easier of interpretation.

The committee's rulings govern practically all basketball played in this country, both amateur and professional. Its membership includes representatives of the Y. M. C. A., the Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

L. W. St. John of Ohio State was elected chairman of the committee; Ralph Morgan, University of Pennsylvania, vice chairman; George T. Hepburn, A. A. U., secretary; A. E. Metzdorf, Rochester, N. Y., treasurer, and Oswald Tower, Andover, Mass., editor.

The committee rescinded its action, taken last year but never placed in effect, by which the dribble would have been restricted to one bounce. A storm of protest arose from various sections of the country after the committee had made the change at last year's meeting. Later it was decided to defer the action for one year.

Although the rule was rescinded, the committee plans to aid officials in ruling upon the dribble and to discourage its use in certain situations.

Legislation was adopted to combat two phases of stalling but it was considered unwise to penalize or restrict "freezing of the ball" to protect a lead.

To prevent a tall player from tapping the ball and catching it several times in succession, thus keeping the ball out of play, it was voted that on a jump ball, the same player may not tap the ball and catch it twice in succession.

The second phase of stalling covered was that involving the closely-guarded player withholding the ball from play. Such a player is to be considered as withholding the ball as soon as the officials decide he is making no apparent effort to put the ball into play. Officials then will declare the ball held.

CAPE TEACHERS BEAT CARBONDALE AT TRACK

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., April 21.—The Cape Girardeau State Teachers' College won a track meet from the Carbondale (Ill.) Teachers yesterday afternoon, 67½ to 66⅔. The teams were tied before the start of the last event, the running broad jump.

C. T. Harris of Cape Girardeau was high point man, winning four firsts. The track was wet and no records were broken. Cape Girardeau won most of the field events and Carbondale most of the track events.

The Passing Show.

OUR Wattie Holm had quite a batting feast
Against the pesky Pirates in the East.
He made five successive bingles,
And while all of them were singles,
Not one of them was scratchy in the least.

Of Lester Bell, he's playing in the place,
And filling the position like an ace.
Though the rooters call him "Wattie,"
We will change his name to "Swattie,"
If he keeps on wielding such a wicked mace.

The Brownies on the Tigers got the jump;
Then coming home they got an awful bump.
Their winning streak departed,
But the fans are not downhearted.
As the best of them are bound to have a slump.

Some experts think the Cincinnati Reds
Are playing quite a bit above their heads;
But while they may be erratic
And run into lots of static
It's a team the opposition greatly dreads.

Twice Told Tales.

Lou Gehrig says pitching tells the story the first month of the season. But batting intergupts the tale once in a while to put a little punch in the yarn.

In fact we believe the customers like the batters' version of the old pastime better than the way the pitcher tells it.

However, it's the same old story with the same old plot with certain changes in the personnel from time to time, which makes it interesting. We like it.

It's the same with everything else. Aside from feats in aviation it's pretty hard to do anything that hasn't been done before.

Due to the fact, however, that a new customer is born every minute the act, no matter how old, is bound to be new to someone. It's the one-a-minute boys who make the wheels go round.

DRAKO WILL ARRIVE TOMORROW FOR BOUT WITH JOE DUNDEE

Billy Drako, German welterweight, will arrive in this country, today from his European tour, and is expected to reach St. Louis late tomorrow to begin training for his bout with Champion Joe Dundee of Baltimore at the Colsieum, Thursday night.

Drako was defeated by Dundee on a prior visit, when the pair met in Cincinnati about a month after the Baltimore fighter won the title. Drako is reported to have met Billy Alger and Al Mello among others on the first visit to this country.

Frankie Osner, formerly well known in St. Louis rings, will return after an absence of some four years to fight on the same card.

'RUBE' WALBERG SHUTS OUT THE YANKEES, 10-0

Macks Beat Huggins' Team Again; Losers Blanked Only Once in 1927 Season.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Rube Walberg, star athletic southpaw, who twice held the Yankees to one run in 1927, gave the world champions only six scattered hits here today, and achieved a shutout, 10 to 0.

The Yankees went without a whitewash in a championship game last year until Sept. 3 when Lefty Grove of the Athletics gave them their only scoreless reverse of the American League campaign.

Walberg helped his own cause along today by hitting a home run into the left field stand.

Johnson pitched fairly well for the Yankees, but Campbell was hit for seven runs in the ninth.

CHURCHILL OF OKLAHOMA DEFEATS KENNEDY FOR DECATHLON TITLE

MISSOURIAN FINISHES SECOND IN A BIG FIELD

Kansas Relay Meet Attracts a Thousand Athletes—Iowa State's Two-Mile Team Beaten by Mizzou.

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Kan., April 21.—The handicap of wintry weather, combined with a raw wind that swept Memorial Stadium bested the efforts today of a record-breaking army of college and university track stars to crack the meet records at the sixth annual Kansas relays. It was the official inaugural of the outdoor track season in all of the Middle West, and crack athletes of the three conferences, the Big Ten, Missouri Valley and Southwestern, were thrown into the lists, but without avail.

The only record to go was in the discus throw, in which Howell, Oklahoma University, set a new record of 141 feet 9 inches. Downing the favorite, Baldwin of Texas, whose heave of 141 feet 7 inches was better than the old record of 141 feet 4¾ inches, made by Somefort of Grinnell last year.

Olympic Team Preparation.

Tom Churchill, rising young University of Oklahoma allround star, dashed to a brilliant victory over Vernon Kennedy of the Missouri State Teachers' College of Warrensburg, Mo., in the decathlon, a new event added for the benefit of those preparing for Olympic competition.

The youthful Oklahoman, who will make a powerful bid for an Olympic team berth in that event, amassed a total of 7384.8526 points, to take the event. Churchill, who has been called Oklahoma University's greatest all-time athlete, won first in the 1500-meter, broad jump and discus, took a pair of second places, as many third and fourths, and finished low only in the high jump, in which he placed eleventh, with a leap of 5 feet 6½ inches.

Churchill took the 1500-meter event in 4:44, won the broad jump with a leap of 21 feet 11¾ inches, and took the discus throw with a heave of 122 feet 11 inches.

Kennedy was not far behind Churchill with 7312.3414 points, high enough to indicate he, too, will make a strong bid for the Olympic team. He won first in the shotput and javelin, took two seconds and two fourths, three thirds and a sixth place.

The two were the only ones of the 14 performers who indicated championship or Olympic class, the others falling far short of the 6000-point mark.

Northwestern dominated the relays, collecting nine points by winning a first and tying for another. Missouri collected 8½ points by winning a first, tying for a third and fourth.

Illinois totaled eight points in the relays, while the Texas Aggies and Kansas got seven each.

Favorites Fall Down.

Many crack relay teams chosen as favorites fell down. The two-mile, which had been conceded to Iowa State with two teams entered, went instead to Missouri, when the Tigers punch Epstein swept by Caulum in the final stretch to force the Cyclones into second place. The time was 8:03.

Oklahoma, with the fleet Keith Brunning the anchor mile, claimed the medley relay in the fast time of 10:57.2. It was a new event, and the record will go on the meet books.

BONIVAN TAKES CAMDEN HANDICAP, OPENING FEATURE AT LEXINGTO

FIRE ON RUNS SECOND, SHARK FINISHES THIRD

Victor Beats Field by Three Lengths After Challenge From Fire On in the Back Stretch.

By the Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 21.—The fifth race, the Camden Handicap, $3000 added, for 3-year-olds and up, was won by Bonivan at Lexington this afternoon. It was the outstanding event of the program which ushered in spring racing in Kentucky.

Fire On ran second, while Shark finished in third place.

Bonivan took the lead and held it until the back stretch, where he was challenged by Fire On, but shook off that charge and won by three lengths. Shark was in close pursuit of the leaders and finished close to Fire On for third money.

Devon finished fourth.

Race 'Take-Out' For Kentucky Tracks Raised

State Commission Permits 6 1-2 Per Cent at Two Major Tracks.

By the Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 21.—An increased "take-out" of money wagered through pari-mutuel machines was allowed Kentucky and other tracks operating under their direction by the Kentucky Racing Commission in executive session here today.

Under the new ruling approved by the Commission the tracks at Churchill Downs and Latonia would be allowed a 6½ per cent reduction and all other tracks a 10 per cent cut. Under the old rule a 5 per cent reduction was allowed all tracks.

Meeting probably for the last time, members of the Commission appointed by former Gov. William J. Fields approved licenses for 71 jockeys, 268 trainers, 38 apprentice jockeys and 68 agents. Five jockeys, including Willie Pool, were refused license although no charges against them were announced. The others were Clarence Dishmon, Strother Griffin, Harry Harner and John J. Robbins. Applications of C. H. and W. L. Smith were held up pending further consideration.

L. A. Lentz was appointed telegraph censor on all Kentucky tracks.

Flem D. Sampson who succeeded Gov. Fields in the last general election is expected to announce appointment of his new commission soon.

aCoupled. bCoupled.

Click rushed along from start came over sharply at the Elbow and impeded Lady Capulet, continued with good course under severe urging and outlasted Infinitely. Latter hurried along raced very greenly an dbumped Lady Capulet repeatedly during the stretch run. Latter had a very rough trip to show a splendid effort. Calm was never able to improve her position. Virado broke fast and clear but could not keep in contention. Paraphasa was never a factor. Haystack broke slowly as did Caravan.

$2 mutuels paid: Click win $7.80, place $5.70, show $5.60; Infinitely place $10.30, show $8.20; Lady Capulet show $12.10.

SECOND RACE—$1400, the Arco Handicap, 3-year-olds, six furlongs: Start fair; won driving; place same. Went to post 3:07 p. m.; at post 1 minute. Winner, b. c. 3, by Royal Canopy-Haysack. Trainer, W. Garth. Time, :23, :47 3-5, 1:13. Value to winners, $1000, $250, $100, $50.

Knapsack, outrun early, worked his way to leaders fast, disposed of opposition entering home stretch and, holding well, held Typhoon safe under pressure. Latter, away slowly, was badly outrun early, made up a lot of ground to finish going strong. Sun Friar closed a big gap. Beauregard set a fast pace, lost ground at stretch turn and tired. Bookie lacked early speed, came wide to close strong. Water Lad displayed keen speed for five furlongs and tired badly thereafter. Greenock outbroke his field, raced well for four furlongs and was not persevered with thereafter.

$2 mutuels paid: Knapsack, win $11.10, place $5.80, show $2.80; Typhoon, place $3.10, show $2.60; Sun Friar, show $3.50.

THIRD RACE—$1400, The Eclipse Handicap, 3-year-olds and up, 6 furlongs. Start good; won driving, place same. Went to post at 3:37, at post 1 minute. Winner br. c. 4, Rise and Lormes-Quietude. Trainer, G. W. Campbell. Time, :22 2-5, :47 2-5, 1:13 2-5. Value to winners, $1000, $310, $140, $50.

bBiedwell entry.

Contemplate showing keen speed from the barrier, assumed a brief early lead, shook off Bulletin and Senator Norris and withstood a tedious drive gamely and outstayed Sun Beau. Latter raced into contention on the outside, raced to even terms with winner but hung in the final furlong. Montferrat finished with good courage. Senator Norris was in close quarters early and went wide at stretch turn. Bulletin beat his field from the barrier to force a fast pace but quit badly. Rolls Royce was away very slowly.

$2 mutuels paid: Contemplate, win $8.80, place $4.60, show $3.40; Sun Beam, place $5.70, show $3.70; Mont Ferrat, show $4.40.

FOURTH RACE—$10,000 added, the Philadelphia Handicap, 3-year-olds and up; 1 mile and one-sixteenth: Start good; won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:11; at post 1 minutes. *Field. †Coupled. H. P. Headley entry. ‡Seagram stable entry.

Canter, reserved off the pace, gained resolutely when released, disposed of Helen's Babe at furlong pole and came away into an easy lead at the end. Helen's Babe had a bit the best of her rivals in the first six furlongs and, after, was unable to withstand the winner's rush. Scapa Flow, away slowly, improved his position steadily, finished strong, but was inclined to bear in during the stretch run and finished on the heels of Helen's Babe. Peter Peter was racing wide in the final issue. Mike Hall went well, Gaffsman and Sir Harry were away slow and never reached contention. Buddy Bauer was poorly handled.

$2 mutuels paid: Canter, win $7.10, place $3.90, show $2.90; Helen's Babe, place $6.10, show $3.60; Scapa Flow, show $3.40.

FIFTH RACE—$1500, the Combat Purse: 3-year-olds, one mile and 70 yards: Start good; won driving; place same. Went to post 3:07 p. m.; at post 1 minute. Winner b. c. 3, by Dorracona-Milfoil. Trainer, M. Hirsch. Time, :24, :49 2-5, 1:14 3-5, 1:41, 1:46 1-5. Value to winners; $1000, $360, $190, $50.

Tara's Hall came around field to first turn, was kept in front under slight restraint, saved ground and held on strongly when challenged in last half mile. Arcturus, ony the outside throughout, finished with splendid energy and outgamed Burning Glass. Later in near pursuit of the pacemaker, made several efforts and closed gamely. Memory, poorly handled, was in the rear at the turn, recovered, was steered into severe pockets thereafter. Friar's Hope was overmatched.

$2 mutuels paid: Tara's Hall, win, $9.70; place, $5.40; show, $2.60. Arcturus, place, $3.40; show, $2.30. Burning Glass, show, $2.20.

SIXTH RACE—The Baltimore Olympic, claiming, 4-year-olds and up, one mile and one-sixteenth: Start good; won driving; place easily. Went to post 5:14 p. m.; at post 1 minute. Winner, b. g. 5, by Holiday-Fairymaid. Trainer, J. Mackey. Time :24, :49 2-5, 1:13, 1:42 4-5, 1:50. Value to winners, $850, $200, $100, $50.

La Morte	122	6	4	5d	6d	6	6	6	R. Jackson	4.00

Fairyman rated in near attendance of the leaders, was kept on inside and was blocked when attempting to get through on the inside on the back stretch, gained command at the furlong pole when Houston was taken very wide, but had to be aroused sharply to last long enough. Houston easily disposed of All Blue and appeared to be racing well in hand when he was taken wide and lost much ground, came again and just failed to get up. All Blue went well throughout. Rock Hawk was always outrun. Phanarist showed early speed and disfavored the going.

$2 mutuels paid—Fairyman, win $11.10, place $5.80, show $2.80; Houston, place $5.00, show $3.30; All Blue, show $3.30.

Forest Lore placed forwardly, responded with good energy when called upon, displaced the leaders rounding the far turn and came along to a good lead when shaken up during the final quarter mile. Ruban Rouge slow to get into his stride, made a wide turn into the mains tretch to finish going strongly. Gilbert Cook, rated in a contending position, weakened in the final issue. Highwayman had no excuses. Irvington closed full of run. Real Artist stopped.

Two-dollar mutuels paid: Forest Lore, place, $10.60, show $3.10; Ruban Rouge, place $3.10, show $2.70; Gilbert Cook, show $5.60.

Paumonok Handicap Tomorrow.

FIFTEEN of the fastest sprinters in the East will line up at the barrier in the $5000 added Paumonok Handicap, feature race on the opening day program at Jamaica tomorrow. A number of owners have more than one racer named for the nineteenth running of the Paumonok. H. P. Whitney has named his good horses Victorian and Twitter while Rancocas Stable is represented by Sweepster, top weight, and Nassak. The latter is eligible for the Preakness and Kentucky Derby and is making his second start of the year. He ran second to Polydor, an entrant, in the Paumonok, Thursday at United Hunts. Victorian, a full brother to Whiskery, is also eligible for the two $50,000 stakes. He will make his first public appearance of the season in tomorrow's race.

One other Preakness eligible is named to start in the Paumonok. This youngster is Fair Stable's Oh Say. Sweepster is assigned 124 pounds and will concede weight to every horse in the race. Ramoneur, an imported racer, and Sarmaticus are next with 114 each. Nassak is in at 111 and Victorian at 110. The Paumonok will be run over a distance of six furlongs.

Victorian in First Race.

VICTORIAN is also entered in the first race, the Cedar Manor.

A few other horses, eligible for the Kentucky Derby, are named for the Cedar Manor. Whitney's Tantivy, which will make his first start, has drawn the inside post position. Mowlee, owned by Rancocas Stable, and Victorian will carry top weight. Each has been assigned 122 pounds. Among the other Derby hopes entered are: Propus, owned by Gifford A. Cochran; Robert L. Gerry's Ironsides. The Cedar Manor carries a value of $1200 and will be run over a distance of six furlongs.

A group of Western candidates for the Kentucky Derby will race in the Frankfort Purse at Lexington tomorrow. The race is at one mile and has drawn Prince Bulbo, Martie Flynn, Hiram, Calvados, Rejoice, Beelzebub and Dodgson. The latter is owned by the Everglade Stable and will undoubtedly face the barrier an odds-on choice to win. He has shown fast trials over the Association track during the past few days and appears to be in the best condition possible. Martie Flynn, owned by C. W. Moore, and Prince Bulbo, are top weight. Low weight is 107 pounds. The feature event on the card is the Phoenix Hotel Handicap for 3-year-olds and up. Eight racers have been named for the event.

Old Dutch Works Fast.

OLD DUTCH, an entrant in the Paumonok Handicap, turned in the fastest trial of the day over the Belmont Park course yesterday morning, when he went five furlongs in 1:01 handily. Among the other horses entered in tomorrow's races, which worked yesterday at Belmont were: Popus, six furlongs in 1:16 2-5; Ironsides, six furlongs in 1:16h; Agapanthus, three-quarters in 1:16h.

* * *

Joseph E. Widener, president of the Westchester Racing Association, which operates the Belmont Park track, had his good horses, Chance Play, Chance Shot and Osmand out for an airing yesterday. Chance Shot and Osmand went a half mile in company. The distance was traversed in :50. Both horses were breezing. Chance Play went the four furlongs in :51, breez

Parole II Wins At Beulah Park

Favorite Gains Clean-Cut Victory in Open Day Handicap.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., April 21.—Parole II, heavily backed favorite, won the Beulah Park Inaugural Handicap, feature event of opening day of the spring race meeting here today, over a track that was muddy. The victor got off to a splendid start, but was held back by Jockey J. Jeffries until the mile post had been reached. A burst of speed put him to the fore, replacing Smacker, which finished second, in the final 70 yards, to score a clean-cut victory.

Otto Berz, an early pacesetter, finished third.

Roosevelt High won in the senior division and Soldan took junior honors in the St. Louis District track and field meet yesterday at Taylor Field, St. Louis County.

Soldan's victory in the juniors was scored decisively, the winners totaling 44 points to the 29 points of Clayton, closest competitor. But Roosevelt had no such easy task in the senior division and finished less than three points in advance of its next competitor, St. Charles High. Roosevelt's score was 31 points to the 28 1-3 points of St. Charles. Webster pulled up third with 22 points.

Cook, of Soldan carried off the high point honors for the day with 14 points, in the Junior Division. Israel, of Clayton had two firsts to give him 10 points. Cook competed in four events, finishing first in two, second in one and fourth in another. Israel won the 50-yard dash and the 100-yard dash.

In the senior division, Meyer of St. Charles won the 220 and 440-yard dashes to score 10 points. Heitz of Roosevelt was next with a first and a second to score eight points. Westrup of Webster won the 120-yard high hurdles and finished third in the 220-yard low hurdles to carry off third place in individual honors.

Victor in Tijuana Derby Is Being Prepared for Kentucky Classic to Be Run May 19.

No. 14—Derby Candidates.

Doctor Wilson.

Doctor Wilson, one of the many horses sold at the Saratoga Yearling sales in 1926 by John E. Madden, leading American breeder, is the main reliance of the Canyon Stable, owned by J. A. Coburn and Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion, in the fifty-fourth renewal of the Kentucky Derby, May 19. He is quoted at 100 to 1 in the future books.

Doctor Wilson started racing early as a 2-year-old but has won only one stake, the Tijuana Derby. Though campaigned on the New York and Tijuana tracks, he did not have much success on the Metropolitan courses.

His racing career began at Tijuana early in 1927. In his first trip to the barrier he finished seventh. He then ran second to Sun Meddler, winner of the Tijuana Futurity of 1927. In his next start he broke out of the maiden class, trimming a fair band of juveniles over a distance of three furlongs. In two other starts during the early part of 1927 he ran second to Sunchen and third to Proctor Hug.

Won One Race at Jamaica.

Following the close of the Tijuana meeting, the Canyon Stable was shipped to New York for the summer. Doctor Wilson was entered in a race at Jamaica shortly after his arrival and finished seventh to Aster, Miss Boyd and Latvia. In three other races at Jamaica, Doctor Wilson won one and finished third in another. He defeated Ephesian, Aster and Our Adele in his winning race and lost to Nassak, Skavar and Mordine in his other starts.

From Jamaica, he was sent to Belmont Park where he started in once race, finished seventh to Distraction. Dicing and Grocuber. He made two starts at Aqueduct but could do no better than fourth. He was then shipped back to Belmont where he went to the barrier twice without winning. He went to Aqueduct but finished third, seven lengths behind the winner, Hogan's Alley, in his only start there. He was sent to Jamaica after the Aqueduct meeting and ran fourth to Sport Hallahan.

From Jamaica Doctor Wilson was sent to Empire City where he started twice. In his first effort he finished second to Dignus. A few days later he trimmed Sport Hallahan, Palm Beach and Mi Vida over a distance of about six furlongs. He stayed at Empire until the latter part of November when he was shipped across the country to Tijuana for the winter campaigns.

It was at the border track that the son of Danger Rock struck his stride. In 10 starts he won five races, was second once and third once.

Captures Tijuana Derby.

Doctor Wilson ran third in his first start there, but came back in his next out and won handily from Proctor Hug. He was entered against a band of older horses a few days later and ran second to Bonnie Omar. He followed this with two straight victories. He then ran third but won again his next start.

At one mile and 70 yards, Doctor Wilson ran fourth to Carlaris, Crystal Pennant and Rip Rap. This race was a conditioning affair for the Tijuana Derby.

On the day of the Tijuana Derby the track was turned into a sea of mud. Doctor Wilson went to the post one of the favorites and won in a drive from General Diskin by a nose. He carried 122 pounds.

Son of Danger Rock Has Started 28 Times During Career and Has Been Unplaced on 10 Occasions.

His next start was in the Coffroth Handicap, but with only 100 pounds on his back, Doctor Wilson ran eleventh to Crystal Pennant, Sun God II and Carlaris. He did not race after that.

Danger Rock, sire of the colt, was a good racer in England, having won the Newmarket Stakes and Hastings Plate and second in the Exeter Stakes. Cubanita, the dam, was also a winner, garnering more than $10,000 on the turf.

Doctor Wilson was bred at John E. Madden's Hamburg Stud, near Louisville, and can run fairly well on a muddy track, although his best performances have been over fast courses.

Blackburn Rovers Win Soccer Title

By the Associated Press.

WEMBLEY STADIUM, England, April 21.—The Blackburn Rovers won the classic English Football Association cup today, defeating Huddersfield Town three goals to one.

A crowd, estimated at 91,000, occupying every seat in the huge stadium, witnessed the contest. Many others were unable to gain admission to see the elevens battle for supremacy.

McAuliffe Will Fight Moore Here

Jack McAuliffe, Detroit heavyweight who scored a decisive point victory over the veteran Battling Levinsky in his introductory local bout last Tuesday, signed for a 10-round bout with Sandy Moore of Chicago, on the New Coliseum boxing card for Tuesday night, May 1, according to Matchmaker Jack Tippett of the Fred Stockham American Legion Post.

McAuliffe's opponent in the coming card is reputed to be a hard right-hand puncher, with 12 knockout victories to his credit in a total of 20 professional bouts. He is 23 years old, 6 feet, 1 inch tall, weighs 197 pounds and has been boxing about three years. In recent engagements he knocked out Joe Burke and Sergeant Joe Lee and won decisions over Benny Touchstone, Cecil Harris and Battling Ed Cavanaugh.

The match between McAuliffe and Moore will support another heavyweight attraction in which Pierre Charles, the Belgian champion, and Jack Renault, the Canadian titleholder, are slated to battle 10 rounds.

LeGear Shoots a 77.

Sid LeGear's 77 was the lowest score turned in at the Sunset Hill golf course yesterday. Others were Sam Pingree, 80; L. H. Jostes, 85; A. E. Arthur, 86; Tarleton Brown, 86; F. J. Boehm, 88; J. P. Cabanne, 88; George L. Dyer, 88; R. J. Gaunel, 89, and R. C. Stackle, 92.

BUD TAYLOR TO RETIRE AT END OF THIS SEASON

Bantam Champion Likely to Meet Bell and Kid Francis in Title Bouts in Near Future.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 21.—Bud Taylor, one of the greatest crowd pleasrs who ever trod the canvas in a boxing ring, and a champion at that, will in all probability quit the game for good at the end of the 1928 season.

Eddie Long, manager of Taylor, is planning to have Bud retire at the end of the year, but it is just possible that Buddy will stretch it until after the New Year's date. He plans to quit the game for all time, no matter whether he holds the championship at that time or not.

No champion has had a more strenuous career than Taylor. He has had over 120 battles since he started in 1920, just eight years ago, and many of them have been of the rip-roaring order.

Not only has Bud met all comers in the bantam division, winning the title, but he has gone out of his class many, many times, fighting boys of top-notch class at 126 and 128 pounds. At no time during these fierce battles has Bud weighed much over the bantamweight limit of 118 pounds.

To Oppose Kid Francis.

It was intended to have Taylor and Kid Francis, the Italian star, fight for the championship in New York, May 4, but the chances are now that it will be held in one of the New York baseball parks early in June, when the receipts are sure to go much higher than could possibly be expected at Madison Square Garden.

Archie Bell is also clamoring for a chance at the title, and it is possible that Bud and the clever New Yorker, who defeated Teddy Baldock in London, may come together before the Francis-Taylor match.

Another challenger for the title is Henry Lenard, the Chicago southpaw, who can make the necessary 118 pounds, but who has been fighting the past two years as a featherweight.

20-Year-Old Winnebago Brave Is Victor in Kansas U. Marathon

Only Indians Compete in Race From Topeka to Lawrence, Kan.—Harold Buchanan, Winner, Exhausted at the Tape.

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Kan., April 21.—Harold Buchanan, 20, Winnebago Indian from Black River Falls, Wis., competing for Haskell Institute, today won the International Indian Marathon, which was run from Topeka, Kan.

The race finished with a quarter mile turn of the memorial stadium track here where the sixth annual Kansas relays were in progress.

Buchanan appeared exhausted as he hit the tape after walking part of the last 100 yards of the 26 mile 385 yard route.

His time was announced as three hours, four minutes, 56 seconds, fairly fast considering the route and adverse weather conditions.

Harry Chadea, 18-year-old Hopi representing Sherman Institute, Riverside, Cal., finished second. The 127 pound runner from Polarca, Ariz., came in in 3:06:51, finishing fairly strong.

Albert Cooley, 18-year-old Apache and another of Haskell's nine entrants, finished third. His time was 3:14.6.

Others finished in the following order and time:

Pete Nevada, Bannock-Shosone, Haskell 3:32:02; Earl Robinson, Stockbridge, Haskell, 3:32:30; Frank Goodleaf, Iroquois, Caughnawaga, Quebec, 3:33:04; Herman Thompson, Sioux, Haskell, 3:39:30; Henry Mahgomba, Pottawatomie, Haskell, 3:42:15.

Keeps Your Hair Neat, Rich-looking and Orderly

IF your hair lacks natural gloss and lustre, or is difficult to keep in place, it is very easy to give it that rich, glossy, refined and orderly appearance, so essential to well-groomed men.

Just rub a little Glostora through your hair once or twice a week,—or after shampooing, and your hair will then stay, each day, just as you comb it.

Glostora softens the hair and makes it pliable. Then, even stubborn hair will stay in place of its own accord.

It gives your hair that natural, rich, well-groomed effect, instead of leaving it stiff and artificial looking as waxy pastes and creams do. Glostora also keeps the scalp soft, and the hair healthy by restoring the natural oils from which the hair derives its health, life, gloss and lustre.

Try it! See how easy it is to keep your hair combed any style you like, whether brushed lightly or combed down flat.

If you want your hair to lie down particularly smooth and tight, after applying Glostora, simply moisten your hair with water before brushing it. A large bottle of Glostora costs but a trifle at any drug store.

PACEMAKER—Always in the Lead

THE rush of smokers to 5-cent cigars is the outstanding fact of 1927 business, showing the positive return of 5-cent cigar quality.

Wm. Penn, first representative cigar to challenge higher prices after the war, set the pace for the back turn to 5-cent cigars. First, when it was the only reliable 5-cent cigar, it is still first when there are many—first in quality—first in sales—and first in the fond acceptance of American smokers.

Sheer quality, that's it. Bulkier 5-cent cigars may catch your eye, lubberly, loosely-wrapped rolls of inferior tobacco, but only Wm. Penn has the fine tobacco that satisfies a smoker.

Look for the Wm. Penn box at your dealer's, and select from it the nation's verdict on "a good cigar."

Activities of Boy Scouts

FIRST SCOUT CAMP WILL OPEN FRIDAY

Non-Commissioned Leaders to Attend Outing at Irondale.

Camp Irondale, the Ozark magnet which draws hundreds of St. Louis Boy Scouts each year to a summer vacation in the hills, will open for the first time this season Friday, Saturday and Sunday, with the fourth annual week-end camp for non-commissioned scout leaders. Irondale, the official summer outing site of the St. Louis Boy Scout Council near Irondale, Mo., is one of the largest and best-equipped scout camps in the country.

The non-commissioned camp, which is open to junior assistant scoutmasters, senior patrol leaders, patrol leaders, assistant patrol leaders, scribes, buglers, and quartermasters, will be a combination of camping and a training course in outdoor activities, with special emphasis on the parts the non-commissioned officer may play in assisting his troop in this phase of scouting. The camp is in no sense a school, as all the ideas are to be brought out through the medium of games and outdoor activities.

Approximately 200 boys are expected to leave for the camp on the special Missouri Pacific train Friday evening. A large proportion of the personnel will be official delegates sent by the troops, many of which are following a suggestion of the Council's that each troop pay the expenses of two non-commissioned leaders who may afterward instruct the remainder of the scouts in what they have learned at the camp. Some troops have made the appointment of a delegate a matter of award for proficiency in a contest or in general scouting in the last year. The camp, however, is not restricted to official delegates.

Several other special camps, including one for scoutmasters, their assistants and troop committeemen, and one for rural troops along the Missouri Pacific Railroad, will be held at Irondale before the main summer camp opens June 2. The main or cabin camp will be divided into six sections, four of two weeks each, and two of three weeks. There will also be six sections of Ranger Camp, two, the Ranger Ride and the Merit Badge Camp, running concurrently from Aug. 1 to Aug. 13, one group being on a horseback tour of the Ozarks while the other concentrates on merit badge work in the camp at Irondale.

Three other special camps, two roving bus tours to the east, and an all-summer tepee camp also will be held. The tepee camp will include a tour to Yellowstone Park, while one of the roving camps will be used as an award to the winning patrols of the Camparall, a city-wide, all-round contest in scouting activities to be held June 1. All camps will close Sept. 1.

The cost of the noncommissioned camp, including fare on the special train, will be $5 for the three days. Without transportation it will be $2. A request has been issued by headquarters that all registrations be made immediately, so cabin assignments may be made as soon as possible.

Troop Notes

West District.

Plans for participation in the annual Scout Leaders' Outing at Camp Irondale May 4, 5 and 6 will be discussed at a meeting of all scout leaders of the West District at the Union Avenue Christian Church tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock. A program is also scheduled.

The Fountain Park Congregational Church is organizing a scout troop under the leadership of C. H. Lattner. The committee is headed by L. A. Tomkins, former scoutmaster of a troop in that church, and held its first meeting last Thursday night. Lattner served as superintendent for several years.

The scouts of Troop 119 of the Shaare Zedek Temple are working toward developing a patrol to enter the Camparall. No one of the 19 members is yet sure of a place on the patrol.

Newly appointed Deputy Commissioner Leroy Lane was present at the meeting of Troop 110 of All Saints Catholic School last Wednesday, and gave a talk on Camp Irondale. This was 110's first visit from Lane.

George Richardson has resigned as assistant scoutmaster of Troop 26 of the Delmar Baptist Church. B. D. Moss Sr., outdoor member of the Troop Committee, is assisting Scoutmaster Jaudon. Richardson has moved to Arkansas.

A special meeting of Troop 23 of the Gibson Heights United Presbyterian Church was held in honor of Scoutmaster F. J. Usher's seventy-third birthday. The meeting was presided over by Chairman of the Troop Committee Smiley and short talks were made by Committeeman Ormsby and Field Executive Reaves. A gold fountain pen set was presented to Scoutmaster Usher by Deputy Commissioner C. H. Williams on behalf of the troop. A medal of achievement was awarded to Scout William Blanke who scored 100 per cent in a first aid contest. The troop performed scout stunts and gave first aid demonstrations after which refreshments were served.

An outing was held by Troop 94 in Forest Park last Sunday with 11 scouts present. The troop planted two trees in the pastor's front yard in memory of two members of the parish who died in the service of their country. The troop was in charge of Senior Patrol Leader Kenneth Else.

Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Allen Austin of Troop 113 of the Church of the Messiah was awarded a 100 per cent duty medal by the members of the troop for his good work during the period Troop 113 had no scoutmaster. Last Saturday the troop went to Forest Park and played games. Several new members have been added recently.

The hike that had been planned for Troop 59 of the Eden Immanuel Evangelical Church to Kenwood Springs has been postponed. Next Friday the troop will hold an observation hike in Forest Park. Plans are also being made by this troop for the Camparall. Interpatrol contests will be held to determine which patrol will take part.

Scout Wilbert Weidner of Troop 5 of the West Presbyterian Church won the Ram Patrol contest with 18 points and Scout John Brooks was second with 10 points. Scouts Robert Hay and Drury King tied for third place with eight points each. Field Executive Reaves was present at the meeting last week and gave a talk on Camp Irondale. An overnight hike is planned for May 25 to Lions' Den Reservation.

The scouts of Troop 75 of the Washington School followed a winding trail through Forest Park last week that led them to the old tourist camp where a feast of wieners and marshmallows had been provided by Committeeman Osborn. This was a surprise on Scout Robert Osborn, whose fifteenth birthday came on the troop's meeting night.

An illustrated talk was given at the last meeting of Troop 99 of the Temple Shaare Emeth by Dr. Harry Greditzer. A hike to Ranken Cave will be taken today, when many tests are to be passed. The patrol that will represent Troop 99 in the coming Camparall will be chosen by a merit contest. Scouts Marcus Brown and Sigmund Meyer are to be sent to the noncommissioned officers' camp for their work for the troop during the last year.

North District

A reorganization meeting of Troop 88 of the Salem Evangelical Church was held last Friday evening, as it was time for the troop to re-register for the coming year. Scoutmaster Bull resigned as scoutmaster of the troop and was appointed as chairman of the Troop Committee. A new Troop Committee was formed at the Brotherhood meeting, with 14 members signing up. The troop now is practicing for the Camparall. Members of the Troop Committee commended Assistant Scoutmaster John Stumpf for the excellent manner in which he conducted the troop the last six weeks, when Scoutmaster Bull was unable to attend meetings.

Three new boys were added to Troop 161, of the Webster School, at the meeting last week, at which Assistant Scoutmaster Collins had charge. Several tests were passed and then a number of games were played, after which the scoutmasters' benediction was given.

Eighteen scouts, four officers and a visitor were present at the meeting of Troop 2, of the Grace Holy Cross Church, last week. Several tests were passed in first aid, knot tying and nature. Scout Herman Mast has become second-class and is working on first-class tests. Twenty scouts already have re-registered for the new year. Plans are being made for the Camparall.

Thirty-nine scouts were present at the troop meeting of Troop 42, of the Zion Evangelical Church. The troop now has five leading patrols, and much competition is being shown as to whom will attend the Camparall.

A competitive game was played by Troop 206, of the Ames School, with Troop 161, of the Webster School, last meeting night. Music was furnished by the new drum and bugle corps of Troop 206.

South District.

Five new scouts enrolled in Troop 66 of the Dover Place Christian Church last month were invested at the last troop meeting. At the present time, each individual patrol is preparing for the coming Camparall.

A meeting of the Troop Committee of Troop 184 was held at Kingshighway Park Methodist Church last Tuesday night. Field Executive Shippey helped to arrange a program for the spring and summer months. It is planned to hold a scout service some Sunday in May and a father and sons' banquet. The committee voted in three new members, Jones, Wilbur and Schroudt. Each one plans to attend one troop meeting a month. The full committee will hold monthly meetings. The troop is planning to send five patrol leaders to the patrol leaders' camp at Irondale.

Field Executive Shippey was present at the last meeting of Troop 28 at Bryan Mullanphy School, Friday night, and talked to the boys on Camp Irondale. He also presented to the troop one of the Howard streamers to which it was entitled but by mistake did not receive at the scout circus recently. The troop recruited 10 new boys between Jan. 1 and the date of the circus.

New Deputy Commissioner L. A. Lang was present at the meeting of Troop 259 of the Shepherd School last week.

A game of capture the flag was played by Troop 198 of the St. John's Episcopal Church with Troop 131. Although neither side succeeded in capturing the flag, Troop 198 captured six men to Troop 131's four. In a patrol leaders' contest the scores are as follows: Charleville 20, Shorky 27, Roa 27, and Frantz 17. The troop is continuing its bow and arrow contest. Last Sunday the junior officers took a hike and made arrangements for a troop hike to be held soon in preparation for the camparall.

Twelve scouts and Scoutmaster Reiter of Troop 215 of the Carondelet School hiked to Cliff Cave last Sunday. Tests in fire building, cooking and scouts' pace were passed by several. A tenderfoot investiture ceremony for five scouts concluded the program.

Seven new scouts, William Brinkman, Alvin Busekrus, Edwin Gallant, Kenneth Lindley, William Reinholdt, Richard Winterman and Arland Wood, were taken into Troop 91 at an investiture ceremony held a week ago Friday evening. Many parents attended, despite the bad weather. In the program following the investiture, plans for the troop's participation in the camparall were announced. The patrol leaders will be the troop's guests at the coming patrol leaders' camp at Irondale next week-end.

Suburban District.

Scout Chesterd Cundiff of Overland 1, of the Overland School, is the second scout in Overland to win the Life Scout badge. He was presented with it at the City court of Honor last Monday. Cundiff is working to become an Eagle Scout by the next City Court.

The scouts of Overland 2, of the Overland Christian Church, spent last weekend at Assistant Scoutmaster Jacobs' cabin on the Meramec near Eureka, traveling to the cabin in two automobiles and a trick belonging to the assistant scoutmaster. The scouts took an exploration hike before supper, which was prepared by Jacobs and Chairman Umstattd of the Troop Committee. A campfire was held Sunday evening, the scouts telling stories around it. Assistant Scoutmaster Pierce arrived at midnight.

Religious services were conducted by Umstattd Sunday morning, after an early breakfast. Scoutmaster Evers arrived to participate in the morning activities of test-passing. A long distance signalling game also was played, and a nature hike was taken. They returned Sunday afternoon.

TROOP 83 GIVES A CIRCUS

Raise Funds for Treasury by Entertainment.

More than 200 persons attended a public troop circus given by Troop 83 of the St. Paul's Presbyterian Church last week. Nearly $45 was raised for the troop treasury by the sale of tickets. Pioneering projects and model camps were erected in a vacant lot beside the church, and a regular program of scouting activities was demonstrated. Field Executive Hotchkiss of the North District was present and showed motion pictures of Camp Irondale. He also made a short talk on camp. Hotchkiss led in commending Scoutmaster Schroeder and Assistant Scoutmaster Silby for the progress they have made with the troop since its organization just last December.

About 25 boys participated in the circus.

HISPANO-SUIZA WINS OVER STUTZ IN 24-HOUR RACE

Breakdowns Retard the Progress of American Entry—Foreign Car Averages 70.14 M. P. H.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 21—After a hectic night of trouble consisting of valves that refused to function and connecting rods that poked around at random, the Stutz Black Hawk, entry of F. E. Moskovics, president of the Stutz Motor Car Co., flapped its broken wings early Thursday in the scheduled 24-hour grind in competition with Charles T. Weymann's Hispano-Suiza speedster and the flag of France waved gayly over the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

The French job had completed 543 laps or 1,357½ miles at an average speed of 70:14 mile an hour. The Stutz with 293 laps to its credit was pushed from the track with two broken rods and the international event was done.

Stages Exhibition Race.

However the day was early, Weymann cheerfully suggested that an exhibition race be staked for the benefit of the customers. Another Black Hawk was brought out. In a few minutes the Hispano and the new Stutz were roaring around the course.

Early Wednesday afternoon, in fact after only fifty minutes, the Stutz entry showed signs of weakening. It was noticable that the front and rear right tires were assuming a paper white complexion on the Black Hawk at that time and Gil Anderson, pilotin the car at the start, came into the Stutz p.s. The two tires were jerked and the car was refueled.

A little later the Black Hawk crept in again and it was found that a valve had cracked. Whereas the Hispano with Weymann at the wheel, was a scant lap ahead when Anderson first reported in, thirty minutes of precious time was spent in getting the Moskovics entry back on the track. The Stutz crew worked frantically.

In the meantime, the Hispano purred along, lap after lap, with many of those who know their gas engines asserting vigorously that the French car had not yet been given an opportunity to step out.

With the unlucky valve repaired, the Stutz again took the track with the stands madly cheering its reappearance. The same stands settled down comfortably after a few laps confident that the race would assume serious competitive proportions.

Short-Lived Rally.

This rally was short lived. Again the Stutz paid a visit to the boys in the pits and a few rods down the way the Hispano crew got its heads together and agreed that after all there was no hurry. Weymann cut down his pace, with the second long stay in the pits the lead of the Hispano took on serious proportions.

The Stutz pit crew worked frantically and shortly before dusk the little car was again whirling around the oval. Came darkness and the Hispano had an advantage of 50 laps.

With darkness came the lighting of flares every 100 yards. Into the blackness of the west end of the course appeared the twin spots of headlights of the Stutz and a few yards behind those of the Hispano. It was 8 o'clock. The Hispano signalled for a pit stop, but on the next lap only the French car showed up. It stopped. After a few tragic moments of waiting the Stutz crew elected to go after their charge but were saved the trouble when it came limping in. A rod had broken.

The only difference between this scene in the pits and those that preceded was that of time. It was after 11 o'clock when the Black Hawk rolled out again into the course. The Hispano was more than 200 miles to the good. The distance might have been greater but the Hispano had come in out of a rain which had come as surely as the warning. It was heavy rain storm.

Broken Rod.

Once again, near 1 a. m., the Black Hawk was in, apparently the broken rod had caused a leak in the cylinder head. At midnight the Hispano had covered 320 laps or 800 miles: the Stutz 139 laps. At 1125 miles the French car had maintained an average of 70.5 miles an hour. The Stutz had covered 525 miles at this point. A little more than 15 hours had elapsed with nine hours and a half of this time spent in the pits on the part of the American entry. The Hispano had made one stop not a forced one, of 18 minutes as the rain merely dashed off the brick pavement.

The early morning hours found the Black Hawk making a most creditable showing. It was estimated, however, that 100 miles

The Hispano was more than 300 miles to the good. The distance might have been greater, but the Hispano had come in out of a rain which had come as surely as the warning. It was heavy rain storm.

Broken Rod.

Once again, near 1 a. m., the Black Hawk was in, apparently the broken rod had caused a leak in the cylinder head. At midnight the Hispano had covered 320 laps, or 800 miles; the Stutz 139 laps. At 1125 miles the French car had maintained an average of 70.89 miles an hour. The Stutz had covered 525 miles at this point. A little more than 15 hours had elapsed with nine hours and a half of this time spent in the pits on the part of the American entry. The Hispano had made one stop, not a forced one, of 18 minutes as the rain merely dashed off the brick pavement.

The early morning hours found the Black Hawk making a most creditable showing. It was easily figured, however, that 100 miles

WADE MORTON

MORTON BELIEVES IN SPEED WITH SAFETY

Speed Ace, Now Auburn Test Chief, Closes 2000-Mile Trip Here.

Wade Morton, chief of the test and research staff of the Auburn Motor Car Co., arrived in St. Louis early yesterday morning for a two-hour sojourn before completing the last lap of a 2000-mile circle trip through the Central and Western states.

Morton, who drove one of the new 115 h. p. Auburn stock speedsters, such as recently was run at better than 100 m. p. h. on Daytona Beach, said the trip was made to demonstrate the practicability of building a car with combined speed and safety principles. He said that if his trip had been under official observance he undoubtedly would now be in possession of a new record for elapsed time over a 2000-mile route in a stock car.

Morton, a licensed A. A. A. race pilot and former star performer on the Indianapolis Speedway, said that there was as much a feeling of safety in the new Auburn 115 h. p. speedster when driving at 85 m. p. h., as there was in driving the motor car of several years ago at 35 m. p. h. Morton demonstrated his point by taking I. C. Hunter, branch manager of the St. Louis Auburn Co., and newspaper representatives on a short haul in and about the city.

TO REORGANIZE STATE ROAD SAFETY CONFERENCE

The Missouri Street and Highway Safety Conference, which was appointed two years ago by Gov. Baker, to carry out the recommendations of the National Hoover Safety Conference, will be reorganized at a meeting to be held in Kansas City tomorrow. This reorganization will be in connection with the session there of the Central States Safety Conference.

Roy B. Hinkle, State Labor Commissioner, is the president of the Missouri Street and Highway Safety Conference and the secretary is Capt. Robert E. Lee, manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association.

The conference introduced in the 1926 Legislature a codification of all Missouri automobile and traffic laws with some changes and additions thereto. Its bill was passed with many House amendments by the Senate and was returned to the House for final passage on the last day of the session and failed of passage for a lack of a quorum at the end of the session.

The reorganization at Kansas City is to add a number of members to the Executive Committee and to lay plans for the reintroduction of the codification of the laws in the 1929 Missouri Legislature with a number of changes which have been found desirable since the last Legislature.

CAR PRICES ON STEADY DECLINE, SURVEY REVEALS

'De Soto Six' Soon to Make Appearance—Autos Popular With Convention Visitors.

DETROIT, Mich., April 21.—A new car, called the "De Soto Six," will shortly appear in the automobile field according to an announcement here the past week. The company behind the new line is one of the largest in the industry. The car is to be distinctly new in design and appearance, it is claimed.

Decline of Prices.

Since 1923 the average price of automobiles has declined 25 per cent in the low-priced field, 29 per cent in the medium priced group and 9 per cent in the upper strata. In compiling this list, the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland considered 25 makes of cars.

In 1923 the average price of the low-priced car was $865 as compared with today's average price of $648. The medium-priced automobile sold for an average price of $1921 in 1923 and at the start of this year $1327 those with more expensive tastes paid an average of $4223 in 1923 as compared with today's average of $3840.

Berths for Cars.

Full length berths for automobile tourists, carried inside the car securely fastened to the roof are attracting considerable attention this year. One model weighs only 14 pounds and occupies only 1½ inches of headroom. The berths can be made up without getting out of the car and are equipped with curtains.

To Hold to Line.

Chrysler Corporation will stick to its present line, consisting of three sizes and a four. Walter P. Chrysler, president, announced at the annual stockholders' meeting this week.

COSTLIEST CARS IN WORLD MADE FOR INDIA RULER

Fitted With Gold Trappings to Hold Scent Bottles, Flasks and Goblets.

What are believed to be the most luxurious appointed automobiles in the world, even more ornate than those made to order for the stars of Hollywood, have just been completed here for the personal use of the Gaekwar of Baroda, one of the wealthiest Indian potentates, and his wife, the Maharanee.

The cars—one for the Gaekwar and one for his wife—were ordered when the Indian rulers were in London on a recent visit. That of the Gaekwar is painted cobalt blue, and the Maharanee's is in a harmonizing share of cobalt violet.

The Maharanee's car is fitted with solid gold trappings to hold her scent bottles and needle-case. The door handles are also of gold, and underneath the rear seat is a special rack of silver to hold the Maharanee's umbrella, a thermos flask and a number of cut-glass goblets.

The Gaekwar's car is also fitted with gold. It has a cigar lighter of that metal, and silver vases for flowers. One of its most striking characteristics is a windshield of blue glass, which the Gaekwar ordered especially to ward off the blazing sun when he is motoring in his native land.

PARKHURST NOW ON BOARD OF PEERLESS MOTOR CORP.

Was Vice President and General Manager of Firm Prior to 1915.

CLEVELAND, O., April 21.—Edwin H. Parkhurst, vice president and general manager of Peerless Motors Corporation prior to 1915 and since vice president of the Columbia Axle Co., yesterday at the annual stockholders' meeting of the autonobile firm was elected to its board of directors.

It was also announced that all members of the board in 1927 were re-eleted. They are: R. M. Calfee, G. A. Coulton, L. R. German, C. H. Larson, H. C. Robinson, C. E. Sullivan, H. A. Tremaine, F. A. Trester, C. A. Tucker and L. J. Wolf.

NEW CHEVROLET ATLANTA PLANT COST $2,250,000

Georgia Factory Annual Output Capacity 100,000 Cars — Payroll to Be $3,000,000 Yearly.

The first Chevrolet car ever built in Dixie rolled off the assembly line Friday, April 13, when the mammoth new Chevrolet factory in Atlanta, the largest automotive institution in all the South, swung into operation to supply the Southeastern States.

Constructed at a cost of more than $2,250,000, the new Chevrolet plant covers 32 acres and has 410,000 square feet of floor space. It has an assembly capacity of 350 cars a day, or more than 100,000 a

H. O. D. SEGRAVE AFTER NEW LAND AND WATER RECORDS

Hopes to Win Back Speed Titles Great Britain Has Lost.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, April 21.—In the hope of winning back some of Britain's lost speed records on land and sea, three wealthy Englishmen have subscribed between them $100,000 to be administered as a fund for this purpose.

The money will be used in building racing automobiles either to defend Capt. Campell's recent record established at Dayton or to beat any new records established by foreigners, and the construction of a motorboat which shall have a speed far in advance of anything yet attempted.

Maj. H. O. D. Segrave, the famous British speedman, will drive both the motorboat and the racing cars.

TRAFFIC CONGESTION IS EXPENSIVE IN BOSTON

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, April 21.—A traffic survey has revealed that congestion in the business district of Boston costs people in the metropolitan area more than $26,000,000 a year.

Observation of the incoming flow of traffic revealed that $17,000 persons, on the average, enter the downtown business section every day. It was found that each person loses at least 10 minutes because of traffic congestion. Placing a value of one cent on each of the 5,170,000 minutes thus lost daily, the experts arrived at a money loss of $24,510,000 in a year of 300 business days.

Overtake the "72"?

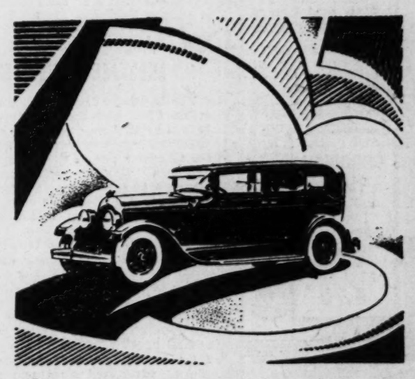
IF CHRYSLER "72" were merely more beautiful—if it were just an average good value—it would deserve no special consideration from the buyer.

But it clamors for his consideration and demands his attention by reason of a gauge and proof of greater value which cannot be escaped.



CHRYSLER "72"

All cars today seek to approximate Chrysler "72" performance by patterning after Chrysler engineering. But after three years of striving, how close are they to the "72" today? No closer than they were three years ago.

As they have struggled to approach, Chrysler "72" has pulled away and gallops around and past them with more than the ease of the old original Chrysler sensation-car of 1924.

There may be pocketbook reasons for choosing cars of lesser price than the "72." There simply cannot be a valid reason for paying as much or more for any car other than the "72."

Illustrious New Chrysler "72" Prices—Two-passenger Coupe (with rumble seat), $1545; Royal Sedan, $1595; Sport Roadster (with rumble seat), $1595; Four-passenger Coupe, $1595; Town Sedan, $1695; Convertible Coupe (with rumble seat), $1745; Crown Sedan, $1795. All prices f. o. b. Detroit, subject to current Federal excise tax. Chrysler dealers are in a position to extend the convenience of time payments.

New Chrysler "Red-Head" Engine—designed to take full advantage of high-compression gas, standard equipment on all body models of the 112 h. p. Imperial "80," also standard on the roadsters and available at slight extra cost for other body types, of the "62" and "72."

STYLE INCREASES SALES OF CARS, SAY PEERLESS CHIEFS

Style is the element of greatest sales value to the automobile manfacturer today, according to officials of Peerless Motor Car Corp. An automobile's greatest appeal is through the eye, they say. Body lines, color, the shape of the radiator, the finish, these things have put power, speed, pick-up and general performance in second place in the public mind.

Even in cars such as Peerless, known for a generation for mechanical perfection, beauty is a much larger sales factor than ever before. The Six-91 Victoria is an excellent example of advanced automobile style as produced by Peerless.

ALL CHRYSLER DIRECTORS RE-ELECTED TO BOARD

The annual stockholders meeting of Chrysler Corp. was held at the offices of the company in Detroit at noon, Tuesday, April 17. Routine business was transacted and the following directors elected for the ensuing year:

J. S. Bache, N. F. Brady, Harry Bronner, Hugh Chalmers, Walter P. Chrysler, Delos W. Cooke, Allen F. Edwards, J. E. Fields, B. E. Hutchinson, K. T. Keller, W. F. Kenny, D. R. McLain, Giles W. Mead, W. Ledyard Mitchell, Harold E. Talbott Jr., E. R. Tinker, F. M. Zeder.

President Chrysler, commenting on the corporation's operations, remarked that its advance during the last year from fourth to third place in the automobile industry reflected the progress it had made in its first full year's operation producing a line of cars covering the entire price range from Chrysler "52," selling at $670, through the "62", "72" and Imperial "80", which compares favorably with the very finest automobiles produced.

Discussing company plans for the coming year, and as an answer to rumors that have been circulated throughout the country, Chrysler again stated emphatically that the line of Chrysler cars would continue in the future to consist of three sixes and a four, as it has in the past.

An expenditure of $4,657,443.95 during the past year on facilities makes a total of $24,951,536.91 expended during the past four years. These expenditures have resulted in increased quality, lower costs and lower prices. It is noteworthy that notwithstanding reductions during the past year in the price of the company's products that the percentage of profit on sale showed an increase compared with the previous year's operations, and the net profit of $19,484,880.11 earned in 1927 was the highest in the corporation's history and represents an increase of approximately 27 per cent over the previous year.

COLIN CAMPBELL MADE A WILLYS-OVERLAND CHIEF

Automobile Executive Will Be Vice President in Charge of Sales Work.

An important strengthening of the Willys-Overland organization in order to keep pace with its present expanding development, was disclosed when John N. Willys announced the acquisition of Colin Campbell as vice president in charge of sales. Coincidently, George M. Graham is made vice president to be associated in the management of the business with Willys, and L. A. Miller, first vice president.

Graham, after an extended service with Pierce-Arrow and Chandler, returned to Willys-Overland last September as assistant to the president. He is a former director of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, and has been prominent in many activities for the benefit of the industry. L. G. Peed, for many years general sales manager of the company, continues in that capacity.

Few sales executives in the automobile industry have occupied a more prominent place than Campbell, a forceful figure of varied experience. His powerful development of sound selling ideas had much to do with the expansion of the Chevrolet company, of which he was vice president, and as such did much of the foundation work that carried the company to its present place. Subsequently, he was vice president and general manager of the Star car properties of Durant Motors.

NEW HEADQUARTERS OF MIDSTATE MOTORS OPEN

The Midstates Motors Co., a new organization with headquarters at 2815 Locust boulevard, has been appointed wholesale distributer of the Chandler line of motor cars in Southern Illinois, Southeastern Missouri and Western Kentucky. William E. Schmisseur is president of the company and Henry Rottersmann is vice president. Ray Bradley is secretary and treasurer.

The firm opened its new showroom the past week. It has a capacity of nine cars. The architectural features were planned with a Moorish effect, the interior being separated by five arches with special lighting for each arch. The floor and pillars are of Spanish tile of variegated hues and patterns.

All retail sales of Chandler cars in St. Louis and county will be handled by the Wilson Motor Car Co., 2925 Locust boulevard, of which George Krause is president.

HISPANO-SUIZA WINS OVER STUTZ IN 24-HOUR RACE

per hour would have to be maintained for the car to make a good showing even in defeat and it was decided even before the seat holders knocked at the gates at 5:30 that the race was over. Soon after the dawn, the Hispano came in to have a broken lamp rod removed. At 8 a. m. the Stutz camp admitted defeat and the race ended.

No New Record Set.

No new track record was set. The American Automobile Association fastest official record for fully equipped stock car 24-hour run is 1814.96 miles at average speed of 75.6 miles per hour, established by a stock Studebaker Commander at Atlantic City speedway Oct. 6, 1927, under official A. A. A. supervision and sanction. This contrasts with 70.14 miles per hour average set by Hispano-Suiza at completion of 1337.5 miles, when the race was called off at end of 17 hours 21 minutes of elapsed time.

REO WOLVERINE SMASHES ARGENTINE SPEED RECORDS

A Wolverine brougham recently established a new Argentine, South America, speed record when it covered the 350 Kilometers between Rosario and Moron, a suburb of Buenos Aires, in four hours and 56 minutes, according to word received from officials of the Reo Motor Car Co.

One of the most remarkable features of the Wolverine's achievement, the information states, is seen in the fact that the car was engaged in a run to test its riding and driving qualities over the difficult dirt roads of that section and no attempt was made to lower the speed record between the two points. In fact, the driver of the Reo Wolverine did not know that the record had been broken until Moron was reached and a check-up of the time revealed the Wolverine's remarkable performance.

After the Wolverine's arrival, it was thoroughly examined for wear and found to be in as good condition as when it started on its strenuous trip.

COL. H. DUNWOODY MADE GARDNER VICE PRESIDENT

Alvin Devereux, New York City, Is Added to the Board of Directors.

Col. Halsey Dunwoody was elected vice president of the Gardner Motor Co., Inc., St. Louis, at a recent meeting of the newly elected board of directors.

Col. Dunwoody has been serving as general sales manager of the firm since February, 1926. In addition to his new post, he will act as assistant to R. E. Gardner Jr., president.

Col. Dunwoody was well known in the aviation service during the War, being chief engineer of the Government air service overseas. He was also a member of the Inter-Allied Aviation Commission, being appointed to that position by General Pershing.

Alvin Devereux of New York City was added to the board of directors, bringing the number up to seven. Other officers of the company were re-elected. They are as follows: Russell E. Gardner Jr., president; Fred W. Gardner, executive vice president and treasurer. L. C. Freeman, vice president, and Thomas Reyburn, secretary. Russell E. Gardner Sr., is chairman of the board of directors.

NEW CREATIONS by ARTIST-ENGINEERS

This new Oldsmobile is motordom's good news for 1928. It reveals new and sophisticated elements of style. It embodies new engineering features. It provides new niceties of appointment and equipment. It typifies the whole new spirit of the times—because it reflects the master touch of artist-engineers.

On every hand, this fine car of low price is exciting admiration. And though you may have formed the highest opinion of its beauty . . . though you may have heard the highest praise of its performance—we urge you to come in for a personal inspection.

We want you to experience the silent, smooth performance of the new 55 h. p. high-compression engine. We want you to revel in the comfort of spacious new Fisher bodies and in the luxury of easy driving and restful riding. And thus learn why thousands of car buyers are turning to Oldsmobile.

L.....is a business man—

It was his partner who suggested that he look at an Oldsmobile. When he came into the salesroom he explained what he demanded in a car—plenty of power for fine performance, smart appearance, comfort, and genuine fine car design and construction. He was quite frank in adding that he did not believe it possible to get all these qualities in anything but an expensive car.

He studied the Oldsmobile in silence a while, during which a look of puzzled surprise appeared on his face. "I can understand," he finally said, "how you get such beautiful lines, and smart appointments—that's expected of bodies by Fisher. But I can't understand how you can include all this equipment at the price—especially since that bigger engine obviously costs more to build."

It was explained that the so-called "extras," such as 4 Lovejoy hydraulic shock

absorbers, bumpers front and rear, radiator shutter, etc., were standard equipment—provided because Oldsmobile believes them essential to any fine car.

"All right," he said, "let's take a ride. If you've got the speed and acceleration that I want—and if the car handles as easily as appearances indicate, I'll—"

NEW FEDERAL TRUCK HAS 65 H. P. ENGINE

Being Built in 1 1-2 to 2 Ton Sizes on 151 and 163-Inch Chassis.

A new 1½ to 2-ton motor truck, particularly adaptable to what may be called "light-heavy" delivery, has been announced by the Federal Motor Truck Co. The new truck is powered by a 6-cylinder L-head engine of high turbulence type, carrying a 2⅜ fully balanced crankshaft with seven main bearings.

The new truck has four-wheel brakes, four-speed transmission and a bevel gear rear axle. It is available on both a 151-inch and 163-inch chassis.

The six-cylinder engine has an S. A. E. rating of 27.34 h. p. It has a bore of 3⅜ inches and a 4⅝ inch stroke with a total piston displacement of 248.25 cubic inches. It develops 65 brake horsepower.

Electrical equipment includes battery with induction coil and distributor, electric starter, generator, magnetic horn, head, tail and instrument lamps.

Three gear ratios are available, the standard being 6⅝ to 1, optional 5.66 and 5 to 1. The steering gear is of the recently developed cam and lever type and is mounted to the frame by a heavy riveted bracket which obviates the necessity of drilling a large hole in the frame.

Four-wheel Lockhead hydraulic brakes with a diameter of 16 inches and width of 2¼ inches are standard equipment. A propeller shaft brake, internal expanding type, operated by a hand lever, is mounted at the rear of the transmission. The job carries six spoke, 20-inch base, steel wheels with demountable rims, one extra rim being furnished. The tires are heavy duty pneumatic cords 32x6 in front and 34x7 in rear, 32x6 dual rear wheels being optional.

Chassis lubrication is by means of an automatic high pressure lubricant gun. Hood, fenders and cowl are formed from heavy gauge sheet steel, the cowl being entirely separate from the body cab. The job carries a jack, a full set of tools, heavy channel steel front bumper and a high-pressure lubricant gun. Oil pressure gauge, ammeter and speedometer are mounted on an indirectly lighted instrument panel.

Cross Sahara by Auto.

Two American women, Miss Susan Frazier and Miss Ellen McMillan, art students, successfully crossed the Sahara Desert by the Tanezrouft route by automobile, setting what is believed to be a new record in women's adventures. They went by automobile to Gibraltar and from there by boat to Dekar, Senegal. From Dekar they started their daring ride.

How to Figure Service.

In keeping figures on what it costs to run a car do not confuse service costs with total operation and maintenance costs. Service means only the labor, parts and material necessary for a service operation. Gasoline, tire upkeep, replacements due to accidents, and similar items should not be charged to service.

When riding along, the "Cop" holds his hands by his sides. But if you slow down or stop, the "Cop" holds his hands up in warning. Then when a start is made, the "Cop" drops his hands as a "Come Ahead" signal.

CRAIGHEAD APPOINTED TO MOON MOTOR CO. STAFF

Will Handle Publicity, Advertising and Publish Monthly House Organ.

Announcement was made by Stanley Moon of the appointment of N. D. Craighead to the personnel of the Moon Motor Car Co.

Craighead, former advertising service manager of the St. Louis Star, will handle publicity, advertising and publish a semimonthly house organ for the motor car company.

The appointment comes as a reward for a splendid business record with the St. Louis Star, the H. W. Kastor & Sons advertising agency and other advertising organizations.

AUBURN ENTERS CARS IN SEVERAL EUROPEAN RACES

Four speedster models of the type used by Wade Morton at Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 20, have been shipped to Europe by the Auburn Motor Co. for entrance in continental races. Morton drove the Auburn speedster 104.347 miles an hour for a two-way average. His fastest time was 108.466 miles an hour.

Two of the cars were shipped to Rome, Italy, where they will be stripped of fenders and headlights and entered in the Milan, Italy, 1000-mile road race. Both cars will be driven by Italian drivers in this event.

A third car was shipped to Gothenburg, Sweden, for entrance in the road races in that country, and the fourth was sent to Zurick, Switzerland, to be entered in the races there.

All four cars are stock models, duplicates of the car used by Morton at Daytona when he made his record. These speedster models use the regular 115-horse power Lycoming motor and the regular 115 Auburn chassis and are not special.

MARKERS FOR LINCOLN ROUTE

In place of using telegraph poles and other local objects for designating the Lincoln Highway, the Lincoln Highway Association is to install uniform concrete markers.

It was said the old markers were too easily defaced to be permanent, so reinforced concrete is to be used.

Each post will have the tri-colored marker, bearing an arrowhead to point out the route.

NEW CHEVROLET ATLANTA PLANT COST $2,250,000

year. Following the Chevrolet policy of recruiting workmen from the community in which its plants are located, it will be almost exclusively a Southern institution, its 1300 employes being residents of Atlanta or nearby cities. The payroll will approach $3,000,000 annually.

Production will be on a basis of 2000 cars for the last half of April with the May schedule calling for 6000 cars.

Strategically located for shipping purposes, the plant is equipped to make rapid deliveries to the six Southeastern states it will serve, including Georgia, Alabama, Florida, South Carolina and parts of North Carolina and Tennessee.

The factory is served by the Southern Railroad Co., which has six lines of tracks adjoining the plant for storage of cars. Accommodations have been made to handle as many as 300 cars at one time. Two other tracks lead directly into the Chevrolet plant proper and one track into the Fisher Body unit.

In all the plant embraces six units: The main building which includes Chevrolet and Fisher Body assembly, a three-story office building, driveaway shed, loading dock, parts warehouse and pump house.

In addition to Roberts, plant manager, the following officials are now in charge: W. J. Sullivan, superintendent; E. J. Gleason, manager of the Fisher Body division and H. J. Schmidt, resident comptroller.

The Atlanta plant provides Chevrolet with eight domestic assembly plants throughout the country, an export plant at Bloomfield, N. J., and manufacturing plants at Detroit, Bay City, Saginaw, Flint and Toledo. In addition to Atlanta, assembly plants are located in Flint, Mich.; Tarrytown, N. Y.; Norwood, O.; Oakland, Cal.; Buffalo, N. Y.; Janesville, Wis. and St. Louis, Mo.

LOW TIRE PRICES CAUSE A DECREASE IN THEFTS

Thefts of tires from automobiles dropped off 60 per cent in the last 15 months of low tire prices, according to a statement of the General Tire and Rubber Co., based on reports from a score of insurance companies handling automobile business.

"It was the belief of insurance officials the low selling price of tires in 1927 cut the thieves' margin of 'profit' to a point where the operation was unprofitable," says the statement.

"Twice as many thefts of spares were reported as those in which thieves removed tires from wheels," it is reported.

World's greatest Value and Outselling all sixes

THE world's largest sale of 6-cylinder cars became an Essex achievement solely because of merit.

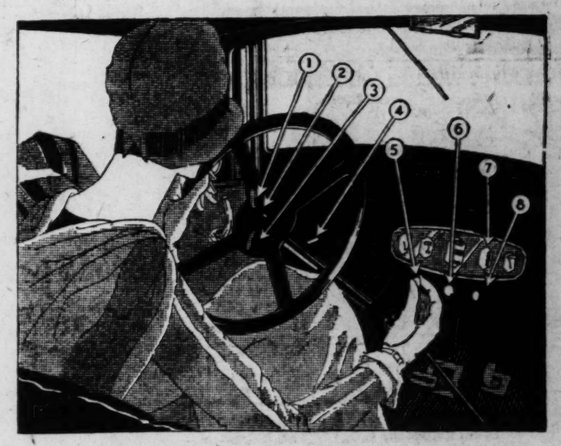
All 6-cylinder sales records are swept aside in the enthusiastic reception everywhere accorded the New Essex Super-Six. Many communities report 100%, 200%, even 300% greater sales than for the corresponding period of last year, which was the former all-time Essex record.

The ideal transportation achieved in the Greater Essex Super-Six was long foreshadowed in the series of individual superiorities by which Essex towered above the field. Its vivid brilliance of performance reveals in a single ride a smoothness and quiet, a road-skimming ease and soaring exhilaration that is actually like flying.

Greater in power, more versatile in all performance, large, roomier and more beautifully appointed, the New Essex Super-Six gloriously earns its richer reward in even greater popularity than its predecessor.

The exclusive, high-compression Super-Six motor that turns waste heat to power, develops the greatest power per cubic inch of piston displacement of any stock motor we know in the world.

In all ways the Essex Super-Six is engineered to the lowest operation and maintenance costs. And increasing thousands of owners rolling up thousands of miles of service prove that these qualities which delight you on your first ride are just as lasting as they are brilliant.



Simple, Compact and Convenient

1. Light control - 2. Horn button - 3. Throttle
4. Radiator shutter control - 5. Starter - 6. Electro-lock
7. Gasoline gauge - 8. Choke

The beautiful Essex instrument board is of ebony finish, grouping under indirect light, motometer, gasoline gauge, oil gauge, speedometer and ammeter. Restful seating position with convenience, and operation ease of all controls, insures easiest driving you ever knew.

HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT PLEAS FOR SAFETY

Two Killed and 21 Injured Each Day of 1927 Says Economic Engineer.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 21.—The familiar cry of "Safety First" is being sounded from the State Highway Department now that spring is approaching and motoring in Missouri is on the increase.

Two persons were killed and 21 were injured almost every day last year in traffic and motor car accidents in the State, Robert C. Barnett, economic engineer of the department, points out in issuing a "Safety First" warning for 1928.

"In Missouri we had 8685 accidents in 1927, which resulted in 727 fatalities and 7811 persons injured," Barnett points out. "This is almost an average of two deaths a day and over 21 injured as a result of this one cause. More than 500 children, 507 to be exact, were hit by cars or trucks. Another 500 will be run down this year and one of them may be yours. This, alone, should get your attention and rouse you to action."

The street and highway accident reports of the highway department show that in 1927 accidents increased more than 40 per cent over the previous year, although motor vehicle registration inreased but 8 per cent, Barnett said.

Seventy-seven per cent of the accidents in the State were due to "personal factors," the economic engineer emphasizes. Careless driving caused 698, speed 543, loss of control 385, intoxicated drivers 251, careless pedestrians 240, children running or falling in front of moving vehicles 190. Two hundred and eight crashes were due to drivers trying to pass another car. Intersecting streets and roads were the scene of 1577.

"This is indeed a gruesome picture, yet a needful and timely one," Barnett declares. "We must realize that the motor vehicle in the hands of careless or inexperienced persons, the intoxicated driver, or the temporarily unfit is an instrument of death and destruction. In the control of the wrong person it is a terrible menace to life and property, as our statistics show."

BROCKWAY AND INDIANA TRUCK COMPANIES MERGE

Firm, to Be Known as Brockway Corp., Backed by Powerful Interests.

A merger of the Brockway and Indiana truck companies, recently completed, is the beginning of a large manufacturing unit planned to meet new conditions in truck industry, according to J. O. Warner, branch manager of the Indiana Truck Co., here.

Other units, according to Warner, are to be added from time to time until the organization has been completed on the basis of a comprehensive plan agreed upon by prominent bankers and others. This plan had its inception in ideas advanced by Martin A. O'Mara, who is taking a prominent part in developing the combined firms.

For many years, O'Mara has been recognized as one of the truck industry's leading sales executives. Some time ago, he foresaw a new period of competition for the industry and formulated policies and plans for a company designed to meet the new conditions. With the co-operation of a powerful banking group, O'Mara has been able to put the new ideas into execution through the merger of the Brockway and Indiana companies into the Brockway Corp., which becomes one of the largest three concerns in the country, exclusively manufacturing motor trucks.

TESTING GROUND DRIVER'S AIM IS TO "BUST 'EM UP"

MOTORISTS who think that the proving-ground driver is an especially skilled person in the art of operating a car are wrong. In this, as in other aspects of proving-ground work, the "typical" is sought. In a recent test on a new car in which 1,000,000 miles were driven, the drivers were described as a "force of handy men, inexperienced in the fine points of car performance, whose notion of good driving is simplicity itself, namely, open her up and hold her in the road until something gives 'way."

CLOSED CARS FAVORED BY PUBLIC, SAYS GEO. KRAUSE

Chandler Distributer Shows How Trend Has Also Effected Prices.

"The popularity of the closed car can best be appreciated by the fact that the price differential which existed a few years ago between closed and open models, has decreased to a point where there is now little difference between the price of an open and a closed model," says George Krause, president of the Wilson Motor Car Co., local Chandler distributers.

"Seven or eight years ago closed cars were considered in the luxury class and the production of the industry as a whole averaged 17 per cent closed cars as against 83 per cent open cars.

The gradual demand on the part of the motoring public for increased comfort meant that closed cars had to be made popular in price.

"How well this has been accomplished may be noticed by checking up on the factory list prices of such a well known car as the Chandler Big Six metropolitan sedan, for instance.

"Even so late as 1923, this popular model listed at $2195. Today the car has not only been improved mechanically and made much more appealing from a comfort and beauty standpoint, but it has also been sharply reduced in price to $1525—a net difference and saving to the owner of $670.

"A graphic picture of the increasing preference on the part of the motoring public for closed cars may be had from examining automobile production figures for the past six years.

"Statistics furnished by the N. A. C. C. show that in 1921 closed cars formed 22.1 per cent of the industry's entire production. In 1922 the growing demand for comfort was expressed by a closed car production of 30 per cent. In 1923 the demand jumped to 34 per cent, in 1924 to 43 per cent, and finally in 1925 it passed the halfway mark by jumping to 56.5 per cent. During 1926 and 1927 closed car production passed all previous high marks by reaching approximately 80 per cent of the entire automobile output—which means that almost four of every five cars produced were closed cars."

GARDNER EXPORT MANAGER TO SURVEY EUROPEAN FIELD

T. F. Fowler, expert manager of Gardner Motor Co., Inc., will sail from New York, April 28, for a two months' tour of England, Scotland and Continental Europe, in the course of which, according to President Russell E. Gardner Jr., he will make an intensive trade study of the field and will close a number of pending deals with foreign representatives and distributors of the Gardner line.

Fowler first will visit Paris, and then London, where he expects to conclude details for one of the most important foreign representations for the company. Subsequently, he will tour France, Austria, Germany, Switzerland and Holland.

NEW DEALERS FOR CHRYSLER

L. M. Stewart, president of Midwest Motors, Inc., Chrysler distributer here, the past week announced the appointment of the Lau Motor Sales Co. as Chrysler dealer in South St. Louis. The firm is located at 7829 Ivory street. Leo W. Lau and Irwin E. Lau, brothers, are the officers of the company.

Stewart also announced the appointment of the Gaskins Motor Car Co. of Harrisburg, Ill., as dealer in that territory. The members of this firm have been prominent in the lumber business in Southern Illinois for the past 20 years.

A New Speedometer.

Carl Bauer, a motorcycle policeman in Cleveland, O., is the inventor of a two-dialed speedometer designed to check up on complaining speedsters. One dial records the maximum speed and the other clocks the exact speed traveled over a certain distance.

GRAHAM TRUCKS AVAILABLE IN 1842 DIFFERENT TYPES

Modern commercial and industrial transportation has become so extensive that 1842 different types of trucks can be built in the plants of Graham Brothers, the commercial car and truck division of Dodge Brothers, Inc., according to surveys just completed at the factories in Detroit, Evansville, Ind. and Stockton, Cal.

This figure is reached by combining the standard equipped truck or motor coach body with the five capacities in which Graham Brothers trucks are built and varying the equipment, size of tires, type of wheels, special gear ratios, etc. The trucks are available in ½ ton, ¾ ton, one ton, 1½ ton and two-ton capacities, and the combinations originate from these five groups.

100,000 OAKLAND CARS BUILT LAST 4 MONTHS

PONTIAC, Mich., April 7.—With an April schedule calling for 7500 more Oakland and Pontiac sixes than during April of 1927, the Oakland Motor Car Co., is establishing a production record of nearly 100,000 cars for the first four months of the year.

This Oakland-Pontiac production represents an increase of 85 per cent over the 53,657 automobiles which the company built during the corresponding period of last year.

Each of the four months of this year saw the company establish a New Oakland-Pontiac production record. Twice during February it was found necessary to increase the production schedule and the continuing influx of orders from the company's big dealer organization has resulted in equal prosperity during March and April.

The schedule increases during February were rendered possible principally through the opening of a third production line in the Pontiac Six factory. High production was maintained in March despite the fact that the Oakland six factory was closed during the last week of the month to permit equipment to be moved from the old Oakland assembly building to the new $3,000,000 assembly structure which started producing cars on April 2.

Holland Sells Enamel—and buys Steelcote
HOLLAND is the birthplace of enamels. She might be called an expert on fine finishes....Yet in Holland, the home of the enamel industry, huge quantities of Steelcote Rubber Auto Enamel are used. What greater proof of Steelcote superiority?
The pure para rubber base makes Steelcote different from all other finishes. It spreads perfectly over old paint or lacquer, and smoothes itself instantly, leaving no brush marks. In a very few hours it is dry, with a glossy, elastic surface easy to clean and keep clean. Freedom from checking or cracking, again due to its rubber content, makes its beauty far more durable than that of ordinary paint, enamel or lacquer.
Buy Steelcote in your choice of the newest colors—from your nearest dealer, or—
If your dealer does not have Steelcote, write direct for art color chart and intermixing instructions.
Repaint it yourself—or specify Steelcote at the paint shop.

CHEVROLET

Dependability, Satisfaction and Honest Value!

Never before in our history have we delivered as many new Chevrolets as during the first three months of this year.

Naturally, a large part of this increased business required the trade-in of the new Chevrolet owner's previous car. These cars taken in by us have been thoroughly inspected and reconditioned, with the result that many of them can hardly be distinguished from new cars in appearance and performance.

Furthermore, these cars carry the official red tag "with an OK that counts" which shows at a glance the exact and true condition under which the car is offered for sale.

This stamp of approval assures the purchaser a dependable car, satisfactory from every standpoint and above all an honest value at an attractive price. Come in and inspect these used cars, and when you buy from us you may do so, confident that we want your goodwill, the same as we now enjoy with Chevrolet owners in this community.

MARMON ENTERS CARS IN 500-MILE RACE

Front Wheel Drive Jobs to Have Only 90 Cubic Inch Displacement.

Marking its re-entrance in automobile racing after 17 years, the Marmon Motor Car Co. has entered two special racing cars in the sixteenth international 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway May 30, G. M. Williams, Marmon president, says.

The two cars which will be known as Marmon 68 "specials" have been in the course of development in the Marmon factory for several months and will be ready for the track within a few days. Earl Cooper, veteran racing car builder and driver, is captain of the racing team.

In entering the 1928 500-mile race, the Marmon company is using the event as an actual means of testing many new and advanced engineering principles, Col. Howard Marmon, designer of the first 500-mile speedway victory car and famous for his part in the development of the wartime Liberty motor, is co-operating with Cooper in the construction of the modern Marmon specials.

HERE IS Chief Two Guns White Calf, Blackfeet Indian, who served as model for the Buffalo nickel. With him in this Chrysler Imperial "80" roadster is his squaw and papoose. Like a lot of his red brothers, the Chief has become a motoring enthusiast and has deserted the mustang to sit behind the wheel of a high-powered car.

WOMEN CONSULTED IN PLANNING NEW OLDS

Motoring Comfort Was Held of Prime Importance, Says Staff Expert.

Many of the refinements that have added increased comfort to the new Oldsmobile were the result of opinions and suggestions advanced by the score of women who were consulted, according to John G. Wood, chief engineer of Olds Motor Works.

"In designing the new Oldsmobile, motoring comfort was held of prime importance," said Wood. "Knowledge of the best engineering practice enabled us to procure exceptional balance and the use of four hydraulic shock absorbers as standard equipment further enhanced easy riding qualities. But this was not sufficient.

"Our attention was attracted to the front compartment, which is occupied more often, than is the rear, yet the rear compartment has received much attention from designers. We outlined several ways of making improvements and then obtained a consensus of opinion from a number of women. They agreed that the following conditions existed in most cars and could be improved:

"Loose floor boards; a rubber mat which formed an indifferent covering; wide openings for pedals and levers afforded entrance to drafts and road dust; the sheet metal dash separating the engine from the compartment with its usual array of instruments or accessories was a potential noise source; the starter was in the way and sometimes stuck; the button type accelerator was hard to hold at an even pressure and frequently slipped under the high instep of a women's slipper, making her lose control of car speed.

"Overcoming these objections was merely detail work. First we moved the battery forward so that it would be covered by an inspection plate and the need of raising the floor boards was eliminated. Then we provided a rubber floor covering that was heavily lined with wool. This was fitted closely to pedals and levers and practically insulates the compartment against drafts. As a further precaution this covering was fastened to the metal dash and carried up to the cowl. All accessories were removed from the motor side of the dash.

"Several types of steering wheels were submitted and the one which was approved by the most of our women critics confirmed our selection.

DEALERS TO ELECT OFFICERS ON MAY 7

P. H. Brockman and G. M. Berry Are Opposing Presidential Candidates.

Official call for the annual meeting of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association to be held Monday, May 7, following the annual dinner of the association, has been issued by Robert E. Lee, secretary of the association.

At this meeting R. B. Bullock, a noted speaker on automobile topics, who is one of the staff of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, will talk.

The important feature of the meeting, however, will be the election of officers. The election will be for president, vice president and treasurer, and for three directors each to serve two years.

The Nominating Committee, consisting of W. H. Owen of the W. H. Owen Co., George A. Kraus of the Wilson Motor Co. and F. J. Foster of the Foster Motor Co., has selected and submitted two sets of candidates to be voted on at the meeting.

For president the opposing candidates are Phil H. Brockman of the De Luxe Automobile Co. and George M. Berry of the Berry Motor Car Co. For vice president the nominees are E. Anson More of the More Automobile Co. and Guy W. Oliver of the Oliver-Cadillac Co. For treasurer A. E. Archer of the Archer-Mann Motor Co. and Walter H. Vesper of the Vesper-Buick Auto Co., are nominated.

Three directors will be selected from the following six candidates: G. E. Blell of the Federal Motor Truck Co., E. A. Hatfield of the Mississippi Valley Motor Co., William L. Johnson of the Johnson Automobile Co., F. C. McDonald of the Southwest Nash Co., L. M. Stewart of the Midwest Motors, Inc., and William Walsingham of the Western Automobile Co.

The present officers of the association are Phil H. Brockman, president; Guy W. Oliver, vice president, and Walter H. Vesper, treasurer. The three directors to retire are F. C. McDonald, J. D. Berry Lewis and A. E. Archer. The holdover directors with another year to serve are R. C. Frampton, Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co.; George Weber of the Weber Implement and Auto Co., and Frank R. Tate of the Tate Motor Co.

SHOWING COMPLETE LINE OF GRAHAM-PAIGE CARS

Display for the first time in St. Louis of the complete Graham-Paige line begins today at the show rooms of the Weber Motor Car Co., the distributer here. Every model of the line including one of the new 135-inch wheelbase, 120 horse power, models is being shown.

The distributer has designated the ensuing week as Demonstration Week.

FELKEL-LOESCH CO. MOVES TO WEBSTER GROVES, MO.

The Felkel-Loesch Motor Sales Co., Chrysler dealer, formerly located at Kingshighway and Manchester avenue, has removed to a new location on Lockwood avenue, near Maple avenue, in Webster Groves. Increased business precipitated the move and the firm's new quarters are approximately twice as large as its old.

DURANT OUTPUT STILL HIGH

Despite the fact that the Durant plant at Elizabeth, N. J., broke all previous monthly production records in March, states T. S. Johnson, assistant to W. C. Durant, production is steadily climbing higher.

"Last month the average daily increase over the best previous record was 61 cars, an increase of 1661 cars for the month, or a total production of 3661. Already this record is being surpassed by a further increase of 50 cars daily and every indication is toward another shattering of production records at this plant of Durant motors," Johnston says.

Hair Trigger Acceleration

Famous Duplex Aerotype Carburetion largely responsible for startling get-away, brilliant speed and hill climbing ability of Jordan Air Line Eight

HORSEPOWER has been increased 33%—torque has been increased 21%.

Top speed—over eighty miles an hour.

Fifty miles an hour in second gear.

Five to forty miles an hour in high—in twelve and a half seconds.

Aeroplane characteristics have been applied for the first time to an automobile motor, in the Jordan Air Line Eight—marking a very definite turning point in all previous standards of motor car performance.

Yet this new motor with its amazing acceleration, its irresistible power on the hills—and its capacity for tremendous speed, does not weigh a pound more than its predecessor.

The chassis is built not only for perfect balance, but complete rigidity and strength.

Lines are long and low. Small sturdy wheels and big tires hold the road perfectly at any speed. All coachwork by Murray. Interior appointments of the latest type.

Upholstery—mohair or broadcloth. Colors—optional.

Houdaille shock absorbers. Chrome vanadium springs. Combination ignition and wheel lock. Electric clock. Electric gas gauge. Oil filter. Gas filter. Air cleaner.

Special equipment for carrying extra wheels or tires forward—with luggage rack at rear.

Priced lower than any car of similar quality—$1995 f. o. b. Cleveland.

QUESTIONS VALIDITY OF 'BLUE SKY' LAW

Texas Firm Asserts Charges of Missouri Securities Commissioner Are Groundless.

Young & Hawley, Inc., brokers of Amarillo, Tex., have complained about the "cease and desist" order issued by State Securities Commissioner F. T. Stockard, which was directed to them and 40 or 50 other firms and corporations, demanding that they cease selling securities in Missouri. They also complain of the publication of this order, in the following letter to the Post-Dispatch:

"So far as the firm of Young & Hawley, Inc., is concerned, the charges of the Missouri Commissioner, as set forth in his letter to us, are shown by our attorney to be groundless. All of the shares of this company are held by the five original incorporators; not one share of stock in Young & Hawley, Inc., has ever been sold, or offered for sale, either in Missouri or in any other place.

"Young & Hawley, Inc., is a Texas corporation, engaged in the general brokerage business, all of which is done within the State of Texas. We have no offices or agents in any of the other states, and we are not, in any way, subject to the laws or regulations of any other state. We comply, in every respect, with the laws of Texas and with the laws of the United States.

Holds Law Unconstitutional.

"The members of this firm are all citizens of Texas, and we have been in business here for many years. We serve a very large clientele, customers of this house being residents of every State in the Union, and of several foreign countries. All of the stock which we handle is personal stock (not "treasury stock") and we know of no 'blue sky law in any State which even tries to regulate the sale of securities held by individuals as personal property.

"In regard to the Missouri securities act, you will note that our attorney holds this law to be unconstitutional, and quotes the Supreme Court of Missouri as well as other competent authorities, to prove that it is an attempt to control and regulate interstate commerce, which no State can do.

"We request that you correct, through the columns of your publication, the untrue and detrimental statements made about the firm of Young & Hawley, Inc., and that you give equal space and prominence to the correction, to the end that all of your readers who saw the original article may also see the correction.

Assumed Order Was Valid.

"We know that the Post-Dispatch is one of the greatest news-

QUESTIONS VALIDITY OF 'BLUE SKY' LAW

Texas Firm Asserts Charges of Missouri Securities Commissioner Are Groundless.

Young & Hawley, Inc., brokers of Amarillo, Tex., have complained about the "cease and desist" order issued by State Securities Commissioner F. T. Stockard, which was directed to them and 40 or 50 other firms and corporations, demanding that they cease selling securities in Missouri. They also complain of the publication of this order, in the following letter to the Post-Dispatch:

"So far as the firm of Young & Hawley, Inc., is concerned, the charges of the Missouri Commissioner, as set forth in his letter to us, are shown by our attorney to be groundless. All of the shares of this company are held by the five original incorporators; not one share of stock in Young & Hawley, Inc., has ever been sold, or offered for sale, either in Missouri or in any other place.

"Young & Hawley, Inc., is a Texas corporation, engaged in the general brokerage business, all of which is done within the State of Texas. We have no offices or agents in any of the other states, and we are not, in any way, subject to the laws or regulations of any other state. We comply, in every respect, with the laws of Texas and with the laws of the United States.

Holds Law Unconstitutional.

"The members of this firm are all citizens of Texas, and we have been in business here for many years. We serve a very large clientele, customers of this house being residents of every State in the Union, and of several foreign countries. All of the stock which we handle is personal stock (not "treasury stock") and we know of no blue sky law in any State which even tries to regulate the sale of securities held by individuals as personal property.

"In regard to the Missouri securities act, you will note that our attorney holds this law to be unconstitutional, and quotes the Supreme Court of Missouri as well as other competent authorities, to prove that it is an attempt to control and regulate interstate commerce, which no State can do.

"We request that you correct, through the columns of your publication, the untrue and detrimental statements made about the firm of Young & Hawley, Inc., and that you give equal space and prominence to the correction, to the end that all of your readers who saw the original article may also see the correction.

Assumed Order Was Valid.

"We know that the Post-Dispatch is one of the greatest newspapers in America; we believe that you are anxious to present to your readers the whole truth; we feel sure that the Post-Dispatch did not intend to injure us, and that, having done so, will be glad to make all possible amends."

So far as the Post-Dispatch is concerned, it cannot be charged with any responsibility for the correctness or incorrectness of any official order and decision made by Commissioner Stockard in his official capacity and given out by him for publication. The Post-Dispatch has a right to assume that the decisions and orders of the commissioner are valid and proper for purposes of publication, and also a right to assume that all laws regularly passed by the Missouri Legislature are constitutional until the courts decide otherwise. But the Post-Dispatch, however, is glad to publish this statement of Young & Hawley, giving the public their contentions in the matter.

GROUP FOR HARD OF HEARING TO MEET WEEK OF JUNE 18

Annual National Convention of Federated Organizations to Be Held at Hotel Chase.

The ninth annual convention of the American Federation of Organizations for the Hard of Hearing will be held at Hotel Chase the week beginning June 18.

Speakers at the meeting will include Dr. Stacy Guild of Johns Hopkins College, Dr. R. O. Beard executive secretary of Hennepin Hospital, Minneapolis; Dr. John Lapp, head of the department of sociology at Marquette University; Elwood Street, director of the St. Louis Community Council, and Dr. Elmer Kenyon of Chicago, who is working on a new theory for correction of the voices of the deaf.

The organization, which traces its origin to Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, who was interested in lip-reading, aims to help the hard of hearing by regulation of diseases which occasion deafness, by making hearing devices available, and by teaching lip-reading. It advocates special classes in public schools for hard of hearing children and employment bureaus to help solve the economic problems of the deaf.

J. M. KURN TO GIVE ADDRESS AT TIE PRODUCERS' MEETING

Roscoe Hobbs and Charles O. Paulsell Also Will Attend Hot Springs Convention.

J. M. Kurn, vice president of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway Co., will be the principal speaker at the tenth annual convention of the National Association of Tie Producers, which will meet Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in Hot Springs, Ark. Other speakers from St. Louis will be Roscoe Hobbs, president of the Hobbs Tie and Timber Co., and Charles O. Paulsell of the Potosi Tie and Lumber Co. The addresses of Kurn and Charles H. Brough, former Governor of Arkansas, will be broadcast Wednesday night over radio station KTHS.

A tie-hacking contest between the champion of Arkansas and the champion of Missouri will be held.

PRAISES PERFORMANCE OF FALCON-KNIGHT SIX CAR

Commenting on the recent record-breaking performance of the Falcon-Knight Six, which has established a new transcontinental speed record of 73 hours and 47 minutes from Washington, D. C., to Los Angeles, a distance of 3198 miles, Cannonball Baker, noted cross-country driver, who piloted the car, said:

"I had implicit confidence in the Falcon-Knight sleeve-valve engine at the start of the record-breaking trip, and all that was left for me to do was to 'step on the gas' and prove the speed, stamina, endurance, acceleration and power of this type of engine."

Baker clipped six hours and eight minutes off the former world's record for transcontinental travel, the run being officially timed by the Western Union. The former record was held by a $2000 car employing a 90-horsepower engine. This provides an interesting study when compared with the Falcon-Knight, prices of which were recently reduced $100 on each model, bringing this car below the $1000 mark for the first time.

REO HAS RECORD SALES; APRIL SCHEDULE 6000

Since the introduction of the new Flying Cloud, orders are being received by the Reo Motor Car Co. in the largest volume in its history. Last week the average rate of orders received was 500 cars and trucks a day, ranging from 410 to 797 orders a day. The latter figure, received during March 22, constitutes the banner day of the company since its inception.

About 4500 unfilled orders are now on hand, of which 2500 are for passenger cars and 2000 for the Speed Wagons. Although present production is about 200 cars a day, output is being stepped up as rapidly as possible and is expected to be at 250 cars a day next week.

The April schedule calls for 6000 units. The March output is estimated at well over 3500.

MORE DEALERS FOR AUBURN

An increase of 28.2 per cent in dealer organization was made by the Auburn Automobile Co. in 1927, an announcement by the sales department of that organization says. An even greater percentage increase will be made in 1928, N. E. McDarby, sales manager says.

The industry as a whole for the same period shows an increase of three-tenths of 1 per cent. Excluding the Ford organization the industry for 1927 recorded an increase of nine-tenths of 1 per cent, the statement says.

WORLD GROWS NOISY, SAYS HAMLIN GARLAND

Pioneer Boys Had Solitude for Concentration, Writer Tells St. Louis Youngsters.

Hamlin Garland, the last living member of the American Society of Letters, and best known for his book, "A Son of the Middle Border," spoke last night at Sheldon Memorial on "Personal Reminiscences of Famous American Authors" under auspices of the students of John Burroughs School.

He was well acquainted with John Burroughs, the naturalist for whom the school was named, and told anecodotes of their friendship. Garland was an associate of the famous group of New England writers including Oliver Wendell Holmes, William Dean Howells and Edward Everett Hale. He is 68 years old.

In reference to the passing of the pioneer epoch in American life, Garland said: "The pioneer boy had one great advantage over young people of today. That was solitude which gave him opportunity for contemplation and reflection.

"These poor young things today can't find a moment in which they may think. The telephone rings, the radio blares, the automobiles and the movies are waiting. We are all just a bundle of sensory nerves that react to incessant stimuli. If there is any one thing I took with me from country life it is the power of concentration."

INVALID HEARS FAVORITE CHURCH SERVICES BY WIRE

Device Set Up Easter for Dr. Marshall Baker of Webster Groves.

When Dr. Marshall Baker of Webster Groves was confined to his home, 20 South Gore avenue, by a lingering illness a year ago, he missed most of all, the services of the Webster Groves Presbyterian Church, at which he had been a regular attendant.

Frequently he mentioned his inability to attend and Clarence H. Comfort, an elder in the church, worked out a plan whereby wires were stretched from the church acousticon, by which those whose hearing is impaired may hear the services, to a headphone beside Dr. Baker's bed.

Now Dr. Baker may hear the services at the church across from his home, perfectly each Sunday. Dr. Baker heard his first services by wire Easter Sunday.

OPEN VERDICT GIVEN IN AUTO KILLING

Inquest Fails to Fix Blame for Death of Miss Laura Guerdan.

An open verdict, fixing no responsibility, was returned by a Coroner's jury yesterday at an inquest into the death of Miss Laura Guerdan, 43 years old, 3634 Connecticut street, who was killed Friday night when struck by an automobile at Ruskin and West Florissant avenues.

On advice of counsel, the driver, Arthur E. Hartman, 6068 Schulte avenue, did not testify. His bond was continued, but the Circuit Attorney said the case probably would not be submitted to the grand jury unless further evidence developed.

Charles Krug, 4863 Kossuth avenue, who was riding with Hartman, testified he did not see the car strike anyone. He did, however, feel a jar as if the wheels were rolling over an object, and called the driver's attention to it. They stopped the car, went back and found Miss Guerdan in the street.

Miss Guerdan's skull and several ribs were fractured. With her brother and sister, Erwin and Lydia Guerdan, she was starting home from a public school entertainment, and had stepped into the street to board a Bellefontaine street car. Her brother and sister had their heads turned at the time and did not seen her run down.

KSD Soloist Tonight to Be Noted Baritone

Richard Bonelli, leading baritone with the Chicago Civic Opera, will sing in the Atwater Kent Hour over KSD tonight, assisted by Emilia da Prato, soprano, and Kathleen Stewart, pianist. Robert Hood Bowers will conduct the orchestra.

Miss da Prato attracted nation-wide attention by winning second place in the Atwater Kent audition of 1927. Miss da Prato, who is 20 years old, was born in Lucca, Italy, coming to this country with her family at the age of 3. They lived for years in Tacoma and since in San Francisco.

The young Italian soprano began singing in public when she was asked to the table to entertain the passengers on the steamer, and has been singing ever since. She went through the South San Francisco grammar school and, completing the business course, has been employed as a stenographer. It will be difficult for her radio audience, hearing her powerful soprano voice, to visualize the singer, who is 4 feet 4 inches tall and weighs but 105 pounds.

Bonelli was born in Port Byron, N. Y., of Knickerbocker Irish, French and Italian ancestry. He attended the public schools of Syracuse, N. Y., and was graduated from Syracuse University.

He received his musical training in Paris and New York, and in addition to his many concerts and opera appearances, in the United States has toured Europe with several opera companies.

The program follows:

I.
Largo al factotum, from The Barber of Seville .....Rossini
Mr. Bonelli.

II.
Second Movement from A Sonata in D Major .....Mozart
Miss Stewart.

III.
Ernani involami, from Ernani—Verdi

b) Love Was With Me Yesterday .....Golde
c) Irish Names .....Turbey
d) Lolita .....Buzzi-Peccia
Mr. Bonelli.

Elsie Ferguson in Radio Debut Through KSD

Elsie Ferguson, whose theatrical successes have packed Broadway houses and whose film appearances have won equal triumphs, has agreed to make her radio debut in the Eveready Hour over KSD next Tuesday evening, in a program composed largely of Shakspearian scenes, with a recitation from Oscar Wilde.

Time was when Elsie Ferguson could be seen and heard only on the legitimate stage. Then came her surrender to the "movies" with a subsequent avalanche of critical praise for her performances.

Now another genuine star joins the growing array of artists who are becoming part of the lives of the fortunate multitudes who tune in, without price or inconvenience, to hear their favorites.

Miss Ferguson will recite Wilde's "The Selfish Giant" to the music of Liza Lehmann. The pathos of this piece should be well adapted to her emotional gifts.

Pedro de Cordoba will play Romeo opposite Miss Ferguson as Juliet in the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet." Cordoba's acting is, of course, ranked on the same plane as that of Miss Ferguson.

With Nathaniel Shilkret conducting music of Tschaikowsky, Gounod and Berlioz will be played by the Eveready Orchestra as an accompaniment to the Shakspearian scenes.

Among the plays in which Miss Ferguson has appeared are "Such a Little Queen," "Margaret Schiller," "Peter Ibbetson," "Sacred and Profane Love," "The Varying Shore" and "Outcast."

Whiteman in KSD Broadcast

Paul Whiteman and his orchestra are to be the stellar features of an elaborate two-hour broadcast late next Wednesday night and early Thursday morning over KSD and other stations on the Red and Blue networks of the N. B. C.

From 11 o'clock until midnight, the program is to be given by the National Broadcasting Co. announcers and other NBC stars. Whiteman and his orchestra are to broadcast from midnight until 1 a. m. They will play, among a number of pieces, "Blue Fantasy," a new symphonic jazz composition by Ferde Grofe which is to be heard for the first time anywhere.

This special Whiteman program has been arranged so that most of the country's musicians may hear what is described as the most ambitious development in "modern American music" since George Gershwins "Rhapsody in Blue" appeared. The date of the broadcast also has been set to coincide with the birthday of Whiteman's mother, Mrs. Wilberforce J. Whiteman, of Denver, Colo.

Grofe is said to have developed his "Blue Fantasy" from several themes suggested by Matt Malneck and Harry Barris, two musicians in Whiteman's organization. Grofe is to be at the piano when his work is being played, and will explain the treatment and symphonic development of the jazz themes.

"Blue Fantasy" takes about 18 minutes to play. The remainder of Whiteman's hour will be devoted to popular dance music and sings by the Whiteman Rythym Boys.

"SAUL OF TARSUS" TO BE TONIGHT'S RADIO DRAMA

William Ford Manley's "Saul of Tarsus" will be the biblical drama performed by the National Players through WEAF, WGY, WSAI, WOC, WHO, WOW and KVOO at 9:15 tonight. The players will be under the direction of Gerald Stopp.

The drama will present seven scenes, the first a street in Jerusalem in which Saul is shown as the arch-foe of Christianity.

Coolidge Will Speak Through KSD Tomorrow

A Forestry Week program in which President Coolidge will speak will be broadcast from Washington at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening by the National Broadcasting Co. over KSD and allied stations.

Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior of Canada, speaking from the NBC studios in Washington, and Louise Homer Stires, soprano, singing from New York, also will be heard in this broadcast.

Minister Stewart will come to the United States especially in the interest of Forestry Week, as he is in charge of the Canadian National forests and Canada is celebrating its own Forestry Week concurrently with ours.

Mrs. Stires and Harrington Van Hoesen, baritone, with Frank La Forge, pianist, will conclude the program with a group of songs appropriate to forestry and out-of-door life. The feature of this musical program will be the first presentation of La Forge's "Trees at Night," written for this broadcast. Oscar Rashbach's "Trees," from the poem by Joyce Kilmer, and "The Walnut Tree" will make up the program.

Louise Homer Stires is the daughter and namesake of the great American contralto. She has toured extensively, singing in joint concert with Mme. Homer and giving numerous recitals alone. She has participated in several Atwater Kent hours.

DR. POLING SPEAKS AGAIN THIS AFTERNOON OVER KSD

Speaking before the National Youth Conference and an NBC microphone at 2 this afternoon, Dr. Daniel A. Poling will speak over KSD on "Conquerors of Circumstance."

TO PLAY GRIEG CONCERTO IN NOON CONCERT TODAY

Frank Black, well-known radio artist, will play the Grieg Concerto during the Gold Strand Hour over KSD at noon today.

A fantasie by Black on themes from Liszt's Second Hungarian Rhapsody, will be played by the orchestra.

Frank Munn, tenor, will sing "Bells of St. Mary's" and "Four Walls," a Berlin song. Marie Horton, soprano, will sing "The Swan" and Paladilhe's "Psyche." Soprano and tenor duets will be "D'ye Love Me" from Bottles in the Air and "Baby Days" by Gustave Haenschen.

The string quartette will play the first movement of Debussy's "Quartette in G Minor." Merle Johnson will play "Dancing Tambourine" as a saxophone solo.

Other orchestral numbers in the Gold Strand Hour will be Chopin's "Revolutionary Etude," selections from Youman's "Two Little Girls in Blue," Godowsky's "Old Vienna," "Let's Kiss and Make Up" from Sunny Face, Grieg's "In the Hall of the Mountain King," and Rolf Frimi's "Marche Carnavalesque."

Radio Service at 1 P. M. Today.

Dr. Paul E. Scherer, pastor of the Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, New York, is to be the speaker in the International Radio Service from WOC, WDAF, WFAA, WHAS and WMC at 1 o'clock today.

RADIO TALK BY J. M. KURN

Addresses by J. M. Kurn, president of the Frisco Railroad, and former Gov. C. H. Brough of Arkansas, are to be broadcast about 8 p. m. next Wednesday for KTHS, Hot Springs (385 meters, 780 kilocycles). Kurn's topic is to be "The Contact of Business." Brough is to discuss "Industrial Development of the Mid-South."

The speeches will be delivered at the annual dinner of the National Association of Railroad Tie Producers at Hot Springs.

St. Louisans Know Values!

That was proven by the tremendous response to our last week's advertisement. Thousands attended "THE MOST SENSATIONAL RADIO SALE EVER CONDUCTED IN ST. LOUIS," and thousands purchased, for they found everything just as advertised, in fact the values were actually much greater than advertised. By popular demand we are continuing the sale for one more week to give those who were not in a position to buy last week an opportunity to participate in this great festival of bargains.

SPLITDORF
MODEL R. V. 580

Licensed by Radio Corp. of America and Under patents of the U. S. Navy, General Electric Co., Westinghouse Electric Co., and American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

MADE BY SPLITDORF ELECTRICAL CO. Established 1858 Electrical Manufacturers for 70 Years

Radio Mart's tremendous buying power brings the Splitdorf RV-580 to St. Louis at $17.95! Not an ordinary set—not the usual run of receiver offered at a low price—but the famous, nationally advertised Splitdorf—so fine a set that you could pay four and five times this low price and not get similar quality. The specifications read like a radio engineer's bible—vernier dials, straightline frequency condensers, heavy transformers—an inherently neutralized circuit that includes power tube wiring, and the super power switch which gives big volume on distant signals! Licensed by the Radio Corporation of America!

All in Original Factory Sealed Cartons
REGULAR $80 VALUE
LESS EQUIPMENT

Equally Efficient on All Wave Lengths—Thanks to the "Super Power Switch"

Ask fans—set builders and engineers—they'll tell you the set which brings in low wave stations as well as high wave stations is some set! Easy with a Splitdorf—a tip of your finger on the "super power switch" gives the same volume and purity of tone on high wave stations as the low. One of radio's greatest triumphs—at a price so low that many who have never been able to afford the finest in radio can now buy!

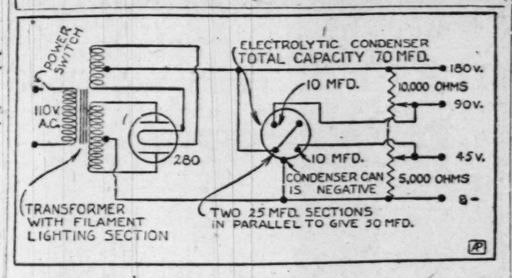
No Chokes in This B Eliminator



By increasing the capacity and cutting out choke coils, the device was found to perform as satisfactorily as any other socket power unit. The diagram gives the few simple connections necessary.

NEW YORK, April 21.—A B eliminator without choke coils, but delivering smooth direct current, has been designed.

To replace the chokes, large capacity condensers were used, reducing the cost of the eliminator without causing a loss of efficiency. The unit delivered 180 volts at a current drain of 100 to 120 milliamperes.

The circuit is a result of the efforts of John F. Rider, local radio engineer, who said that dropping the choke coils was not a radically new development, but rather a natural step in reducing construction cost. He found that high values of capacity would do the work of filter chokes and the low capacity condensers usually used in eliminators. Practically all AC current is by-passed by the large condensers.

Heretofore filter chokes were considered absolutely necessary.

Parts for Chokeless B Eliminator.

1 280 rectifying tube.
1 70-mfd. electrolytic condenser, with 2 25-mfd. sections and 2 10-mfd. sections.
1 110-volt AC transformer with secondary winding for 280 filament.
1 10,000-ohm resistance with 1 slider.
1 5,000-ohm variable resistance.
1 socket.
4 binding posts.
1 power switch.
Wire and 12x12 baseboard.

"Yet here is evidence," Rider said, "that they were not indispensable. As a matter of fact, we can say this eliminator is without a filter system, yet it works."

The power pack may be constructed on a wood baseboard a foot square, the various units being mounted to permit minimum wiring.

The condensers used really comprise a single unit. There are two 25 mfd. sections, which are connected to provide the 50 mfd. bypass across the direct current line. In addition theer are two 10 mfd. sections which are bypasses for the voltage regulating resistors. The negative connection is made to the condenser can.

The condenser is of the electrolytic type, which gives large capacity in small space. It is self healing, with a peak voltage of 400. If punctured, it is repaired by the next cycle of current.

The AC transformer should be one suitable for all 110-120 volt house lines with a frequency range of from 50 to 133 cycles. It should have a winding to provide current to light the 280 filament and be designed so that good voltage regulation is obtained.

Two resistances are incorporated, one with a maximum of 10,000 ohms and the other of 5000 ohms. They should be of a type to give maximum heat radiating surface.

The chokeless eliminator has no more hum than the average eliminator and works equally well whether AC or DC tubes are used in the receiver. With economy the keynote in the design of the unit, simplicity in its construction adds to its value.

Hobert Denti, first trumpeter of the Capitol Grand Orchestra, will be featured by Maj. Bowes in the broadcast of his Capitol Theater Family through KSD this evening.

Charge of Politics in Radio Fig

By THOMAS STEVENS

WASHINGTON, April ... "Service to the remote ... becoming the slogan of ... of the station allocation ... mended by the Institute of ... Engineers.

The engineers recommend ... for maximum radio service ... entire country the number of ... tions operating simultaneously ... reduced to 240. Under the ... the 90 broadcasting channels ... be divided into three groups ... Class C, 36 Class B and 4 ... —and assigned as follows:

Fifty high-power or Class ... tions, with exclusive wave ...

Ninety medium-power or ... B stations, two or three of ... would be assigned to a channel.

Two hundred low-power or ... A stations, 50 of which ... assigned to a channel.

Robinson May Decide ...

Two commissioners ... believe in the engineering ... ples involved in the ... plan, but declare it can and ... be modified.

Two of the commissioners ... for the engineering plan and ... opposed to any kind of ... mise.

On Judge Ira E. Robinson, ... new chairman of the commission, may rest the responsibility of deciding on the plan of allocation.

Robinson is sparring for ... If he makes up his mind to ... with the modificationists, it ... give them the majority of ... sion votes. If he sides with ... who are against modification, ... plan recommended by the ... neers may be adopted.

Tomorrow there will be an informal meeting here at ... broadcasters and others will be given an opportunity to submit ... compromise plan.

To the public, Judge Robinson still presents a smiling, confident face. Privately, however, he ... he is beginning to realize that he is on a small volcano.

Summary of Arguments.

The many arguments of those in favor of modification ... while the recommendations of ... engineers may be sound in ... ciple, they are not practical ... immediate adoption. They ... not sure that it is desirable ... have entirely cleared channels, ... say that if there are cleared ... nels, the number should be ... less than 50, so that a much ... er number of stations could be accomodated.

Those against modification ... sert that it is impossible to ... against engineering facts.

The recommendations of the ... stitute of Radio Engineers are ... cepted and approved by the ... ing radio engineers of the ... try, they say, as the best ... in the present state of broadcasting and any deviation will decrease service to the public.

They assert that unless ... channels are provided, it will be impossible to give radio service to the remote listener.

"The average listener living ... miles from a broadcasting ... doesn't know what good radio ... they argue. "It is possible to ... them good radio only on ... channels. The number of ... channels cannot be less than ... because, otherwise, the ... which each state would get ... be so small that poor ... would be bound to result."

Almost all of the engineers ... have expressed themselves ... against modification. They ... that many stations must be ... ficed to provide good radio ... and assert it is the duty of ... Commission to follow such a ...

Foes of Plan in Congress.

On the other hand, most of ... members of the Senate and ... want to see as many stations ... censed as possible, so are opposed to the recommendations of the engineers. If the recommendations are adopted, it will mean ... more than 300 stations will ... and these stations may blanket ... Senators and Representatives.

Moreover, competition ... stations would be on a state ... instead of national. Stations in each State would be forced to ... pete with each other for ... ments, and this would prove ... barrassing to many members of Congress to be compelled to ... sides.

There is an indication that those who are against modification ... charge that an effort is being made to allocate waves along political rather than engineering lines, ... that radio service to the public is being endangered by political ambitions.

CHANGES IN KSD SCHEDULE FOR NEXT SATURDAY

Conclusion of the series of ... Hour concerts by Walter Damrosch and the New York Symphony Orchestra has necessitated several changes in KSD's Saturday night schedule. Network broadcasts over KSD next Saturday night will begin at 7, with a concert by the Mediterraneans' dance band, ... Marian directing, and the Boswell Laddies' vocal trio.

The usual Philco Hour ... comedy tabloid performance ... be broadcast from 8 to 9 o'clock, "The Arcadians" being this week's selection.

KSD will be one of the ... wide chain which at 9 o'clock Saturday night will broadcast a program for the blind sponsored by 1200 Lions' clubs. The program will be given in the Syria Mosque, Pittsburg, Pa. Harold Bauer, ... internationally famous pianist; ... Case, noted soprano, and ... Grasse, violinist, are among the artists who will take part.

Charge of Politics in Radio Figh

By THOMAS STEVENSON.

WASHINGTON, April 21. "Service to the remote listener" becoming the slogan of advocate of the station allocation recommended by the Institute of Radio Engineers.

The engineers recommended the for maximum radio service to the entire country the number of sta tions operating simultaneously reduced to 340. Under the plan the 90 broadcasting channels would be divided into three groups—A, Class C, 36 Class B and 4 Class A —and assigned as follows:

Fifty high-power or Class C stations, with exclusive waves.

Ninety medium-power or Class B stations, two or three of which would be assigned to a channel.

Two hundred low-power or Class A stations, 50 of which would be assigned to a channel.

Robinson May Decide It.

Two commissioners profess to believe in the engineering principles involved in the engineering plan, but declare it can and should be modified.

Two of the commissioners are for the engineering plan and are opposed to any kind of compromise.

On Judge Ira E. Robinson, the new chairman of the commission, may rest the responsibility of deciding on the plan of allocation.

Robinson is sparring for time. If he makes up his mind to side with the modificationists, it will give them the majority of commission votes. If he sides with those who are against modification, the plan recommended by the engineers may be adopted.

Tomorrow there will be an informal meeting here at which broadcasters and others will be given an opportunity to submit a compromise plan.

To the public, Judge Robinson still presents a smiling, confident face. Privately, however, he shows he is beginning to realize that he is on a small volcano.

Summary of Arguments.

The many arguments of those in favor of modification is that while the recommendations of the engineers may be sound in principle, they are not practical for immediate adoption. They are not sure that it is desirable to have entirely cleared channels, and say that if there are cleared channels, the number should be much less than 50, so that a much larger number of stations could be accomodated.

Those against modification assert that it is impossible to argue against engineering facts.

The recommendations of the Institute of Radio Engineers are accepted and approved by the leading radio engineers of the country, they say, as the best possible in the present state of broadcasting and any deviation will decrease service to the public.

They assert that unless cleared channels are provided, it will be impossible to give radio service to the remote listener.

"The average listener living 100 miles from a broadcasting station doesn't know what good radio is," they argue. "It is possible to give them good radio only on cleared channels. The number of cleared channels cannot be less than 50 because, otherwise, the number which each state would get would be so small that poor programs would be bound to result."

Almost all of the engineers who have expressed themselves are against modification. They believe that many stations must be sacrificed to provide good radio service and assert it is the duty of the Commission to follow such a policy.

Foes of Plan in Congress.

On the other hand, most of the members of the Senate and House want to see as many stations as censed as possible, so are opposed to the recommendations of the engineers. If the recommendations are adopted, it will mean that more than 300 stations will lose and these stations may blame their Senators and Representatives.

Moreover, competition between stations would be on a state basis instead of national. Stations of each State would be forced to compete with each other for assignments, and this would prove embarrassing to many members of Congress to be compelled to take sides.

There is an indication that those who are against modification may charge that an effort is being made to allocate waves along political rather than engineering lines, and that radio service to the public is being endangered by political ambitions.

CHANGES IN KSD SCHEDULE FOR NEXT SATURDAY NIGHT

Conclusion of the series of RCA Hour concerts by Walter Damrosch and the New York Symphony Orchestra has necessitated several changes in KSD's Saturday night schedule. Network broadcasting over KSD next Saturday night will begin at 7, with a concert by the Mediterraneans' dance band, Hugo Marian directing, and the Bonnie Laddies' vocal trio.

The usual Philco Hour musical comedy tabloid performance will be broadcast from 8 to 9 o'clock. "The Arcadians" being this week's selection.

KSD will be one of the nation-wide chain which at 9 o'clock Saturday night will broadcast a program for the blind sponsored by 1300 Lions' clubs. The program will be given in the Syria Mosque, Pittsburg, Pa. Harold Bauer, internationally famous pianist; Anna Case, noted soprano, and Edward Grasse, violinist, are among the artists who will take part.

All WABC Programs on Short Waves

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 21.—An attempt to carry church services held in New York by short wave radio to a congregation 1800 miles distant is to be made tomorrow morning.

Through 2XE, a new station that is to be the short wave companion of WABC, New York, services of the West End Presbyterian Church are to be sent out on 58.5 meters simultaneously with the broadcast on 309.1 meters.

If conditions permit, the program will be picked up on a special receiver at the Polytechnic Institute at San Gernan, Porto Rico, and cut into loud speakers in an auditorium there.

This program is to inaugurate regular short wave broadcasts of the WABC features.

Station 2XE will be on the air each time that the larger station is operating, and it is hoped to make the WABC programs available in all parts of the world.

The news transmitter is a 250 watter, using one 250 watt tube, a 50 watt amplifier and a 7½ watt tube in the crystal control circuit. Several innovations are incorporated, with the idea of producing a steady signal in the receiver.

The range of the transmitter should be almost unlimited.

TUBAPHONE, NEW INSTRUMENT, TO MAKE BROADCAST DEBUT

A new musical instrument will be heard on the air for the first time in the General Motors Family party over KSD tomorrow night. It will be the "tubaphone," introduced by Joe Green with the novelty orchestra which bears his name. The tubaphone is a series of hollow steel tubes, arranged in chromatic scale on the principle of a xylophone, but is said to be more melodious than the latter instrument and better suited to broadcasting.

Another program of song hits will characterize this family party, with instrumental music by a symphony orchestra and band, in addition to the novelty orchestra.

A baritone and the "Rollickers" male quartet will sing songs from "Rosalie," "Merry Malones," "Sunny Days," "Three Musketeers," "Keep Shufflin'," "Golden Dawn" and other musical shows.

M'INTYRE AND HEATH IN ACOUSTICON HOUR TODAY

McIntyre and Heath, the noted comedy team, are to be featured among several stars in today's Acousticon Hour at 4:30 this afternoon over WEBH, WOC, WHO, WOW, WDAF, KVOO, WFAA, WHAS, WMC, WSB and other stations. This program will last a full hour.

McIntyre and Heath are to give a tabloid version of their "Georgia Minstrels" sketch.

Marguerite Sylva, the grand opera star, is to sing the "Habanera" from "Carmen" and a Spanish song.

Will Oakland, formerly tenor soloist with the minstrel troupes of Prinrose, Dockstader, "Honey Boy" Evans and Cohan and Harris, will offer as one of his numbers a ballad from the old Harrigan and Hart shows, "When Poverty's Tears Ebb and Flow."

Frank Moulan, who first gained fame as a musical comedy artist 25 years ago, will be heard in a group of character songs. Gene Green will sing specialty "coon" songs.

An augmented orchestra will be heard in several colorful numbers, including "The Stars and Stripes Forever" and a potpourri of songs from Victor Herbert's most popular operettas.

The Acousticon Quartet will offer medleys of popular songs that everybody sang 25 years ago.

RADIO STAR SAID TO GET $50 A SINGING MINUTE

The soprano who sings under the name of Olive Palmer every Friday night in the Palmolive hour is said to have signed an exclusive contract under which the Palmolive sponsors pay her at the rate of $50 a singing minute.

Olive Palmer is said to have been originally a grand opera singer. She immediately developed the singing technique that is necessary if a voice is to broadcast well, and has been a featured soloist ever since in the Palmolive hour over KSD and allied stations every week.

An entirely new type of entertainer and artist is being developed through radio, and broadcasting is developing stars of its own as well as drawing stars from other entertainment fields.

Musicians and singers are becoming more and more eager to perform before the vast radio audience, and the financial rewards for real broadcasting ability are beginning to climb to levels on a par with the movies and the opera.

KMOX TO EXPERIMENT WITH REBROADCAST FROM BRITAIN

Following the successful rebroadcasting Friday of the chimes of "Big Ben," the clock on the House of Parliament in London, KMOX, St. Louis, is to make other attempts to rebroadcast British programs.

Trade Notes

THAT the demand for AC receivers will continue heavy throughout the coming warm months was predicted by all speakers at a meeting of Atwater Kent distributers and dealers in Kansas City on Monday. H. T. Stockholm, Atwater Kent official in charge of the Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas and Colorado districts. Roger Pigeon and E. D. Sutherland, territory representatives; P. A. Ware, merchandising manager, and other Atwater Kent representatives attended. Norman S. Brown and Fred A. Wiebe, president and vice president of the Brown & Hall Supply Co., distributer in the St. Louis territory, also were present.

A new five-prong base replacement tube for use in receivers requiring a 27-type heater tube has been developed by the Arcturus Radio Co., Newark, N. J. Several points of superiority are claimed by the manufacturer, including quick heating in six to 12 seconds, superior sensitivity and life comparable with that of the best DC tubes.

The general specifications of the new tube known as the AC 127, are as follows: Detecting plate potential, 45 volts; heater filament voltage, 2.25; heater filament current, 1 ampere; amplification constant, 9.3; mutual conductance, 850 ohms; plate impedance, 11,000 ohms.

These tubes are generally used in the detecting circuit of A-C receivers, but can be employed throughout the amplifying systems.

M. F. Flanagan, a Radio Manufacturers' Association executive, is to speak at a meeting of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association at Hotel Claridge next Wednesday evening, at 6:30 o'clock. Flanagan is to deliver a message of interest on the radio manufacturing situation and the future of the industry.

The St. Louis Radio Trades Association is planning for a special train to the Chicago radio trade show which is to begin June 11. It has reserved 100 rooms in the Stevens Hotel, where the show is to be held. Reservations must be made with W. E. Mackle, executive-secretary of the association before May 1, Mackle says.

VIOLINIST ON KYW TONIGHT

"Gypsy Air," by Pablo de Sarasate, Spanish violin virtuoso, will be played as a violin solo by Don Amaizo, the Wizard of the bow, the bar and the baton, during his program which will be broadcast through stations associated with the NBC Blue Network Sunday evening, April 22, at 10:15 o'clock, Eastern standard time (9:15 o'clock, Central standard time).

Don Amaizo's other solo will be a tango by Albeniz.

Model 38, without tubes, $125

An extra powerful A.C. set of particular value where distance getting or maximum daylight reception is essential or an inside antenna is necessary. Beautiful tone quality. Unusual selectivity. Uses seven A.C. tubes and one rectifying tube.

Only 4 months old— in 175,000 homes already!

EVERY week, from the moment of its appearance, the Atwater Kent A. C. set has broken all sales records.

Why?

Simply because it is the answer to the question everybody was asking: "When can we have a set that will run without batteries—an all-electric set that will be right?"

This set is right. Rightly designed, rightly made, rightly priced. It delivers honest-to-goodness reception day after day without a whimper. The news has spread fast. One person saw, heard, marvelled at the price—and bought. A friend dropped in—and wanted one, too. So, in every community, the reputation of this new and simpler and better radio has flashed from home to home.

The Presidential conventions are coming—the Tunney-Heeney fight is coming—and right NOW the air is full of good entertainment—and clear, consistent reception with this A. C. set costs only a fraction of a cent an hour. Why not try it—at an Atwater Kent dealer's store or in your own home—today—and be ready for tonight's big program—and the all-star radio summer just ahead?

Magnificent new smartness . . . a big brute of a Pikes Peak Motor . . . the great safety of Westinghouse Brakes . . . and the famous "One Shot" chassis lubricating system

HERE'S news—big news—good news: A new six-cylinder, four-door, five-passenger Special Sedan by Chandler at $995!

The price is remarkable because it's the price of a Chandler—and the car is remarkable in a good many ways . . .

Remarkably beautiful—a magnificent car outwardly and inwardly—elegantly upholstered and appointed—exceptionally roomy.

Remarkably powerful—hair-trigger action in traffic—easy mastery of the steepest hills—and worlds of stamina for the open highway.

Remarkable ease and safety of control. Westinghouse Vacuum Brakes make this car phenomenally easy to stop. At any speed in any weather, the tip of your toe brings you to a quick, smooth "cushioned" stop.

And think of this—to lubricate the chassis you simply press your foot on a plunger. That's the great advantage of Chandler's "One Shot" centralized lubricating system.

Scores of advanced features, all the way through the car. An oil filter. A pre-heating manifold vaporizer. An automatic thermostat in the cooling system. Self-adjusting noiseless spring shackles. Feature after feature you would only expect of a high-priced car.

Come look at this car. Come drive this car. Compare this car with anything else within rifle range of the price!

Drama Season Nearing End

Katharine Cornell Comes to the Shubert Tomorrow Night in Somerset Maugham's Drama, "The Letter," While the American Enters Last Week But One With the Motion Picture "Simba," to Be Followed by Frank Craven's "The 19th Hole" for the Wind-up.

MISS KATHARINE CORNELL has the legitimate field all to herself this week, for while she is playing in Somerset Maugham's drama, "The Letter" out at the Shubert Theater the American will be given over to one of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson's famous African hunt pictures, "Simba." Incidentally the play season is drawing to a close. The American has only one more offering, according to present plans, closing its doors a week from next Saturday night with the final curtain of Frank Craven's comedy, "The 19th Hole." That same week, the week of April 29, the Shubert will have a company of Negro players in a musical show, "Africana," after which will come "The Spider" and one or two other pieces before the Grand Boulevard house calls it a season.

"The Letter," Miss Cornell's offering, is by the author of Miss Barrymore's play, "The Constant Wife," which departed from the Shubert only last night, Maugham, who goes pretty much over the world for his local color and characters. This time Mr. Maugham went to the Malay Peninsula, to the British possessions known as the Straits Settlement. There among the English who rule the country and the dark skinned races who surround them, he found his drama. In Leslie Crosbie, an Englishwoman of the repressed type, outwardly a good wife but secretly carrying on a love affair, Mr. Maugham has created a portrait delineation of a woman which gives Miss Cornell considerable acting range. It is a drama of the soul of a woman who kills and then is compelled to act a lie to her husband and his friends until retribution overtakes her. The company which supports Miss Cornell has been drawn from London and includes: Allan Jeayes, J. W. Austin, Eva Leonard-Boyne, Soo Yong, Chinese actress, James Vincent, John Buckler, Josephine Morse, Burton McEvilly and Sam Kim, a Korean actor.

TO the ordinary person, "Simba" might signify the title of a book, make of a radio or even the name of a household pet. However, to the natives of far-off British East Africa, "Simba" has a very important significance. For, in translating the word we learn it means "lion" in Swahili, which is the language spoken by the inhabitants of that remote section of the world. The lion is the most dreaded enemy with which these people have to contend and the cry of "Simba" in an African village is a call to arms that might mean a battle for life.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, who are recognized as being among the foremost explorers with a camera, selected "Simba" as the title for their motion picture of big game hunting because it is their experiences with the king of the jungle that have made possible the thrilling episodes with which the picture is reported to be replete.

MARIANNE RISDON, who appeared as ingenue with the National Players in St. Louis two years ago, returns to the Empress Theater this week as the leading woman. She will head the cast with Don Burroughs in "It's A Boy," William Anthony McGuire's domestic comedy. McGuire also wrote "Six Cylinder Love" which was presented by the National Players a number of years ago. "It's A Boy," was originally produced in 1922 by Sam H. Harris, but the New York company did not come to St. Louis. The piece was first seen here when it was presented by the repertoire company at the Empress in 1924.

The story has to do with the fortunes and misfortunes of Mr and Mrs. Chester Blake and their extremely youthful son, Chester Jr. Blake, a five and ten cent store merchant, is a prosperous member of a small community. But being an indulgent husband and ambitious father he yields to the persuasions of his excitement-seeking wife and accepts a position in New York. There the young people's troubles begin.

Don Burroughs will be seen as the young husband and Marianne Risdon will be his attractive wife. Alice Baker and Frank Jaquet will have comedy roles in the rival positions of grandmother and grandfather of opposing parental houses.

GETTING back to Miss Cornell, about whom St. Louis knows little beyond her appearance here a season or so ago in "The Green Hat," it may be said that she is thoroughly a product of America in art, ancestry and training. Therefore, the general recognition which she has gained in her own country, and abroad too, should be a matter of gratification to Americans generally.

Miss Cornell was born in Buffalo, the daughter of Dr. Peter Cornell. After the usual education of a young American girl whose parents are in good circumstances, Miss Cornell studied dramatics and made her debut with the Washington Square Players in New York, in a small role in "Bushido." Like other young women who afterwards developed talent, Miss Cornell was exceedingly sensitive. She decided that rather than try to work in various productions

Behind the Screens Out in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, April 21.

CYNICS the world over agree that the average man has more relatives that he can use.

But a screen star! Some cinema celebrities can hardly pick up the morning paper without discovering a new relative. Anyone, it seems, who feels the need of being related to someone picks a screen celebrity as his brother, sister, cousin or long-lost child.

It is particularly annoying to learn that one has an extra mother. That happened to Betty Compson not long ago. In order to straighten things out she hurried over to her own mother's comfortable home near here and posed for portraits with her, leaving it to the public to deduce that the destitute woman in the East who claimed to be her mother must have been mistaken. And some years ago Priscilla Dean, on a personal appearance tour with her mother, met in Pittsburg a girl who insisted she was her sister and that Priscilla's mother was destitute in a nearby town.

About the same time Jack Holt was hustling his real relatives into the limelight to show that they were in good health and prosperous, thus to offset the embarassment created by people who alleged they were "Jack Holt's folks" and starving.

OCCASIONALLY the attempt to establish relationship to a star grows out of a sincere effort to find a long-lost brother or sister whose dimly remembered features may seem to have come to life miraculously on the screen. "Of course you've changed your name," a letter from some fancied relative will read, "but I know I could not be mistaken in the face I see on the screen."

Most of the volunteer relatives, however, want money. Not that they always write or come to Hollywood for it. Charlie Ray's "brother" was arrested in Seattle some time ago after cashing numerous worthless checks on the strength of his alleged connection with the film player. And Bert Lytell had a "brother" who worked the same game around San Francisco.

When Norma Shearer received a letter from the Middle West breaking the news that her "sister" had recognized her on the screen, she was not unprepared for the further disclosure that "If you will send me $500 I can pack right up and come to Hollywood to see you."

Only one kind of relative seems to be not so anxious to claim connection with the stars. Diligent search has failed to uncover a single instance of a very rich uncle trying to get in touch with a film celebrity whom he believes to be his niece or nephew and whom he wants to meet before writing his will.

SOME people try hard to get into motion picture studios, others love to stay out of them. Buster Keaton, for instance, hard at work on the story of his next picture, has rented a double bungalow half a block away from the studio. Here he and his director, Edward Sedgwick, plot the comic high points of the new film and argue over the humor of each other's gags all day without feeling too closely enmeshed in the machinery of production, nor yet too far away from any studio assistance they might want to call in.

Keaton's side of the double bungalow is furnished more or less like the average bungalow apartment, since he uses it chiefly as a dressing room. On the Sedgwick side only the front room looks homey. The kitchen is an office with a stenographer's desk where the cook stove ought to be, and an Oriental rug in the middle of the shiny linoleum. The bedroom is another office, with lace curtains setting off the severe office furniture. One of Sedgwick's assistants, of which every movie director has several, is kept busy answering the doorbell and disposing of peddlers and agents who want to sell sewing machines, electric hair curlers and aluminum kitchenware to the occupants.

The average reader doubtless is inclined to be a bit skeptical, occasionally, about the vast amount of trouble producers are said to go to in their efforts to make movie sets look absolutely accurate and convincing. But that is one thing about the movies which is really hard to exaggerate. When the script

Mrs. Martin Johnson on the African Hunt When the Picture "Simba," Which Is at the American Theater, Was Made.

DAY BY DAY IN NEW YORK

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 21.

TWO friends of mine retired from business several years ago but recently decided to embark on a venture together. At the last moment one backed down and the other wired him:

"Thanks for the telegram deciding to stay retired. At your age and mine let us not pick up any new troubles but let us try to be comfortable and happy as we can be and yet not stay idle. If we are going to do anything let us do something for nothing for the community, for the country, for our friends. But always for nothing."

There is a powerful sermon in that telegram.

I have talked to three men who have recently returned from Russia. Each paints a depressing picture of the hopelessness and despair. All life seems squeezed out of this wonderful country. Nothing has been accomplished but bloodshed and waste. The band of Bolshevik misfits who promised so much have proved more autocratic than the Czar. All they can do now is shout their venom at capitalism while the people starve.

Probably in the end the complete failure of communism will be a good thing, for it will forever silence the foolish hatred against the so-called capitalistic class. When we realize the mone, Rockefeller Carnegie and a hundred other so called capitalists have given generously for the betterment of mankind, we have an uncontrollable urge to kick every little miserable soap-box orator, spewing discontent where he sits down.

I do not think the capitalistic system is perfect, nor do I think the worker has yet received his full share. But he is getting it, at least, in America. Any American worker who browses around Europe for a few weeks will come home feeling pretty well satisfied.

I have, for instance, a friend of school days who is a plasterer in a Long Island town that has had a boom. He owns his own nine-room house, his family car and a flivver he uses to ride to work in. He has a $15,000 life insurance policy almost paid up and a good sized savings bank account. His two children are in a private school.

On the other hand, I know a rich capitalist who at 50 has wealth in the millions, but his health is shattered. He has been the guiding genius of a business that has paid constant dividends to widows and others of modest means. So far as I can see it, he has gotten very little pleasure out of life save in the satisfaction of building up an organization that has furnished work to thousands. I am positive my plasterer friend would not think of trading places.

I used to resent the Americans who went bragging over Europe about their country, but today I am more tolerant. After all, they have something to crow about. And Europeans are not so gosh-awful modest.

A recent Scotch story concerns the Scotchman who fell dead at his window while dropping a penny for children to scramble for on the sidewalk. The string broke.

Bebe Daniels seems to be the victim of an accident these days with the regularity of the Prince of Wales falling off his horse.

I've been wondering where the prize fighters retire to these days. There are no more saloons.

Three night clubs opened on Monday evening in New York and closed up permanently before the end of the week. Poor business.

Eddie Cantor, one of the best comedians on the stage, in the season of his highest salary had to quit the show. And the Follies closed. Cantor is a victim of too many "benefit" performances. While playing in New York he would respond to every charitable request. Never robust, he had several attacks of pleurisy, which in the end became chronic. The doctors told him he would have to quit for a year and go to a warm and balmy climate. Cantor is one of the cleverest living American actors. He came from the poverty stricken Ghetto, and never forgot those left behind. His camping club gives hundreds of tenement boys a month's outing yearly. Cantor started it and supports it generously.

I once asked Cantor if he had ever dissipated. "Yes, indeed," he replied. "Once a year I smoke a nickel cigar and get sick and everything." And that is NO exaggeration. He has done that annually for a number of years.

Wild West Show Here This Week

The 101 Ranch Show comes back to St. Louis for its annual spring visit the latter part of this week appearing afternoons and evenings of next Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the show grounds, Grand and Market street.

Heading the Indian contingents with the Oklahoma organization are Eagle Elk and White Calf, Sioux, who are bona-fide survivors of the Custer massacre, the battle of the Little Big Horn in 1876. The squadrons of Cheyenne, Ponca, Arapaho, Blackfeet and Apache braves with the show have been reduced to make way for over 100 Sioux warriors. From Chihuahua there has been imported an expert group of Mexican lariat throwers, and the rodeo champions with the show will be numerous.

More Movies on the Way

Over 750 Feature Pictures Are to Be Turned Out This Season in the Studios by Some 30 Companies —Just How It Is Done and How Much Film It Takes to Supply the Demand of the Cash Customers — The Hopeful Extras of Hollywood.

By NIE.

ACCORDING to The Film Daily, the bible of the movie men, the 1928-29 season will see the manufacture of 729 feature pictures with one of the larger companies not yet set on the amount of its output. It is expected that the grand total of 766 pictures will be reached. Last year the total number of features shot out to the cash customers of the cinema palaces reached 638.

Thirty-six companies will make the more than 750 pictures scheduled for this season. As most of these concerns are small ones the greater part of the output will come from the seven or eight chief producers with Paramount expecting to manufacture 78 and Fox, M-G-M, First National, Universal and Pathe trailing right behind. United Artists, with some of the leading stars of the screen appearing under its wing, announces only 15.

Now more than 700 pictures in one season are a good many, too many by far to make it possible that a large percentage will be good ones. But the demand equals, if it does not exceed the supply and so they will be ground out by the mile to satisfy the screen calls of the thousands of picture houses around the country.

There are, for instance, right here in St. Louis six theaters demanding a new picture every week. That will account for more than 300 of the expected output all of which will come from the studios of the larger factories.

IN turning out this mass production, this vast factory output of Art, twenty-six million feet of celluloid, more than 1000 times the total railroad mileage in the United States, are used every 24 hours as the negative filmed in the Hollywood motion picture studios.

More than fifty-two million feet of film is utilized daily in the printing of positives from the negative stock, for every motion picture negative is copied at least 200 times. These copies are what theater audiences see; the negatives are stored away in the producers' vaults.

Hollywood has thirty studios, counting the little independents who turn out "quickies" along Poverty Row, as well as the major companies. This accounts for the high total of film consumption.

Two million feet of this negative film are exposed every week in the cameras at the Paramount studios, one of the largest plants in the Southern California movieland.

The cameras grind away on scene afer scene; sometimes twelve companies are at work on the different stages. Each company, or star unit, has at least two cameras busy at the same time. One camera films the negative for the American theater audiences, while the other grinds away on the foreign negative, as one negative is always retained in this country and the other shipped abroad to care for the growing demands there.

"BUT how," the outsider asks, "do they keep track of the scenes out of this tangle of millions of feet of film?" In replying to that question, it is necessary to go into the details of story construction, the construction of settings, or backgrounds, and pay a visit to the Paramount laboratories and film cutting rooms.

Motion picture scenarios are written in sequences. Take, for instance, the script for the filming of Anne Nichols' "Abie's Irish Rose." The picture contains 720 scenes and those scenes are divided into 15 different sequences, as follows:

1. Solomon Levy and his wife aboard the ship bound for America, the land of opportunity.
2. The early life of Abie and Solomon, after the death of Solomon's wife, Rebecca; from Abie's cradle to his school days.
3. Abie, 21, starts off for France.
4. Abie in France, his meeting with Rosemary.
5. Abie's return and welcome by Solomon and the Cohens.
6. Abie's first marriage to Rosemary by a Methodist minister.
7. Abie introduces Rosemary to Solomon.
8. The dinner for Rosemary in Solomon's home.
9. The Jewish wedding ceremony.
10. Patrick Murphy and Father Whalen in California.
11. They start for New York.
12. The banishing of son and daughter by the fathers.
13. Solomon alone in his home.
14. Solomon and Patrick become grandfathers.
15. Apartment of Rosemary and Abie at Christmas-time.

On the completion of the scenario, the production manager of the studio reads it carefully, then confers with the head of the art,

Second Thoughts on First Nights

By ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT.

NEW YORK, April 21.

IT has long been apparent that there are more theater seats in New York than there are playgoers animated by a really ardent passion to occupy them. The structures, which custom and a certain native effusiveness are wont to describe as "first-class" theaters, number, in Manhattan alone, no less than 67. This number has been so swollen by the elfin caprices of economics and the stupid rivalries of real estate interests that there simply is not producing ability enough to go round.

By this stage of the season, therefore, the exhausted managers have already shot their respective bolts and the general stock of producing vitality has been so sapped that the yawning theaters are humbly asking any Tom, Dick or Harry to come in and occupy their untrodden boards. A reasonably perfect stranger has only to announce in a firm voice that he is a theatrical producer to have a theater and a bankroll eagerly placed at his disposal.

IN the artificial demand for players thus created, pretty misses, just out of dramatic school, grow uppity and, if they can demonstrate a breath-taking ability to walk all the way across the stage without once falling over the furniture, they betray at once a feeling that Katherine Cornell and Ina Claire would better look to their laurels. In this dearth, it is small wonder that the panicky theaters are hospitable to the most unpromising rubbish. A cock-eyed amateur performance of "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" is not only given a hearing on Broadway but is welcomed there with an almost touching gratitude.

IN the week just past, though snow fell and a bitter wind whistled through the canyons of Times Square, the proffered programs had all the gasa desperation of the dog days. Indeed, the aforesaid week might be described as one in which a play like "The Breaks" was the most important premiere. This was a gauche, tasteless little Texas melodrama, written and acted by the busy Nugents. Seemingly it was their feeling that the time had come to write a herniotomy play in a big way. The climax of the piece was the stirring scene in which the grasping old landowner, eager for an heir, marries his pretty handmaiden, only to hear, on his wedding night, that, as a regrettable side issue of his recent operation, the surgeon had been obliged to render him sterile. The merciful curtain fell on the scene of the old man having a good cry over this piece of news, and a wondering audience groped its way to the sidewalk for a bit of fresh air.

IT MIGHT further be described as the kind of week in which I receive notice of impending productions of "Hamlet," "Richard III" and "Twelfth Night" by one Alexander Light, who describes himself as "the only Armenian native, English speaking Shaksperean actor-producer in the world." Mr. Light further tells me that he was "the very first and the only one Shaksperean scholar and actor-producer who introduced Shakspeare's plays and played them in modern evening dress clothes 27 years ago at the Aeolian Hall."

I cull some further items from his description of himself. "Alexander Light is one of the graduates of the Emerson College of Oratory, Boston, Mass., of the class of 1901. Alexander Light is a highly talented Shakspearean actor and is gifted with more than a dozen talents of art which he has developed in their excellency. Extemporaneous poetry writing is one of them. Alexander Light offers opportunities to the musically and dramatically talented American or English born ladies and gentlemen of refinement to join his company for the most prospective and educational productions in the world to come."

As a sample of his verse, he sends the following acrostic, which, he assures me, was dashed off in less than half an hour's time:

"Seven plays of Shakspeare
Have, my favorite studies, been
All characters of the dramatic personae,
Keynote of my acting heard and seen
Eccentricity of each and every play
Satisfactorily and colloquially done,
Performance or radio, it matters not;
Evermore I am the lover of this art,
A trial before public surely will not be forgot.
Respectfully, I remain yours, Alexander Light."

IN SUCH a week, it is a temptation to hide away in some book about other plays and other days.

For instance, a monograph on Barrie, written by the English poet, Thomas Moult (whose name sounds for all the world as if Barrie had invented it) provides the American playgoer with some account of his first timid flights as a writer for the theater. Long before the triumph of "The Little Minister," he had some success with a farce called "Walker, London," which ran for 300 nights when it was produced at the now obliterated Toole's Theater in London, in February, 1892. A few nights before, "Lady Windermere's Fan" had had its premier at the St. James. Its complacent author had finally been brought before the curtain to speak to a house that rose at him and cheered and cheered again.

"I am so glad, ladies and gentlemen, that you like my play," Wilde said. "I feel sure you estimate the merits of it almost as highly as I do myself."

One recalls with difficulty now that, at the time, London was profoundly agitated by "Lady Windemere's Fan," and thrown into a tremendous flutter by the circumstance that, during this graceful and nonchalant curtain speech, Wilde had actually held a cigarette between his fingers. Indeed, that cigarette was the talk of the town. Therefore you can imagine the delight of the first audience at "Walker, London" a few nights later when, in response to the traditional calls for "Author! Author!" Mr. Toole himself came before the curtain and explained apologetically that the author would be unable to take a call.

"Mr. Barrie," he explained, "does not smoke."

Meighan at Work Again.

Appearing before the cameras for the first time in months, Thomas Meighan has started production on "The Racket." Under direction of Lewis Milestone, and with Louis Wolheim in the chief supporting role, the star is appearing as a metropolitan police captain. "The Racket" is an underworld melodrama, packed with machine-gun warfare, beer-bottles and other gang combat. In addition to Wolheim, Meighan will be supported by Lucien Prival, John Darrow, Tony Marlo and others. A leading lady has not yet been chosen, but a number of well-known actresses are being considered. In the meantime, filming will proceed on the sequence in which the feminine lead does not appear.

Stars in Pictures Together.

John Gilbert, Greta Garbo and Clarence Brown—the trio responsible for "Flesh and the Devil," will be reunited in "A Son of St. Moritz," an original story of Viennese life by Paul Oskar Hocker, now being prepared for the screen. Before starting work in "A Son of St. Moritz," each of the two stars will make an individual picture, Gilbert will do "Four Walls," while Miss Garbo will be directed by Fred Niblo in "War in the Dark," an original story by Ludwig Wolff.

Players-Guild To Give Week Of "The Detour"

Owen Davis' Drama to Be Presented at Artists' Guild Theater Tomorrow Night—"Hayfever" to Be Played May 7.

A DETERMINED effort to close its first season as a financial success will be made by the Players' Guild with its next two productions, the first of which, Owen Davis' "The Detour," will be presented all this week beginning tomororw night at the Artists' Guild.

If "The Detour" and the second offering, Noel Coward's "Hayfever," to be given the week of May 7, are received as favorably as anticipated, there is a good chance that the Players' Guild will avoid a deficit, and find itself at the start of next year in a position to begin a concentrated drive for its own Little Theater.

At any rate, the Guild in selecting these two works had its eye on the boxoffice in that both plays couple entertainment with artistry. They are also full-length modern plays, which bodes well for them inasmuch as "Outward Bound," likewise modern and in three acts, proved the most popular production of the season.

In rehearsal for the past five weeks, Director F. K. Cowley has whipped his local company into shape for a fine performance of Davis' drama of an average American family. The scene is laid in the home of a small Long Island farmer who is very materialistic though married to an idealistic wife.

The drama arises with a mixture of comedy and pathos as the husband and wife clash over the future of their daughter. Seeking to make her an artist, the mother finds her daughter is not as the same mold as she, and is forced to content herself with seeing her marry a neighboring youth and with dreaming a career for her granddaughter.

The cast includes Gordon Sommer as Stephen Hardy, Almeria as Helen, his wife; Helen Bechtel as Kate, his daughter; Warren Drescher as Tom Lane, Blair Laughlin as Dana Lamont, Virginia Myer as Dora Lamont, Elliott Bergfeld as Ben Blenny, Gene Woods as Weinstein, and Millard Glaser as Jake, his son.

she would go into stock. While she realized that stock meant constant study for new productions, she felt that work in such a company would help her in overcoming her sense of fear. As a member of the Jessie Bonstelle Players in Detroit and afterwards in Buffalo, Miss Cornell came thoroughly into her own. Conquering all sense of fear, she found that this was all she needed to do justice to herself.

Miss Cornell was successful from the early days of her stock training, so that offers came from managers quite as a matter of course. One of the first of these was to play "Jo" in the London production of "Little Women." After her return to America Miss Cornell went into dramatic productions, playing one role after another, in "Nice People," "A Bill of Divorcement," "Will Shakspeare," "The Enchanted Cottage," "Casanova," "The Way Things Happen," "The Outsider," "Tiger Cats," and "Candida." Then came "The Green Hat" in which Miss Cornell played for three years, making, as with "The Letter," a transcontinental tour.

Three Sopranos for Muni Opera

THIS SUMMER

"Tip Toes" for Garden Theater

NOT one leading soprano, but three, will appear in the cast engaged for the presentation of the tenth anniversary season of Municipal Opera at the open-air theater in Forest Park beginning Monday night, June 4, and closing Sunday night, Aug. 26. The Municipal Theater Association announced yesterday that Leonora Allen and Patricia O'Connell, two of America's younger light opera prima donnas, had been engaged during the past week in addition to Alice MacKenzie, a lyric soprano, who was chosen when the cast committee of the association visited New York last January, to complete this goal.

All three of the sopranos are newcomers to the opera organization. Miss MacKenzie made her stage debut just a few years ago as prima donna ingenue in "Some Party," a musical play which opened the Jolson Theater in New York. A short time later De Wolf Hopper selected her as the prima donna of the Gilbert and Sullivan Company and with this organization she scored a genuine success. Engagements for "A trial Honeymoon" and "Judy," two Broadway successes, followed. Later she succeeded Vivienne Segal as the prima donna of the Ziegfeld Follies. Last summer she was the prima donna of the Atlanta, Ga., Municipal Opera.

Miss Allen was born in the neighboring city of Decatur, Ill. She made her professional debut with the Chicago Civic Opera Company. At the age of 18 she sang roles in "Faust," "Manon" and "Martha." A short while later she scored a hit in the operatic version of "Romeo and Juliet." Later came a greet deal of concert work. During the last few years she has been successful in well-known musical plays, her most recent engagement being in the Shubert operetta, "My Maryland."

Miss O'Connell is a lyric soprano who has attained considerable musical success for the 23 years. She went to New York four years ago as the winner of a Juilliard Foundation scholarship from Alabama, her native State. To gain stage experience while studying for grand opera, she entered the musical plays of Sigmund Romberg, a composer of several operas to be presented at the Municipal Theater this summer. She was a member of the original "Student Prince" company and later played in "Countess Maritza." Both of these operas are in the 1928 Municipal Opera repertory. Her most recent engagement was in Ziegfeld's production of "Rosalie," a current New York success.

Dorothy Humphreys, engaged by Charles Sinclair to play with his Garden Theater Company this summer, was the dancing star with Al Jolson in "Big Boy," for a season and later appeared in the soubrette role in the Bolton-Thompson-Gershwin musical play, "Tip Toes," which has been acquired by Sinclair for production at the Garden this summer.

Miss Humphreys won her greatest achievement last year in the ingenue role in "Bye-Bye Bonnie," a piece starring Fritzi Scheff.

The Garden cast is now complete. The principal players are: Leon Errol, Vera Myers, Irving Fisher, Lillian Crosman, Dorothy Humphreys, Sarah Edwards, John Cherry, John Parks, Claude Archer and Joseph McCallan.

The final audition of applicants for the Garden's chorus was held last Thursday evening, and about 150 aspirants were seen and heard, and 60 selected.

Rehearsals for "Sally," the Garden's opening production, will begin about May 10 under the direction of Sinclair and William A. Parsons.

OVER 750 MOVIES ARE ON THEIR WAY

or architectural department. Floor maps of the ten stages on the Paramount lot are studied and the available floor space selected. Sequence four may be laid out first. Every scene in that sequence or section is filmed.

BY filming productions in sequences, every department of the studio benefits. The casting office knows exactly what players are needed in certain sequences, and consequently when someone is engaged for a picture, he is not forced to work a week then lay off three weeks before he starts again. The laboratories are given more time to work on the negatives, as the negative prints of a sequence are not required until that sequence has been completed. The cutters are given more opportunity to work on their positive prints, making the necessary trims.

About 25 scenes are filmed daily on every production under way.

Each camera magazine, the box that contains the unexposed film, is large enough to carry 200 feet of negative. As soon as these 200 feet have been exposed, the magazine is taken to the laboratories and developed.

The interior of a motion picture laboratory is a unique place, although it is somewhat similar to the dark rooms of any photographer.

Great vats of chemicals are all over the rooms, and the strips of film are fastened to a moving carrier. This carrier takes the film through the various stages of development and places it around huge drying drums where it remains until all chemicals and water are thoroughly dried off. Then it is wound on reels, put into the machine that prints the positive.

FROM the laboratories, the developed film goes to the head of the Paramount cutting department, James Wilkinson, who looks over the numbers and turns it over to the certain girl handling that picture.

The cutters are 12 in number, and each is responsible for one production. Every bit of film photographed in that production goes to her.

These film cutters are a clever band of women. It is their duty to eliminate all scenes marked "N. G.", and to take out those few frames of film that the cameras caught a moment before or after a scene was made.

As every production is filmed in sequence, the cutter has considerable time to get each section in good shape for previewing. When all of the sections have been photographed and cut, they are fastened together in proper order.

However, before the scenes are put into various sequences, the film is run off for the director and star. This preview is what is known as "seeing the rushes," the result of the work the day before. At this showing, the director indicates which of the "takes" are to be removed and which are to remain in the picture.

After this daily showing, the cutters remove the discarded strips of film from the reels, and insert the scenes where they belong, using the photographed numbers as their guide.

Complicated process, it seems, but it really isn't. It's just one detail in the making of a motion picture. There are a million released to the general public.

FOR the making of these pictures a strange gathering of humans, young and old—a group known in Hollywood as "the 6 o'clock mob," collects each morning outside of every studio casting office in Hollywood.

There are fat men, lean men, fat women, lean women; there are mothers with sons and daughters, large envelopes containing photographs under their arms; there is a smart cracking small-time vaudeville song and dance man with his wornout looking wife, handsome Americans, ugly Americans, foreigners of all sizes, types and shapes.

A girl drives up in a big limousine and steps out. She, too, joins the mob, after dismissing her chauffeur for three hours. She is a daughter of wealth, trying to break into pictures. They all have one mutual ambition—to attain fame on the silver sheet!

Six o'clock. And the casting office does not open until eight! The mob believes that the early bird catches the part. Furthermore, the mob also knows that but few persons are picked that way for motion pictures. They live in hopes, hopes that rules will be broken down some day or another.

Invariably, a beggar will wander into the midst of the throng and seek a dime. Invariably, he will leave with one or two pieces of coin, to try his luck on another studio.

The casting department of the studios open at 8 o'clock every morning, to discover the usual array of fame-hungry hopefuls waiting.

EVERY morning of the year—without an exception—the sign "No Work Today" has been placed in front of the gate. All extras are hired through a central bureau. The aspiring extra people pay no heed to the sign or the system.

In the old days in Hollywood—about five years ago—the mob at the gate had a chance. Then, it was "first come, first to work." It got to the stage where many would remain there all night long, just as some do to buy world's series tickets. It also meant near riots every day, when the casting boss would pick the same man to work two days in succession. The others would object, not realizing that it was types the caster wanted.

Those were the days before the Central Casting Offices were opened, a project sponsored by the studios working in connection with the Will Hays organization. Today, Central Casting does the work, and gives every reliable extra a chance. Central Casting has regulated the business and now casting is done with scientific care.

When studios want extras, they advise Central Casting the evening before, explaining the types and number of players needed. This organization goes over its lists. If "society types" are requested, they are to be found listed in certain files. These people receive telephone messages to report to such and such studio on the morrow, made up and ready for work at 8:30. Central Casting has it so arranged that the entire list is given a chance, the effort being to have the extras work three or four days a week.

EVERY person desiring extra work in Hollywood studios must be registered at Central. This is an essential part of the system. The Central Casting office investigates every case that comes to its attention—the stories of the would-be extras, who confess dire poverty; the stories of the flapper girls who say they need work, but whose fathers own five-acre estates in Beverly Hills or in Oshkosh.

Central Casting will register all worthy and likely applicants, but promises of work are never made. This office does not encourage registrations; instead, it discourages it emphatically.

One of the chief troubles encountered by a casting director, and particularly by the advisers at Central, is the problem of children. Fathers may want their sons to be presidents, but mothers seem to favor the movies.

According to figures just given out by Central, 2000 children's names are on the books in their Hollywood offices. The saturation point has been reached and passed.

To this figure may be compared the 4000 men and the 6000 women who are registered—a total of 12,000 souls with but a single thought—FAME!

of Marion Davies' current picture called for a studio cafe scene. It was not shot in the studio cafe which would have looked too much like any other cafe. It was shot on a specially built set, and the extras portraying a studio crowd at lunch were specially costumed to look like motion picture players at lunch. The real thing in the studio cafe a few yards away would not have photographed so convincingly.

For a similar reason directors prefer to hire their fight fans for a prize fight scene. The real enthusiasm of real fans would fade in the process of transferring it to the screen.

A King, in confidential moments will admit that his idea of a good time is to go for a street car ride. A presidential candidate sometimes is exposed by the news cameramen as a citizen of simple tastes who would rather pitch hay than drive a plow than go to the White House. But a screen celebrity likes nothing better than to play the humble part of an extra in someone else's picture—so long as it is just a lark, of course, and not a sudden change in screen status.

Charlie Murray and Ben Lyon were among the extras in the hotel lobby scene of Colleen Moore's recent picture, "Her Wild Oat" as Jack Pickford, brother of Mary, also walked through the lobby. Miss Pickford herself played a small role in "The Gaucho," starring her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, and recently Charlie Chaplin caused a wearing an overcoat and looking unimportant in the first scene of Norma Talmadge's new picture. Wilson Mizner, Broadway wit and playwright, relieved the monotony of a high-salaried screen writer's job by turning extra for a day and playing one of the miscellaneous gentlemen in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." And young Charles Rogers, who still is very new as a star, already has found time to amuse himself playing extra for Chester Conklin comedy.

Temperamental stars are blamed for many of the delays in motion picture production; but one does not have to be a star, or even temperamental, to cause a sudden halt in the filming of a picture. Three-year-old Jackie Coombs unintentionally stopped all activity on a comedy set the other day when someone noticed he was wearing a different pair of pants than the pair he had on when an earlier part of the same scene was photographed the previous day. Not a wheel turned until a search party hastily dispatched to the child's home returned an hour later with the 3-year-old's missing pants.

One can hardly speak of the "film colony" here without creating the false impression that tens of thousands of men and women are engaged in making motion pictures in and about Hollywood and that one congenial crowd, likely to be encountered en masse at any function. The colony actually consists of hundreds of almost hermetically sealed social groups, some large, some very small, with the members of one seldom mixing with the others. The recent formation of a new group offers an excellent illustration. It is the little crowd of beauty and personality contest winners brought here by Fox from Italy, Spain and Brazil: Maria Casajuana and Antonio Carmellas of Spain; Lia Tora and Olympio Guilherme of Brazil; Marcella Batteilni and Alberto Rabagliati of Italy were strangers to one another when they arrived, and at first had little to say among themselves. Similarity of language eventually drew them together, and now they cling together, a little non-English-speaking group, disposed to mix with any one, even in the same studio.

At Lambert

THE aircraft manufacturing center to be situated on the north side of Lambert-St. Louis Field, is already taking shape. The hangar of the Curtiss-Robertson Airplane Manufacuring Co., buildings are already up and the roofs will be completed this week. The group includes a main building, a large hangar, a power house and one or two smaller structures, all of buff brick.

To the west of the Curtiss-Robertson plant the steel work is already up for B. F. Mahoney Airplane Co. factory. A fine macadam road has been built from plants on Bridgeton Station road and a siding on the Wabash Railroad serves both factories.

Incidentally, the first of the new Curtiss-Robertson "Robins"—cabin monoplanes powered by OX-5's are now nearly ready for test flights. The company has put out its first booklet on the plane, a pamphlet got up after the style of the automobile maker's catalogue, with beauty of line, color and appointments stressed as much as performance, upon which airplane makers once concentrated all their efforts.

Old Clubhouse to Be Torn Down.

On the other side of the field the city has put in another rock road running from the south entrance past the hangars and offices and out to the north entrance. Workmen are already putting up the new $24,000 Von Hoffmann Aircraft Co. hangar. The old home of the Flying Club, a little used monument to the fact that the organization once had $2000 and wanted to spend it, is to be torn down to make room for the new developments at the field.

Flight to Paducah, Ky.

E. L. Sloniger, air mail pilot, flew to Paducah, Ky., Thursday in a Waco. He was accompanied by Art Heman in another Waco. They returned Friday.

New Head of Flying School.

Lieut C lifton C. Hutchison of the 25th Division Air Service, has resigned from the employ of the Elder Manufacturing Co. to become general manager of Robertson Flying Services, which means that he is head of the Robertson flying school. He replaces Brandy" Brandeweide, who goes to the staff of Curtiss-Robertson. Lieut Robertson will continue as chief pilot of Robertson Flying Services.

Student Flyers in Plenty.

The coming of spring has brought a fine turnout of flying students. At Hoffmann Aircraft Co. has constantly in the air or at work in the hangar classes, and Robertson Flying Services has a class of between 20 and 25 active members—so many in fact, that the small classroom in the mail hangar is overcrowded. Parks Air Lines also has a good-sized class at Parks Airport, on the East Side.

Jaunt to Middletown, Pa.

"Boots" Dempsey, pilot of Oscar Johnson's Whirlwind Travel-Air, returned last Sunday from an aerial jaunt to Middletown, Pa., on which he carried "Mack" Moss, a relative of Johnson, as his passenger. From Middletown, Moss Continued to New York by train, while Dempsey headed for home, stopping on the way to visit friends at Indianapolis.

Makes Forced Landing.

Capt. Harry Young, regular army instructor of the National Guard flying squadron, who recently received a Vought VE-9 for his own use, made his second cross-country hop in the plane last Wednesday. He intended to go to Chanute Field, but the oil pressure fell off radically on the way, and he made a forced landing in a pasture near Hillespie, Ill.

Looking for Another Engine.

Lieut. Orvil A. Anderson, skipper of the big semi-rigid airship TC-1, at Scott Field, flew to Young's rescue in a DH, bringing him a mechanic and following him back to Lambert Field to be on hand if he had to set the Vought down on the way. Young made it to the field with the pressure falling off again. His first cross-country also resulted in a forced landing, so that he is looking about for a new 180-horsepower Hispano to replace the present power plant in the ship.

Lindbergh's New Brougham.

"Slim" Lindbergh stopped off at Lambert field Tuesday in his new Ryan brougham after a cross-country hop from the Pacific Coast. The plane is a beautifully built job, with setting lights, parachute flares and a long range gas tank. Lindbergh had Harry Knight and Harold M. Bixby as his passengers. He left the field Wednesday, carrying William B. Robertson and Mary Pickford herself played a small bit in "The Gaucho," starring her husband, Douglas Fairbanks; and recently Charlie Chaplin earned $5 wearing an overcoat and looking unimportant in the first scene of Norma Talmadge's new picture. Wilson Mizner, Broadway wit and playwright, relieved the monotony of a high-salaried screen writing job by turning extra for a day and playing one of the miscellaneous gentlemen in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." And young Charles Rogers, who still is very new as a star, already has found time to amuse himself playing extra in a Chester Conklin comedy.

Temperamental stars are blamed for many of the delays in motion picture production; but one doesn't have to be a star, or even temperamental, to cause a sudden halt in the filming of a picture. Three-year-old Jackie Coombs unintentionally stopped all activity on a comedy set the other day when someone noticed he was wearing a different pair of pants from the pair he had on when an earlier part of the same scene was photographed the previous day. Not a wheel turned until a messenger hastily dispatched to the child's home returned an hour later with the 3-year-old's missing trousers.

One can hardly speak of the "film colony" here without creating the false impression that the thousands of men and women engaged in making motion pictures in and about Hollywood are just one congenial crowd, likely to be encountered en masse at almost any function. The colony really consists of hundreds of almost hermetically sealed social groups, some large, some very small, with the members of one seldom mixing with the others. The recent formation of a new group offers an excellent illustration. It is the little crowd of beauty and popularity contest winners brought here by Fox from Italy, Spain and Brazil. Maria Casajuana and Antonio Cumbellas of Spain; Lia Tora and Olympio Guilherme of Brazil, and Marcella Battelini and Alberto Rabagliati of Italy were strangers to one another when they arrived, and at first had little to say among themselves. Similarity of language eventually drew them together, and now they cling together, a little non-English-speaking group, little disposed to mix with any others, even in the same studio.

At Lambert Field

The aircraft manufacturing center to be situated on the north side of Lambert-St. Louis Field, is already taking shape. The plant of the Curtiss-Robertson Airplane Manufacuring Co., buildings are already up and the roofs will be completed this week. The group includes a main building, a large hangar, a power house and three or two smaller structures, all of buff brick.

To the west of the Curtiss-Robertson plant the steel work is already up for B. F. Mahoney Aircraft Co. factory. A fine macadam road has been built from plants to Bridgeton Station road and a siding on the Wabash Railroad serves both factories.

Incidentally, the first of the new Curtiss-Robertson "Robins"—cabin monoplanes powered by OX-5's are now nearly ready for test flights. The company has put out its first booklet on the plane, a pamphlet got up after the style of an automobile maker's catalogue, with beauty of line, color and appointments stressed as much as performance, upon which airplane makers once concentrated all their efforts.

Old Clubhouse to Be Torn Down.

On the other side of the field the city has put in another rock road running from the south entrance past the hangars and offices and out to the north entrance. Workmen are already putting up the new $24,000 Von Hoffmann Aircraft Co. hangar. The old home of the Flying Club, a little used monument to the fact that the organization once had $2000 and wanted to spend it, is to be torn down to make room for the new developments at the field.

Flight to Paducah, Ky.

E. L. Sleniger, air mail pilot, flew to Paducah, Ky., Thursday in a Waco. He was accompanied by Art Heman in another Waco. They returned Friday.

New Head of Flying School.

Lieut C lifton C. Hutchison of the 16th Division Air Service, has resigned from the employ of the Huff Manufacturing Co. to become general manager of Robertson Flying Services, which means that he is head of the Robertson flying school. He replaces "Brandy" Brandeweide, who goes on the staff of Curtiss-Robertson. Dan Robertson will continue as chief pilot of Robertson Flying Services.

Student Flyers in Plenty.

The coming of spring has brought a fine turnout of flying students. Von Hoffmann Aircraft Co. has a class constantly in the air or at work in the hangar classes, and Robertson Flying Services has a class of between 20 and 25 active members—so many in fact, that the small classroom in the mail hangar is overcrowded. Parks Air Lines also has a good-sized class at Parks Airport, on the East Side.

Jaunt to Middletown, Pa.

"Boots" Dempsey, pilot of Oscar Johnson's Whirlwind Travel-Air, returned last Sunday from an aerial jaunt to Middletown, Pa., on which he carried "Mack" Moss, a relative of Johnson, as his passenger. From Middletown, Moss Continued to New York by train, while Dempsey headed for home, stopping on the way to visit friends at Indianapolis.

Makes Forced Landing.

Capt. Harry Young, regular army instructor of the National Guard flying squadron, who recently received a Vought VE-9 for his own use, made his second cross-country hop in the plane last Wednesday. He intended to go to Chanute Field, but the oil pressure fell off critically on the way, and he made a forced landing in a pasture near Gillespie, Ill.

Looking for Another Engine.

Lieut. Orvil A. Anderson, skipper of the big semi-rigid airship TC-1, at Scott Field, flew to Lindy's rescue in a DH, bringing him a mechanic and following him back to Lambert Field to be on hand if he had to set the Vought down on the way. Young made it to the field with the pressure falling off again. His first cross-country also resulted in a forced landing, so that he is looking around for a new 180-horsepower Liberty to replace the present power plant in the ship.

Lindbergh's New Brougham.

"Slim" Lindbergh stopped off at Lambert Field Tuesday in his new Ryan brougham after a cross-country hop from the Pacific Coast. The plane is a beautifully built job, with setback landing lights, parachute flares and a long range gas tank. Lindbergh had Harry Knight and Harold M. Bixby as his passengers. He left the field Wednesday, carrying William B. Robertson and Preston Sultan. The party landed at Detroit, where it was joined by Phil Love, Lindbergh's old flying mate, now Sultan's partner in an airport consulting firm in St. Louis.

American Eagle Arrives.

The St. Louis Aircraft Co. got in its first American Eagle last week. It is a neatly put up OX-5 biplane manufactured in Kansas City. The company is St. Louis distributor for the ship.

Aircraft Sales.

Robertson Aircraft Corporation sold three Standards last week, two to Hallock-Jessup Flying Service of Monroe, N. Y., and the third to Charles Daly and Shepard Maginn of 5937 Julian avenue. The Hallock-Jessup concern will ferry its ships to New York.

The Robertson firm also sold 14 OX-5's during the week to the Travel-Air Co. at Wichita, Kan. The motors, apparently the last available of the model, were purchased from A. D. C. Aircraft Ltd., of London, and were shipped from England, where they were sent during the war. They are in the original crates.

Phil Ball Goes to Detroit.

Lieut. Frank T. Dunn of the National Guard Squadron flew to Detroit last week with Phil DeC. Ball, owner of the Browns, in Ball's new Ryan brougham to attend the Detroit aircraft show. Dunn returned Friday. Milton Girton, of Von Hoffmann Aircraft Co., landed a few minutes behind him after a trip from Milwaukee, where he had flown in a Ryan Wednesday with Bernard Von Hoffmann as his passenger.

Is It a Cold?

"Last winter I contracted a severe cold which affected me terribly, and it seemed that I could not get rid of it. Finally I decided to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I had an idea it would relieve me if anything would, and so it did. I took three bottles and was relieved of all the affects of my very bad cold. I thing the 'Discovery' is a wonderful tonic for anybody in a debilitated condition of health."—Mrs. M. E. Stilliam, 2417 Dodge St., Omaha, Nebr.

Masonic Group to Give Revue.

The University Temple Association, comprising six Masonic orders of University City, will present the "University Review," a musical comedy with a cast of St. Louis amateurs, the week of May 14, at Shubert-Rialto Theater. Proceeds will be turned into the building fund of the University Masonic Temple, recently completed at a cost of approximately $250,000, at Delmar boulevard and Trinity avenue, University City.

County Parley on Annexation.

Annexation by St. Louis of the county through a statewide vote, the building of the county's $1,000,000 hospital, creation of sewer districts, the $75,000,000 State road bond issue and the $10,000,000 county road bond issue are problems which will come before a membership meeting of the County Chamber of Commerce to be held within two weeks. Concerning highway arteries into St. Louis, it is said many county residents think additional roads into the city should be built, rather than widening the present roads.

Oldest Teacher in Britain Dies.

By the Associated Press.

WHITTON, Wales April 21— David Rees Davies, the oldest working schoolmaster in the British Isles, has died here at the age of 92. He had been headmaster of Whitton School for 49 years and taught until with five days of his death.

Facing the Music

THE combined Morning Choral and Apollo Clubs are making plans for next season following their first point appearance last Tuesday night at the Odeon. This concert was taken as a mere suggestion of what these two organizations may accomplish together once they had had an opportunity to train the combined chorus over a long period.

The Tuesday concert indicated that while the two organizations are not yet properly welded they have great possibilities. It was considered particularly encouraging that they should have attempted such a magnificent work as Gustave Holst's "To the Unknown God" which, though not sung with all the finish and balance that might have been desired was nevertheless revealed as a highly original essay in religious mysticism.

Walter Mills was the soloist of the occasion.

The Musical Research will hold its annual New Members Day program at the Town Club, on Tuesday at 2 p. m. The new members will have charge of the program, which will be as follows:

Piano—Second Hungarian Rhapsody..Liszt
Edith Gordon
Contralto solo—Don Carlo, from the Opera Don Carlo.
Mother of Mine.....Smith
Wenona Rives
Accompanist, Mrs. J. L. Bowling.
Harp solo—Song Without Words No. 2.....Dubes
Medley of Songs.....Mary Taffina Biby
Vocal duet—Hark to the Mandolin..Parker
Lulla by.....Brahms
Mrs. Harry J. Symon, Mrs. Adrienne Lawson
Accompanist, Mrs. J. L. Bowling.
Violin solo—Spanish Dance.....Sarasate
Marie Golub
Accompanist, Dorothy Davidson.
Piano—Concert Etude.....Constantine Bemberz
Dorothy Davidson.

The closing program of the 1928 season of the Morning Etude Music Club will be given Wednesday at 10:15 a. m. at the Missouri Hotel Auditorium. Dr. P. B. Eversden will be the guest speaker of the occasion.

The program for the day follows:

Piano—Polonaise, No. 2.....Franz Liszt
Miss Dolores Klute.
Voice—
Ich Liebe Dich.....E. Grieg
Lieti Signor.....Meyerbeer
Mrs. Mabel Pearce Meisenbach.
Miss Beatrice Kretzer at the piano.
Piano—
Prelude.....Liadow
Melodie.....Rachmaninoff
Humoresque.....Tschaikowski
Miss Cora Robinson.
Voice—
Before the Crucifix.....La Forge
A Brown Bird Singing.....Haydn Wood
Mrs. Armin Priesterer.
Miss Kretzer at the piano.
Piano—Overture from Martiana—
William Vincent Wallace
Mrs. Oma Prescott.
Piano Duo—Valse.....Anton Arensky
Miss Margaret Strassberger and Mrs. B. C. Strassberger.

A sophomore recital will be given at Lindenwood College, in Roemer Auditorium, Tuesday afternoon by Miss Frances Wachter, president of Joplin, Mo., and Miss Dorothy Gartner, soprano, of Chillicothe, O.

The closing noonday organ recitals of the season will be given this week on Wednesday and Friday at 12:30 in Christ Church Cathedral by Daniel Philippi. Recitals will be resumed in November by Philippi. The Wednesday noon program includes Rheinberger's Pastorale Sonato, Scherzo by Macfarlane and the Liszt Symphonic Poem, "Les Preludes." On Friday Philippi will play Wagner, Schumann, Handel, Dupre and Widor numbers.

The Knights of Columbus Choral Club will give the spring concert of their twenty-fourth season on Friday evening at the St. Louis University Auditorium. On this occasion the club will sponsor an innovation, by presenting the senior boy sopranos of the New Cathedral choir.

This boy choir will sing in concerted numbers with the Choral Club some of the great masterpieces of religious music. This will be the first time that these boy sopranos will be heard away from the Cathedral.

George E. Muskens, operatic tenor, will offer several selections in both the sacred and the secular parts of the program.

The numbers in detail, selected by Prof. William Theo. Diebels, director of the club, will be presented in the following program:

Hymn to the Pope (in five parts)—
William Theo. Diebels
Alleluiah Chorus (Messiah).....Haendel
Boy sopranos and Choral Club.
Hosannah!.....Julius Granier
Mr. Muskens.
Sanctus, Benedictus (Messe Solennelle).....Charles Gounod
Ye Sons and Daughters of the Lord (traditional French hymn).
Boy sopranos and Choral Club.
Goin' Home (New World Symphony).....Dvorak
Choral Club.
Elucevan le Stelle (Tosca).....Puccini
M'appari (Martha).....Flotow
After Long Absence.....Sanderson
Mr. Muskens.
Believe Me, if All Those Endearing Young Charms.....Moore
March of the Guard.....Geibel
Choral Club.

The Masque of Pandora, a musical setting of Longfellow's poem by Mrs. Rosalie Balmer Smith Cale, will be given by the music section of the Scottish Rite Woman's Club at the Scottish Rite Cathedral, Thursday evening under the direction of Wade Fallert. The club will be assisted by Anna Beckmann, coloratura soprano and J. Glenn Lee, tenor.

Miss Marie Gebken will take a leading role in the operetta "The Sleeping Beauty" to be given April 24 and 26 at the Parish Hall of St. Francis de Sales Church, 2640 Iowa avenue, by the Young Ladies Sodality of that Parish. The operetta is under the direction of Miss Paula Hoegen, teacher of Dramatic Art, and Miss Ella Range who is conducting the musical scores. Miss Gebken has appeared for several seasons with the Municipal Opera Company.

30 GERMAN EDUCATORS PLAN TO VISIT ST. LOUIS IN MAY

Party Making Tour of Country to Be Welcomed by Chamber of Commerce.

A party of 30 German educators, headed by Dr. Franz Hilker, head of the Central Institute of Berlin, will visit St. Louis May 15 and 16 on a tour of the country to study educational methods.

The tour is under the auspices of the Central Institute and the International Institute of Teachers' College of Columbia University. The party will be accompanied by Dr. Milton C. D. Del Manzo and Dr. Thomas Alexander of the International Institute.

In St. Louis the reception of the party is to be handled by the Chamber of Commerce. Visits to the two universities and other educational institutions and a dinner are planned for the visitors.

WON'T GO TO SEE HIS OWN PLAYS

Eden Phillpotts Develops a Charles Dickens Complex.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 21.—The announcement of Eden Philpotts that he had never seen one of his own plays and furthermore that he never would has prompted curiosity as to whether he fears the same experience which Charles Dickens suffered when he saw the dramatization of "Oliver Twist."

The night Dickens went to see "Oliver Twist" he sat in a box with friends, but before the end of the first act he was so horrified by the performance and the manner in which his own words came back to him over the footlights that he sat on the floor, so that he could not see the stage and the audience could not see him and there he remained until the final curtain.

Two of the greatest successes of recent years have been Phillpotts' "The Farmer's Wife," and "Yellow Sands," but he was never even in the theater district while those plays were on. "The Farmers Wife" ran nearly three years and "Yellow Sands" more than a year.

NEW YORK DONE IN MINIATURE

Model Two Yards Long Attracts Attention in Berlin.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 21.—A model of New York, two yards long and more than a yard wide, is proving one of the greatest attractions to window shoppers walking along Unter den Linden.

The Hamburg-America Line commissioned a Hamburg engineer, Herr Niess, to construct this miniature reproduction of the largest city in the new world. He has succeeded so well that anyone familiar with New York can immediately spot the Flatiron or Woolworth Buildings, the City Hall, Times Square, Columbia University, Central Park or any other landmark. That the model is proving an eyeopener to Germans is attested by the comment one hears of, then gazers. The size of the skyscrapers, the regularity and straightness of the streets, the wide expanse of New York harbor—all cause ejaculations of surprise. And everybody looks for the Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island.

The MARTIN JOHNSON AFRICAN EXPEDITION Corporation presents
Mr. and Mrs MARTIN JOHNSON in the picture the whole world is waiting to see.....

"SIMBA"
THE LION WAR OF A LUMBWA TRIBE....
A drama of desperate realities, picturing indisputably wild beasts of Jungle and Veldt, and the wild savages of Africa in the lives they live and the deaths they die....
Naked men against tooth and claw!
'SIMBA' portrays incidently the adventures of the famous MARTIN JOHNSONS and his intrepidly courageous wife OSA on the SAFARIS by which they recorded this amazing story.
The story itself is NOT A STAGED OR MOVIE PRODUCTION, it is AFRICA as NATURE MADE IT. The Johnson's cameras take you there. In Fool alongside and into the thick of it. The high excitement of a river crossing amid hundreds of hungry crocodiles, encounters with giant rhinoceros, and fighting the ever attacking hippopotamus and the greatest natural scene it was ever priveleged a human eye and camera to record—The scene of

MUNICIPAL OPERA
SEAT INSURANCE AT NO EXTRA COST

Perhaps you waited in line often at the Municipal Opera ticket office, only to find that all of the choice seats were sold . . . or maybe there weren't any seats at all for the operas you wanted to see . . . and you were disappointed because "Rose Marie," "The Song of the Flame," "The Merry Widow" or some other popular piece was being played . . . it was provoking, wasn't it? . . . Well, now, all of the operas in this Summer's tenth anniversary repertory are "Rose Maries" . . . Look them over . . . "Princess Flavia," "The Merry Widow," "The Vagabond King," "No, No, Nanette," "Rose Marie," "The Student Prince," "The Lady in Ermine," "The Song of the Flame," "Countess Maritza," "The Love Song," "Mary," "Aida" . . . that's the order in which they will be produced for twelve consecutive weeks, beginning Monday night, June 4th . . . with a great jubilee all-star cast . . . a mighty chorus of 96 . . . a symphony orchestra of 50 . . . elaborate scenic settings . . . magnificent costumes . . . and we know that once the season gets under way tickets are going to be at a premium . . . so we have arranged to furnish you with SEAT INSURANCE AT NO EXTRA COST.

Just visit the offices of the Municipal Theater Association, 1882 Arcade Building . . . glance at the seat charts . . . pick out the locations you want . . . 3000 seats at $3.00 for the 12 operas . . . others $6, $12, $18 and $24 . . . sign a season reservation blank . . . in a short while you will have tickets in your possession for the whole season . . . you won't have to wait in line each week . . . you'll be sure of seeing all the big musical hits of recent years . . . and it doesn't cost one penny extra . . . but it does save a lot of time and patience . . . just another Municipal Opera service . . . thank you.

ANCIENT FUNERAL BOAT MODEL AT MUSEUM

Carving From Egyptian Tomb on Display Not Strictly a Work of Art.

A new accession of the City Art Museum on view today is a model of an ancient Egyptian funeral boat of unusual interest and size. It comes from a tomb of Assiour in Upper Egypt and dates from about 3000 B. C.

Boats of this type, together with models of houses, granaries and other objects were placed in the tomb for the use of the deceased in the next world, the Egyptians believing that they would be magically transformed into the real article. Because of the unusual size of this specimen, which is nearly five and one-half feet long, it is thought to have been a portion of the tomb furniture of a person of high rank. It is of wood, painted red, black and white. While it is a carving, it is rather an object of religious and cultural significance than a work of art. Wooden figures of 22 rowers squat along the gunwales to propel the craft. The arms, pivoted at the shoulders are extended in the act of rowing. Underneath an awning supported by four lotus pillars, sits a person of quality. On the high, slender prow and stern are other members of the crew. In all there are 30 figures in the boat.

These boats were a significant feature of the ancient Egyptians' belief in the hereafter and were closely associated with the widespread religious idea of the "Boat of Millions of Years" in which the Sun God was thought to carry with him the souls of the beatified as he daily journeyed across the underworld. The specific purpose of such models as the one acquired by the Museum, however, was to provide the soul of the deceased with a means of traveling on the rivers of the underworld. They were replicas of the boats which the living used upon the Nile, types of which have survived to the present day.

The boat was considered so essential to the well being of the soul or "double" in the hereafter that several chapters were devoted to the subject in the Book of the Dead, placed in the sepulchre for the guidance of the deceased.

Spring Flowers and Smilax Decorate Home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Bailey—The Rev Dr. William C. Bitting Performs Ceremony.

COLORFUL spring flowers, combined with waxy green smilax, characterized the simple home wedding at noon yesterday of Miss Carolyn Stewart Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Bailey of 4556 West Pine boulevard, and Arthur Frederick Miller of New York. Tall candles lighted the dining room, aiding the April sunlight in its endeavor to shed a glow on a bower of the blossoms arranged in a recessed window, where the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. William C. Bitting, former pastor of the Second Baptist Church.

The bridal party descended the garlanded stairway and passed through an aisle of smilax held by eight young women friends of the bride in flowered chiffon frocks. The surrounding guests were limited to close friends and relatives and a number of out-of-town visitors, including Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Miller of New York, parents of the bridegroom.

Preceding the bride was her youthful cousin, Miss Carolyn Stewart Morrison, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles S. Morrison of Colorado Springs, in a pale pink ruffled organdy frock, carrying an old-fashioned round bouquet of spring flowers, as maid of honor. William Keeney Bixby II, 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Foster Bixby, in a white linen Oliver Twist suit, carried the wedding band on a white satin cushion. Kenneth Potter of the Diplomatic Service in Washington, a classmate of Mr. Miller at Yale, was best man.

The bride was gowned in white satin, made simply on rather straight lines, with a yoke and long sleeves of duchess lace and a somewhat full skirt, made quite long and sweeping with a graceful demitrain in the back. The new waistline was finished with a satin girdle fastened in front with a chaplet of orange blossoms, and the uneven hem was slashed in scallops and lined with chiffon. An old family scarf of princess lace depended from her shoulders into a court train, and the full tulle bridal veil was held in place by a cap of tulle ornamented with orange blossoms. She carried lilies of the valley.

Following the ceremony a reception was

County Carnival To Be Held at Home Of Samuel Fordyce

Garden of Kinloch Estate Lent for Annual Charity Hospital Benefit.

THE beautiful gardens surrounding the country place of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Fordyce of Kinloch, Mo., have been lent by Mr. and Mrs. Fordyce for the third annual country carnival for the benefit of the St. Louis University Charity Hospital on Decoration Day, May 30.

As a final gesture before departing for their summer homes, trips abroad or to the seashore members of St. Louis society will devote much of their time in the coming month in perfecting plans for the carnival. Mr. August A. Busch will be honorary chairman and Mrs. James M. Franciscus general chairman. The directors for the garden party are Mrs. Fordyce, Mrs. William J. Polk, Mrs. George S. Tiffany, Mrs. Edward Walsh Jr., Mrs. William Maffitt, Mrs. Joseph Falk and Mrs. J. D. Perry Francis.

The dancing pavilion will be arranged under the great chestnut trees of the Fordyce estate. A brass band will go stationed in the center of a circle of gaily decorated booths. The guests will be directed and served by a group of young society girls, who will wear attractive head-dress. Supper will be served on the lawn and included in the menu will be creole chicken gumbo which will be prepared from a prized recipe handed down from the early days in St. Louis. A side show with a barker to exploit its features will be part of the entertainment.

Weddings and Engagements

An interesting April wedding took place Tuesday morning at 11:15 o'clock, when Miss Mary Dee, daughter of Michael Joseph Dee of 6327 Cates avenue, became the bride of William Harrison Hammond of the Forest Park Hammond, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Hammond of Chicago. The ceremony was read by the Rev. Father M. J. Connors, pastor of St. Richard's Church, at the Dee home in the presence of relatives and friends.

The bride, who was attended by Miss Ruth Rothschild, was gowned in beige silk lace with which she wore a picture hat of hair braid to match. She carried a bonquet of roses and valley lilies. Miss Rothschild wore a gown of sand color and carried pink roses. Ralph Hammond served as best man for Mr. Hammond. The bridal party stood in the sun parlor before an improvised altar of palms and pink tulle. A wedding breakfast was served immediately after the ceremony. Mr. Hammond and his bride are spending their honeymoon in the South and upon their return will take possession of their apartment in the Embassy. Woman Court Referee to Give Talk on Girls

The tenth annual meeting and luncheon of the Board of Religious Organizations will be held at Hotel Chase tomorrow afternoon at 12:30 o'clock. Mrs. Gilbera H. Fox, president of the board, will preside. The speaker for the day will be Dr. Eleanor Rowland Wembridge, Ph. D., Referee of the Juvenile Court in Cleveland, O. Dr. Wembridge will speak on "Girls: What We Expect of Them, and They of Us."

Dr. Wembridge was psychology professor of two colleges, Mount Holyoke and Reed, the latter a coeducational college in Oregon. During the war, he did personnel work in Washington, employing aids for hospitals. Before becoming Court Referee, she was examining psychologist with the Women's Protective Association in Cleveland. This organization handles the girl problem in Cleveland as does the Girls' Protective Association and Big Sister Organization of St. Louis.

Within the last five years, Dr. Wembridge has written many articles dealing with her work with girls, some of which have been collected in a book, "Other People's Daughters." Several later articles have appeared in the Survey in 1927 and 1928, "Daniel and the Lions," "Wanted, a Word," "Psychology for Lowbrows" and "Mother's Day." Those in the American Mercury within the last year are "Dwellers in Neurotica," "Morals Among the Unmoral."

ADAPTO SHOES
for Women who are not slender

New Spring Models $10 to $15.50

SPRING can mean your liberation from the dowdiness of "frumpy" footwear—as well as from the icy grip of Winter... For you do not have to wear ugly shoes in order to get the foot-comfort you must have.

Consider the smart lines of ADAPTO SHOES! They have the very feeling of Spring. Dainty . . . graceful . . . modish.

And—the minute you try them on you'll know that here is a shoe made to walk in, as well as to look at! The "combination last" of Adaptos provides restful, high-arch support and snug, narrow-heel fitting.

Big cash prizes for the best letters in FERRY'S SEEDS

$5000.00 Contest

℄ $2000 in cash prizes for grown-ups
℄ $2000 in cash prizes for boys and girls
℄ $1000 in cash prizes for Ferry's Seed dealers

℄ Send for our Annual

You men and women, you boys and girls—just a letter on "Why I Plant a Garden" will give you chances at 183 cash prizes. The first prize for grown-ups is $500; the next $200; the third $100; then eight $50 prizes; twenty $25 prizes; and thirty $10 prizes . . . 61 prizes for those over sixteen!

And for boys and girls, those sixteen and under, there are 105 cash prizes. The first prize is $500; the next prize $200; the third prize $100; then four $50 prizes; eight $25 prizes; twenty $15 prizes; thirty $10 prizes; and forty $5 prizes.

Note that men and women, and boys and girls write on the same subject, "Why I Plant a Garden." But the two contests are not to be confused. Boys and girls compete only with each other. Men and women compete only with themselves. The two sets of letters will be judged separately.

Those letters judged "best" will win prizes. "Best" means ideas only. Spelling, fine writing, don't count. None of the composition rules count—just the real ways for planting your garden. Perhaps you plant yours for the fresh garden foods; or for the finer health from working with growing things; or for the flowers for your table; or to beautify the home place. Your neighbor may plant hers for the pin money from selling the fresh vegetables. You write us your reasons; and have your neighbor write us hers. Read the rules; then mail your letter by May fifteenth, sure.

Ferry's Seed dealers, you share in this contest too. There are $1000 in cash prizes for the 17 best letters from dealers on "How I Promote the Sale of Ferry's Seeds." The first prize for Ferry dealers is $300; the second $150; the third $100; then four $50 prizes; and ten $25 prizes. "Best" here means those letters most helpful to other dealers in selling Ferry's Seeds. Spelling and clever wording don't count here, either—just ideas; just the experiences you have had with the Ferry display boxes, the beautiful lithographed Ferry display packets, the attractive posters in your store window. Where do you display the Ferry box for maximum sales—on the right side of the store near the front? Read the rules—and you, too, get started.

RULES

1. All letters (except those from Ferry's Seed dealers) must be on the subject "Why I Plant a Garden."

2. Ferry's Seed dealers must write on the subject "How I Promote the Sale of Ferry's Seeds."

Have You a Clear Young Skin?

It is simple to make your complexion beautiful and keep it so by the regular use of pure mercolized wax. Procure an ounce from your druggist and use as directed. It will quickly but gently peel off all the grimy, withered or blemished skin with such defects as freckles, pimples, blackheads and excessive oiliness. The new skin then revealed, is smooth, fresh, firm and lovely and the face is younger and more attractive looking. Mercolized wax brings out the hidden beauty. To quickly remove wrinkles and other age lines, use at face lotion 1 ounce powdered saxolite and 1 half pint witch hazel.

Careless Washing Spoils Children's Hair

Any child can have beautiful hair—healthy and luxuriant. It is simply a matter of shampooing.

Proper shampooing makes the hair soft and silky. It brings out all the real life and lustre, all the natural wave and color, and leaves it fresh looking, glossy and bright.

While children's hair must have frequent and regular washing to keep it beautiful, fine young hair and tender scalps cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soaps. The free alkali in ordinary soaps soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

That is why thoughtful mothers everywhere, now use Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo. This clear, pure and entirely greasless product brings out all the real beauty of the hair and cannot possibly injure.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather which cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust and dirt.

It leaves the hair soft and easy to manage and makes it fairly sparkle with new life, gloss and lustre.

You can get Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo at any drug store.

A four-ounce bottle lasts for months.

Corns Lift Off

Hard corns, soft corns, corns between the toes and callouses lift right off! You'll laugh—it is so easy and doesn't hurt a bit!

Just drop "Freezone" on any tender, touchy corn. Instantly it stops aching; then shortly you just lift that old bothersome corn right off with your fingers. It works like a charm, every time. Seems magic!

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs only a few cents at any drug store—Try it!

Headaches

Don't "give in" to a headache as something that must be endured. Nor suffer the pains too many women accept as their "natural lot." Or any pain for which a tablet of Bayer Aspirin is an absolute antidote!

When you have an ache or pain, your first thought should be of Bayer Aspirin. Because it's sure-fire; it does stop pain—in a hurry. Because it's safe. Bayer Aspirin does not affect the heart. Every druggist has the real Bayer, with proven directions in each box.

THE writer of the following article ington," a biography, and several interest, because the 106th anniversa Grant falls on next Friday.

THE most difficult piece of work I have ever done has been the writing of Gen. Grant's life. Before I had got very far along with it I had to get the conventional picture of Grant out of my mind. This was quite a job in itself, for I had the conception of Grant that has been current for 50 years. It was too hard and compact to be sponged away gently, as one wipes writing off a slate. It could be removed only by a series of mental blasting operations.

I have no objection to conventional notions, and I would have written of Grant as the average man knows him if what the average man knows had been anywhere close to the truth. But it isn't, and I did not find that out until I had already done considerable work on the enterprise of producing his biography. Gradually, and by degrees, as I began to know him better and better, I realized that the traditional idea of his personality was false and hollow; that he was an entirely different sort of man from what he is commonly supposed to have been. So I threw away what I had written and started to reconstruct his portrait from head to foot.

Of Contradictory Qualities.

The key to his character cannot be given in a word, or a sentence, for he was an extremely intricate and complicated person, saturated with contradictory qualities. He had mysterious, unspoken opinions and ambitions which were never fully revealed. Now and then we catch faint glimpses of them, like a foggy landscape seen through a crack in a wall. He did not in the least resemble Washington, whose life and ideas fit precisely into a simple pattern. Nor Jefferson, who was composed entirely of liberalism surrounded by logic. Nor Lincoln, an indecisive, vacillating half-mystic, who was much more profound and subtle than Grant, but who is nevertheless easy to comprehend after one finds the motivation of his subtlety.

Grant said, "Let us have peace," and these words are cut in stone over the entrance of his gigantic tomb. They symbolize the deeper feelings of his soul more luminously than anything else he ever said. He was at heart a pacifist. He hated war; he hated armies; he detested everything connected with soldiers. Curious, isn't it?

He did not have even one professional soldier on his staff until late in the Civil War. His best friend and chief of staff was John A. Rawlins, an Illinois lawyer, who could not have drilled a company of soldiers to save his life.

An Instinctive Pacifist.

Some striking instances of his instinctive pacifism occurred during his tour around the world after he had served his two terms as President. The Crown Prince of Germany invited him to attend a military review. Grant accepted the invitation out of politeness, but was bored. In commenting on the review, he said to Bismarck:

Grant Was a Failure Except As a Soldier and He Despised Profession of Arms Sincerely

Unusual Picture of Him as Pacifist Painted by William Woodward on Eve of 106th Anniversary of General's Birth.

By William E. Woodward.

NEW YORK, April 21.

THE writer of the following article is the author of "George Washington," a biography, and several novels. The article is of timely interest, because the 106th anniversary of the birth of Gen. U. S. Grant falls on next Friday.

THE most difficult piece of work I have ever done has been the writing of Gen. Grant's life. Before I had got very far along with it I had to get the conventional picture of Grant out of my mind. This was quite a job in itself, for I had the conception of Grant that has been current for 50 years. It was too hard and compact to be sponged away gently, as one wipes writing off a slate. It could be removed only by a series of mental blasting operations.

I have no objection to conventional notions, and I would have written of Grant as the average man knows him if what the average man knows had been anywhere close to the truth. But it isn't, and I did not find that out until I had already done considerable work on the enterprise of producing his biography. Gradually, and by degrees, as I began to know him better and better, I realized that the traditional idea of his personality was false and hollow; that he was an entirely different sort of man from what he is commonly supposed to have been. So I threw away what I had written and started to reconstruct his portrait from head to foot.

Of Contradictory Qualities.

The key to his character cannot be given in a word, or a sentence, for he was an extremely intricate and complicated person, saturated with contradictory qualities. He had mysterious, unspoken opinions and ambitions which were never fully revealed. Now and then we catch faint glimpses of them, like a foggy landscape seen through a crack in a wall. He did not in the least resemble Washington, whose life and ideas fit precisely into a simple pattern. Nor Jefferson, who was composed entirely of liberalism surrounded by logic. Nor Lincoln, an indecisive, vacillating half-mystic, who was much more profound and subtle than Grant, but who is nevertheless easy to comprehend after one finds the motivation of his subtlety.

Grant said, "Let us have peace," and these words are cut in stone over the entrance of his gigantic tomb. They symbolize the deepest feelings of his soul more luminously than anything else he ever said. He was at heart a pacifist. He hated war; he hated armies; he detested everything connected with soldiers. Curious, isn't it?

He did not have even one professional soldier on his staff until late in the Civil War. His best friend and chief of staff was John A. Rawlins, an Illinois lawyer, who could not have drilled a company of soldiers to save his life.

An Instinctive Pacifist.

Some striking instances of his instinctive pacifism occurred during his tour around the world after he had served his two terms as President. The Crown Prince of Germany invited him to attend a military review. Grant accepted the invitation out of politeness, but was bored. In commenting on the review, he said to Bismarck:

"The truth is I am more of a farmer than a soldier. I take little or no interest in military affairs, and, although I entered the army 35 years ago and have been in two wars, in Mexico as a young lieutenant, and later, I never went into the army without regret and never retired without pleasure."

At Versailles the French Government conducted him, with an escort, as a distinguished guest to the famous gallery of war paintings in the palace. "I tried to enjoy the pictures," he said, "but found them only disgusting.... I never saw a war picture that was pleasant," he added.

Right after the Civil War, when Grant was the outstanding National hero, the American Nation began to pile its gifts upon him. Philadelphia and Washington each gave him a house and Boston decided to give him a library —5000 volumes, all carefully selected by the literary Brahmins. It was to be a surprise, so the donors sent a spy slipping around to find out what books and war campaigns the great General already had, as they did not want to duplicate them. They learned, to their surprise, that he did not own a single military treatise. Adam Badeau, his military secretary—formerly a newspaper man —who knew him probably better than any one else, said that he never read a book on the science of war.

His military career is a strange phenomenon. He never was a soldier within the meaning that frames itself in our minds when we think of Napoleon, or Lee, or Von Moltke, or Jackson. These men were military by instinct. They loved the art of war, and studied it with the absorbing care that a mathematician gives to the study of Einstein. They looked upon a military campaign as a problem in strategy; but to Grant a campaign was simply a matter of common sense.

How He Won Battles.

In the distillation of his mind all complicated military problems became simple. He possessed the rare faculty of disregarding inessentials, of reducing everything to the plainest, matter-of-fact geometrical designs. His success as a General was due to just that. Other Union Generals thought of capturing strategic points, of occupying this place or that. Grant cared very little about places; he knew the war could be won only by beating the Confederate Armies, and they were his objective.

At Georgetown, O., where he lived as a boy, he was considered the village numskull. The local wits pretended not to be able to pronounce his strange name of Ulysses, and he was called "Useless" Grant. His father, a close-fisted and irascible person, wanted everything he could get free, so he managed to procure an appointment to the Military Academy at West Point for his son. Ulysses did not want to go; his ambition was to be either a farmer or a teacher. He says in his "Memoirs" that he hoped the train would run off the track on the way to West Point and disable him slightly so the appointment would go to some one else.

At the military academy his standing was below the average in studies—and far below the average in conduct. A negligent, lazy cadet—a ploughboy turned all of a sudden into a student. The four years at West Point were the most miserable that he ever spent in his life, he wrote 40 years later. He never met any of the pretty girls who came to the academy dances; he had no social tact; he couldn't dance, and did not want to learn. During his entire term at the academy he was never once invited to a private house.

Played "Desdemona" Once.

He never met any of the pretty girls, yet there was a broad streak of femininity in his personality. I know this sounds absurd; we are accustomed to think of him as

CHEMICAL INDUSTRY IN U. S. GROWS AMAZINGLY IN 10 YEARS

Research Workers at Congress Here Point to Development of Dye Making, Local Anesthetics and the Production of Helium Gas.

Silk From Sawdust, Varnish From Oats, Chromium Steel, Coal Tar Medicines and Flavors Now Made; New Metal Found.

By Thomas Dawson.
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

AMERICAN chemistry, come of age within 10 years, now is a grown-up war baby. The infant of puny proportions in 1918, when it was called upon to do impossible labors, has broad shoulders that carry the yoke of a hundred new industries today.

American dyes. American medicines from coal-tar products. American nitrates for fertilizer. Helium gas for airships. Ethyl gasoline for motorcars. Silk made out of sawdust. Synthetic sausages. Chromium steel that defies corrosion. Fountain pens wrought out of skimmed milk. Varnishes from rolled oats.

These are among the postwar achievements of the child that gazed bewildered from a war cradle 10 years ago. There are a myriad of others, less dramatic perhaps, but equally important to the continued expansion of American industry.

World of Experimentation.

The chemical world represented by the 1200 chemists from all parts of the country who attended their annual congress here last week is one of daring experimentation. In hundreds of laboratories research men shake test-tubes, turn on high pressures and run temperatures down to a point where air is liquidified, in order to force Nature, niggardly in certain respects, to yield new treasures.

Ten years ago there weren't enough laboratories in this country to go round. Chemists knew how to make nitrates but the plants couldn't be got into operation. While Germany was reaching a synthetic hand into the atmosphere and bringing it down laden with nitrates for explosives and fertilizers, the United States was importing boatload after boatload from Chile. That is changed now. We, too, now force the air to give up its nitrogen.

We were starved in 1918 for dyes, coal tar derivities, important medicines—all laboratory products. The American public then for the first time realized the importance of the chemist—the man they had always confused, more or less, with the fellow who stood back of the drug store counter and mixed up headache powders.

Heart-Breaking Task.

Chemists who met for conference in 1918 faced a heart-breaking task. They were asked to organize, overnight, a chemical industry which, in other countries had taken half a century to get under way. Naturally they didn't succeed overnight. But they laid a firm foundation. The harvest is being reaped today.

Outstanding research men, who left industrial or university laboratories to attend the convention here, talked glowingly of new work done with paints and lacquers, synthetic foods, and resins built up in the laboratory to take the place of hard rubber. Full in the swing of a new scientific day, where any chemist who has an adaptable industrial process can get a job and a laboratory to work in, many of them yet find American business men reluctant to underwrite that pure, scientific research that must precede applied scientific research. Many among the chemists also recalled, to a Post-Dispatch reporter, the lean chemical days before the World War, when American business found foreign-made chemical products so much to its liking that it allowed the American chemical field to languish.

U. S. Was "Up Against It."

"Frankly, we were up against it chemically in 1918," said Dr. Harrison E. Howe, research chemist and editor of "Industrial and Engineering Chemistry."

"We couldn't get the chemicals we wanted. The German chemicals we had always depended on were denied us. Only the Germans knew how to make good dyes. The British needed all the chemicals they could produce for their own consumption. We had no dyes. We were lacking in important medicines. Our industries had consistently bought chemical products from European factories for years and we had no organized chemical army to meet the sudden demand. The laboratories, besides, were woefully inadequate.

"Now we're making up for lost time. I think I may truthfully say that we've caught up with European chemistry. We are making 94 to 96 per cent of our dyes today and supplying besides a fair portion of the dyes used elsewhere in the world. Why, ten years ago we were actually unable to produce a dye here that would retain its color in the washtub, and when doctors asked us for veronal we had to tell them to get it from abroad if they could.

"Once we got the coal tar dye and by-products industries started, however, they showed a mushroom growth. Ten years ago we made perhaps 3 per cent of our dyes. And these weren't particularly good. We import now, usually in the name of fashion, but 4 to 6 per cent of our dyes. For a long time we had trouble with our blue and black dyes. Now we make them perfectly. That represents 60 per cent of the business. Reds rank next and yellows third. There is a small percentage of miscellaneous dyes.

Medicines and Flavors.

"The dyes are, of course, but one part of the coal tar picture. Our medical products plants also are making the coke ovens work overtime. We make today virtually all the medical products of coal tar origin we consume. Synthetic quinine, veronal, luminol—the specific for epilepsy—are but a few. And this is not to mention the synthetic flavor industry—which is several industries in itself.

"In the field of anesthetics, we have been able to duplicate or improve the products we previously imported and recent research in this branch has given us some new local anesthetics that have proven highly effective.

"Another great step has been our modification of the Haber process of nitrogen fixation. This is of extreme importance because it makes us independent of Chile for nitrates, and when fully developed will enable us to produce all our own fertilizer. There is one huge plant in operation at Syracuse, N. Y., and another at Belle, W. Va., using the new process. Another big plant is under way at Hopewell, Va. The process for obtaining fixed nitrogen in these plants is vastly more efficient than the old cyanimad process that was to be the basis of nitrates production at Muscle Shoals.

New Nitrates Process

"To render Muscle Shoals acceptable for large-scale nitrates production would cost three times as much today as it would cost to underwrite a plant of the newer type that would give an equal amount of nitrates. By the newer technique free nitrogen and free hydrogen are combined under high temperature and high pressure to make ammonia through what is known as a catalytic process. A catalyzer is an agency that promotes interaction of gases or compounds without losing its own identity. In this case, the catalyzer is a carefully prepared wire gauze. It hypnotizes, so to speak, the nitrogen and the hydrogen and induces them to combine. The resulting ammonia is then treated to produce nitric acid and from this the nitrates are made. It was on this process that Germany depended for nitrates to supply her explosives factories during the World War. We have modified it, improved it, I believe, and find it highly satisfactory today. It enables us to dispense with the big and expensive electric furnaces necessary in the cyanimad process.

"In surveying the field of chemical improvements or innovations in America since 1918, it is difficult to know what not to include. Advances have been made in virtually every industry, and scores of factories, dependent on chemistry, have risen. One should not overlook the lacquers we are making by starting out with cellulose. Then there are the synthetic resins; the new methods of preparing formaldehyde and carbolic acid; the casein plastics made from skimmed milk, and the beautifully colored fountain pens that also are made from skimmed milk.

"Once we had to proceed carefully in work with nitric and sulphuric acids. We can venture on reactions with these now in towers of newly developed chromium and chrome-nickel steel that cannot be corroded.

Disinfectant From Oats.

"One of the interesting facts of conversion of what used to be waste material is the preparation of a new disinfectant, used in place of formaldehyde, from the hulls of oats.

"We are also making synthetic sausages out of cotton cellulose—the wood-fibre stuff that also goes into rayon artificial silk. In preparing the silk, the rendered cellulose—it is first in liquid form and is sprayed out of a nozzle—cools in the form of thread. For the synthetic sausages, it issues in the form of a tube before cooling. The tube is used to cover frankfurters. They can make 70 miles of it a day in a modern factory.

"I have, so to speak, merely touched the high spots. But from what I have said, it is obvious that America has developed its chemical industries amazingly within a period of 10 years."

Story of Helium Gas.

The story of helium gas—for the gasbags of American airships—is an important part of postwar chemical history. In 1912 there were only 15 cubic feet of isolated helium gas known to exist on earth. Helium was then more costly than black pearls and pigeon blood rubies. Those fifteen feet of the stuff were valued at $30,000 and they were in the possession of Dr. Onnes of Leyden.

Nobody suspected the existence, in western America, of fields rich in helium gas until the British sent an S. O. S. to the Bureau of Mines, during the war, to test gaswells for helium content. The S. O. S. was sent because a British flyer had discharged several clips of incendiary bullets at a Zeppelin and the Zeppelin had failed to go up in flames. Instead, the flyer reported, the incendiary bullets had apparently been quenched inside the gasbag.

The advantage of helium as an airship gas lies in its inflammability. A match held to a helium jet will be snuffed out. It is therefore immeasurably superior to hydrogen as gasbag filler, for hydrogen has a natural affinity for fire. The Germans sent aloft but one helium gasbag during the war. It is believed they exhausted their supply of the stuff in that one cruiser of the air. The British never have been able to fill a bag with helium because they haven't been able to garner sufficient quantities of the imponderable stuff.

Cast of Helium Gas Cut.

Dr. Richard B. Moore, chief chemist of the Bureau of Mines during the war and now dean of science at Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., went on a search for helium in this country in 1917 and found it in comparative abundance in certain western gas wells. But the price of getting hold of it was almost prohibitive.

How American chemists have reduced the Toll or Free Bridges?

Rapid Development of Fine Highways All Over the Country Presents New Question for States and Municipalities.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-22 Wyatt Building,
WASHINGTON, April 21.

WITH the spreading of a network of free public highways all over the country, a new question has forced itself on the attention of Congress and local legislative bodies. Thanks to the efforts of a few men, including Representative John J. Cochran of St. Louis, the question is beginning to assume the importance of a major issue in Congress. It is certain to furnish, more and more, the material for debate.

The question concerns the continued existence of the toll bridge. Concededly, the toll bridge is an anachronism. It is as far out of date as the horse and buggy.

A traveler by motor car has the free use of publicly owned roads costing millions of dollars. Why should he have a pay a private enterprise to use one small segment of the highway? The value of that segment is due wholly to the public road at each end of it. Why should not that link be made free?

Eventually that is what the public, as represented by the states, counties and municipalities may wish to do. Meantime, as it seems to those in Congress who have studied the subject, it is the duty of the states and their political subdivisions to clear the way for building new bridges and for taking over privately-owned bridges whenever that becomes desirable, and it is the duty of Congress to make sure that the public shall be able to acquire these private bridges on reasonable terms.

There is no disposition in Congress to deny to private capital its just rights or opportunities. It is recognized, indeed, that private capital has performed a service in building bridges which the public, through straitened finances or lack of vision, might not have built for itself. It is recognized that private capital will continue to be needed during the present transition period.

There is, however, a growing disposition in Congress to scrutinize closely all measures for the issuance of bridge-building permits to private concerns. There is a heavy responsibility on Congress in this respect because of its exclusive power to grant permits for bridges over the navigable waters of the country.

Until the bridge building question became acute, during the present session of Congress, it was the custom of the House to pass without question virtually any bridge bill that might be offered, so long as it was personally vouched for by the member or members representing the territory directly concerned.

Bills Scrutinized Now.

Nowadays, when a bridge bill comes up, two questions are put to its sponsors: "Do you know the persons for whom this permit is sought?" and "Have those persons received permits in the past and then assigned them to others?" The questions are asked either by Cochran, Representative La Guardia (Rep.) of New York, or Representative Schafer (Rep.) of Wisconsin, the idea being to find out in each case whether the public is in danger of being exploited by promoters through the sale of watered securities.

If the answers are satisfactory, that is, if it appears the bridge is proposed as the result of a public demand and that the men back of it are worthy of trust, the bill is allowed to go through on the unanimous consent calendar. If not, the bill is held up. In consequence of Cochran's activity, permits desired by E. M. Elliott, a high-powered Chicago promoter, have recently been refused.

The added attention being paid to bridge bills is a clear gain for the public. But there are those who believe — Cochran among them—that more will have to be done before the interest of the public is safeguarded as it should be.

The initial fight was for the inclusion in every private bridge bill of an amendment limiting the amount of securities that might be issued against a bridge project by a private concern to the actual cost of the bridge, plus 10 per cent. Cochran contended that under the present law there was nothing to prevent a promoter from building a bridge at a cost, say, of $1,000,000 and issuing securities against it amounting to $1,500,000. The amendment was designed to protect the investing public against watered stock.

Various objections were raised against this proposal: one that the investor in bridge securities was already amply protected under the State blue sky laws; another that the Secretary of War, who was named in the amendment as the administrative officer, would have to create a new bureaucratic machine to do the work; another that would-be purchasers of bridge stocks or bonds should themselves take the trouble to investigate the soundness of the securities, and should not be singled out for protection under a special Federal-blue-sky law.

Cochran Amendment Loses.

Supported as they were by Representative Denison (Rep.) of Illinois, the chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee's subcommittee which deals with bridge bills, the objections carried such weight with the House that Cochran's amendment was voted down by 315 to 18.

The fight, however, has had the salutary effect of causing the Interstate Commerce Committee to inquire closely into bridge projects coming before it, with a view to being able to assure the House, whenever a measure is favorably reported, that the public interest has been protected.

The form now being used by the Committee for all private interstate toll bridges is typified by the Dupo Bridge bill, sent to the House recently after its passage by unanimous consent in the Senate. This bill, which was sponsored in the Senate by Hawes of Missouri and received a favorable report from the Senate Commerce Committee, would grant to the Dupo Bridge Co., its "successors and assigns," the right to build and operate a toll bridge over the Mississippi River at or near Carondelet, Mo. The bill follows throughout the standard form agreed upon by the Commerce Committees of the two branches of Congress.

In the opinion of members of the committees, the public receives ample protection through the so-called recapture clauses.

"We put in every bill that we pass," said Denison, "a provision giving the right of recapture to the public. In other words, we give to the State Government or to any political subdivision with which the bridge is connected the right to go into court and condemn the bridge and take it over.

"Then we limit the amount that has to be paid, after a certain time, in order to do this; we provide that if the public wants to take over the bridge after a certain time it can do so without having to pay for any going value, or any prospective profits, or any earning power, but it can take it over by paying the actual cost, less depreciation, plus not more than 10 per cent for financing the promotion costs."

This statement by Denison, from a speech to the House, is a nontechnical statement of what is in the Dupo bill and others of that class with respect to the public's

The Road Bond Issue.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

REFERRING to the letter entitled "Who Cares," signed by "No. 200":

I, too, would hide my identity behind numerals, or just naughts, if I did not know what I was talking about.

I am a taxpayer and have a right to oppose writing into the Constitution provisions that seem unfair and which I know from my experience will wreck the State road program.

No. 200 don't seem to know there are provisions in this bond issue proposition that should not be in the Constitution, but which must be voted if the bonds are voted for.

The State is now operating under a road law which was passed in 1921 by the Legislature and has already been changed several times, and two more changes should and can be made. The provisions in the proposed $75,000,000 bond issue are what I am mostly objecting to. It is proposed to place these provisions in the Constitution where they cannot very well be changed to meet changing conditions.

The unfair and inequitable division of surplus funds must be voted for along with a vote for the bonds and should condemn the whole proposition.

The provision preventing increase in license fees on trucks regardless of who operates them should condemn the whole proposition, for the average license fee for two to five ton trucks is only $18 in Missouri, while in 27 of our states such trucks pay an average of $67.

Including in the Constitution a limitation on the gas tax to 2 cents, instead of providing, as the new proposed constitutional amendment in Iowa does, that the gasoline tax shall not be reduced below 2 cents in order to avoid a property tax, is also another very serious objection.

Besides, there is no provision in the proposition appropriating any bond money for farm-to-market roads and no such language is in the proposal.

Of course, No. 200 did not know the difference between what is proposed in the so-called $75,000,000 bonds and the fact that no restrictions are now in the Constitution and that the State's splendid system of roads has been built under act of the Legislature and changed several times in the past six years to meet conditions. The Lewandoski Case.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR editorial on "Habitual Criminality" dealing with the verdict rendered in Paul Lewandoski's case was greatly appreciated by the writer.

Senator Baumes defines a psychopath as "a man who shoots and after he has done it informs you he couldn't help it, and proves it by an expert."

Fortunately the jury in this case was not misled by the insanity defense. The boy is still held to answer three highway robbery charges. His partner pleaded guilty and is now serving his sentence.

Any person who deliberately chooses to risk life, liberty and happiness in the pursuit of crime in preference to working for an honest living is a "nut"—but that is no reason why he should be permitted to prey upon the public.

What Will Be the Issues?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

DOES anyone know what the issues will be in the presidential election? There is, of course, the one of corruption, but that failed to make a Democratic success in 1924 and probably will be as ineffective this year. Aside from that, what have the Democrats to offer to offset the undoubted appeal of the Republicans? That appeal is grounded in the belief, mistaken or otherwise, that Republican success "is good for business." There are, it is true, many good causes Democrats could espouse, but the party is by no means of one mind regarding them. What has a cotton-planting Georgia Democrat in common, for example, with a Tammany brave? The legacy of Jefferson? The Tammany brave doesn't even know what that is. To an onlooker, the Democratic party seems morally bankrupt and hopelessly factionalized. JEFFERSONIAN.

Pure Water and Hard Liquor.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THERE is perhaps some force in what Dr. Mayo says about pure water being the best propaganda against liquor, at least so far as Europe is concerned. He makes the point that they drink wine over there because the water is polluted and that since Vienna introduced a pure water supply, the per capita consumption of liquor in that city was reduced 40 per cent.

But the United States was never a wine-drinking country. Its predilection is for hard liquor. We have had pure water in our cities for a long time, but it does not seem to affect the desire for spirits. Conceivably the European peasant would cut down on his wine consumption if he had good water to drink, but what inroads he would make on the cognac supply! MUSCATELLE.

THE SINCLAIR ACQUITTAL.

Harry F. Sinclair goes free. The jury in his trial on the charge of conspiracy to defraud the Government in the Teapot Dome lease acquitted him within half an hour after the case was placed in its hands.

The verdict stunned the people of the country, among whom the conviction of guilt was practically universal. It is naturally tainted with suspicion on account of Sinclair's efforts through the Burns detective agency to tamper with the jury in the previous trial, which makes the present decision the more astounding.

It reverses the decision of the United States Supreme Court, which declared the Teapot Dome lease a corrupt and fraudulent transaction and denounced Sinclair as a trespasser and Fall as a faithless public officer. It reverses the decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, which denounced the Sinclair-Fall lease and contract as "procured by fraud and corruption," and added:

> The entire transaction is tainted with favoritism, collusion and corruption, defeating the proper and lawful function of government.

The civil court deprived both Sinclair and Doheny of the spoils of their rotten transactions, canceled the leases and returned the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills reserves to the Government. But the scoundrels who conspired with former Secretary of the Interior Fall to rob the Government have been acquitted of wrongdoing in criminal trials. The good old slogan "let no guilty man escape" has been reversed in the case of "malefactors of great wealth." It has been changed in the cases of rich and influential rascals to "let no guilty multimillionaire suffer." Trial by jury has fallen down under the malign influence of wealth and political power.

Doheny and Fall were acquitted of their manifest conspiracy to defraud the Government in the leasing of Elk Hills reserve. Harry Daugherty, whose rule in the office of Attorney-General was besmeared with corruption, went free. And Harry F. Sinclair, reeking with the proofs of conspiracy and bribery in the Teapot Dome lease, escapes punishment.

Now the only malefactor—chief among them—who is awaiting trial in the Teapot Dome case is Fall. He retains the spoils of his corrupt acts, and there is little ground for hope that he will not be permitted to revel in them for the rest of his life.

The Republican National Committee retains its share of the spoils of the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy to betray the Government. It participated in the crime after the fact, and holds the fruits of its participation.

The whole situation makes a sorry spectacle of the administration of justice in the Federal courts. It is a terrible indictment of the processes of criminal law, following a reign of corruption in the Government unparalleled in the history of the United States.

The Government itself is on trial before the bar of public opinion.

THE ATOM VANISHES.

An atom used to be an atom and an element used to be an element. The atom was irreducible. There wasn't anything smaller. And when you had an element, you couldn't change it. That is all past now. The electron and radiation hold the day.

Prof. von Miethe of Berlin thought he could illustrate the electronic theory of matter by converting quicksilver into gold. The thing was theoretically simple, he said. You had only to knock an electron off the mercury atom and you would have an atom of gold. He tried it and claimed success. Other physicists who checked his experiment failed to confirm his findings. Von Miethe, they said, had gone about it in the wrong way. He had worked outside the atom. An atom has to be changed, they observed, from the inside. If Von Miethe had reached the center of the mercury atom and had kicked out therefrom one proton, then he would have had gold. That was the consensus of opinion. But nobody knew quite how you could get to the atomic center of the mercury atom.

The gold test failed, but transmutation work with gases was demonstrated. The helium atom was bombarded in a gas chamber and immediately turned into atoms of hydrogen. And now Prof. Harkins of Chicago University has changed two elements into a third—helium and nitrogen into flourine—and has caused this to disintegrate into hydrogen and oxygen. The electron proves to be the philosopher's stone, ushering in a chemical world of new magic.

Lindbergh is determined not to suffer the fate of the goldfish.

THE SOCIALIST PARTY.

Going through the motions of a political party, the Socialists met in New York, nominated Norman Thomas for President and James H. Maurer for Vice President. It will please the members of the D. A. R. and others who fear the spread of radicalism in this country to contemplate the insighificance of the Socialist party. Since 1900 it has had a ticket in the field, usually headed by Eugene Debs, with not a ghost of a chance for success.

Debs polled 94,000 votes in 1900 while McKinley and Bryan were receiving 7,000,000 and 6,000,000, respectively. In 1904, 402,000 voted the Socialist ticket, and this was increased only to 420,000 in 1908. Debs' growing popularity doubled the vote in 1912, when it was 897,000. In 1916, the only time Debs was not nominated between 1900 and 1920 (Benson was the nominee), the Socialist vote dropped to 585,000. In the next election the Socialists polled 919,000 votes. Their nominee, Debs, was in Atlanta at the time. In 1924 presumably the Socialist vote went to La Follette, Johns, Socialist-Labor candidate, polling only 36,000 votes.

Thus, after competing for a quarter of a century, the Socialist party has failed to create a ripple in the national political pond. Its nearest approach to a round million votes came in 1920, when the newly enfranchised women voters swelled the total figures many millions. In that year the Republican and Democratic vote totaled more than 25,000,000, as contrasted with 17,500,000 in 1916. The failure of the Socialists to grow appreciably in that period, of course, was their opposition to the war. That policy wrecked a party already lacking in vitality.

There is no third party of effective strength in sight in this country, but the Democratic party is divided and there is a progressive faction in the Republican party which holds the balance of power. Conditions are ripe for realignment of political force.

We like the bravado of the Cardinals, but we hope they will never again try to beat a pitcher who has just been apprised that his grandmother has left him $500,000.

COOLIDGE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

In his address before the Daughters of the American Revolution on the 14th inst. Mr. Coolidge again dwelt upon the widespread disposition to run down to Washington for a Federal law when we are unable to get what we want at home.

This is a good cause, and one whose champions would be glad to feel that the President agreed with them. The rights of the states are important, but there has been so much loose talk as to what has happened them and how that the subject needs to be clarified.

What is the greatest menace to local government in the United States? Is it some Federal law put through Congress by people who were unable to get what they wanted at home? That is bad enough, but the greatest menace to local government in the United States is the attitude toward it shown by the United States Supreme Court and the Federal Circuit Courts of the country. It is here that the Presidents of the United States exercise their greatest power. Between them Mr. Harding and Mr. Coolidge have made five appointments to the Supreme Court, or a majority. Mr. Harding named four of these justices, Mr. Coolidge one. They have appointed a great many Federal Judges. Have they been careful to select men who believe that local government should be conserved? If we may judge by the tendency of the Supreme Court in great causes which, like that as to valuation of public utilities, vitally affect the powers of the states, or if we may judge by the manner in which Federal courts everywhere have permitted the utilities to escape from the regulatory and judicial processes of the states and get what they want from Federal Judges, these appointments have not uniformly been made with due consideration for the states. If this process goes on through the next eight years, when almost every liberal upon the Supreme Bench will likely have died or retired because of old age—Justice Holmes is 87 and Justice Brandeis 72—there will be so little left of state rights that it will not be worth talking about. Indiana has appealed to Congress to protect her judicial processes from the Federal courts, and Massachusetts, through its state regulatory body, has expressed the opinion that there is available within the state all the process to which corporations are entitled under the constitution.

The Supreme Court of the United States was established to save us from the very folly of which Mr. Coolidge complains. The most deadly blow that has been aimed at local government in the history of the republic is the prohibition law. Yet the United States Supreme Court, though warned by as eminent a lawyer as Elihu Root that so to do would be to change the form of our Government, held the Volstead act valid. It has also seemed to assert the dangerous economic principle that public utilities are worth what it would cost to reproduce them. No state believes this, but by going over the heads of the states into the Federal courts the utilities are about to establish this principle. Mr. Coolidge can best prove his sincerity as a believer in local government by exercising care not to put in any judicial position, or on any board or commission construing the law, any man who would lightly brush aside the rights of the states. It is fair to say that Justice Stone, who is new to the Supreme bench, is probably quite acceptable in this respect. At any rate, had that care been exercised by our Presidents during the last 30 years there would be no prohibition law except such as the states made for themselves, and the utilities would have to accept the terms imposed upon them by the states in which they are chartered.

The states may assert their rights as they like; but so long as the President, who appoints all the Supreme and Federal Judges, and who makes up the personnel of all commissions construing the law, puts over them men who do not believe in state rights, their dreams are futile.

ARTICLE X.

Recalling the tumult and the shouting which characterized the debate over the League of Nations, some of us must occasionally wonder about Article X.

Did it turn out as the enemies of the League said it would? Did the nations which joined the League find that under Article X they had to send their young men to die upon foreign fields fighting the battles of other people?

Was Article X really so binding as all that, and were the fearful predictions of Senator Reed of Missouri, the tearful entreaties of Senator Johnson of California, and the solemn warnings of Senator Lodge of Massachusetts ever borne out by practical experience?

Much as we dislike to recall what anybody said at a time when sound and fury took precedence over sense and content, we experience some satisfaction in reporting that Article X has been construed by the League to mean that each country is to decide for itself whether it will join in armed conflict. It is not construed to mean that the League can vote its members into war, or that participation by the members in any armed enterprise in which the League may enter is in any sense mandatory.

So all that was said of Article X, all the alarms sounded and all the warnings uttered, went up in smoke. It ought to be chastening for an excitable and easily misled people to be checked up once in a while like that.

HE'S OFF OF BRIDGE.

So R. S. Foster has soured on bridge. "There's too much fussing with your partner," he says. He has found another game he likes better. That, of course, is his privilege. Still, his apostasy does seem a bit rancid. It isn't cricket.

Mr. Foster has gotten a good deal out of bridge. In pre-auction days his bridge books were best sellers. He was a widely quoted authority. He could spin a lively yarn. His "Head Convention" was a corker. Auction came. New oracles appeared. The fickle multitudes knelt at the feet of other masters. Nevertheless, the name of Foster has its place in the annals.

Anyhow, his inconstancy is illogical. He has condemned the game because of the manners of the players. Is not that a non sequitur?

And what nobler mission might be his! Suppose he drafted a Spartan code, in the best Lycurgan style. A code enumerating the capital crimes which all partners commit. Muffing the signal. Fumbling the echo. Returning or omitting to return the lead as the exigencies indicate and common sense proclaims. Suppose he decreed it to be sound bridge and absolutely de rigeuer to kill your partner at the end of the rubber.

Had he risen to that height, Mr. Foster might have returned from the Elba of his obscurity to a thunderous Vive L'Empereur!

ANOTHER WHITE HOUSE PET.

AL SMITH'S CANDIDACY

Brown-Derbied Tammany Man From Oliver Street Has Made Triumphant Progress Toward the Democratic Nomination; He Symbolizes Opposition to Ku Kluckery, Volsteadism and Snobbery; Will He Give His Wetness the Dignity of Statesmanship and Stand or Fall on That Issue?

From the New York World.

THE triumphant progress of Gov. Smith's candidacy is unmistakable. He has grown so strong that those who are opposing him are in a hopeless dilemma. They cannot deny that he is the overwhelming choice of the Democrats in those States which must be won if the party is to win the election. They cannot deny that he is the one and only Democrat in the field whom the Republicans fear. They cannot deny that he is the one and only Democrat who has any chance whatever of being elected. Therefore, if they make some sort of combination to refuse him the nomination they will be acknowledging before the country that they prefer a certain defeat without Smith to a good chance of victory with him.

There was only one way to defeat Smith, and that was to show that he would be a weaker candidate than someone else. For months, in fact, for years, his weaknesses have been discussed from one end of the country to the other. The upshot of that discussion is that his alleged liabilities have turned out to be assets. We have been asking ourselves whether a Catholic could be nominated for President of the United States, and we find a conclusive answer to this question in the fact that the very politicians who refused to denounce the Ku Klux Klan in 1924 are proposing to nominate Senator Walsh, a Catholic, as an alternative to Gov. Smith. We have been told that Gov. Smith's wetness, political and personal, was an insuperable handicap. But every poll and every local election in the pivotal States brings additional proof that the Democrats outside the solid South are militant wets. It was said that Tammany and New York and Oliver Street were mountainous handicaps. But too much insistence upon these prejudices has proved helpful to Smith. The notion has taken possession of men's minds that the house on Oliver street may really be a log cabin. And thus, after years of talk about his weaknesses he enters the South wearing his hideous brown derby, the symbol of Oliver street; he responds to the first speech of welcome with an allusion to Tammany, and on his first Sunday in a Southern town he goes to mass at the Catholic church and gets an ovation from a crowd of Methodists and Baptists who are waiting for him at the door of the church.

THE very arguments used to defeat him are turning out to be irresistible reasons for nominating him. The opposition to Smith has identified him so thoroughly with the principles of religious tolerance, personal liberty and social equality that a refusal to nominate him would be accepted by the whole country as a rejection of those principles. The Klan, the Anti-Saloon League and the snobs have done what they never dreamed they were going to do. In attacking Smith, not on his official record or on his political program, but on grounds that apply equally to millions of other Americans, they have fatally injured their own cause. The shots they aimed at Smith have hit the Democratic masses. Their insults have been taken to heart by the voters. For the Democratic party in its strategic strongholds is composed very largely of men and women whom the Klan casts out, the Anti-Saloon League berates and the snobs look down upon. The enemies of Smith have brought the Democratic party to a position where it cannot reject Smith without rejecting millions of its constituents.

Thanks to these years of abusive propaganda, Gov. Smith is in a position today where he has such a passionate following that he does not need to seek the nomination. It has to come to him. The party cannot get along without him. From this fact one conclusion, it seems to us, follows clearly. Gov. Smith is being swept along toward the nomination because the Democratic masses in the North and East are aligned behind him. These voters are wet, they are wet in principle and they are wet in practice. They are wet because they detest the whole philosophy of prohibition with its denial of home rule and its violation of personal liberty. They know, and they are fundamentally right, that Volsteadism is not merely a prohibition of liquor, but that it is the citadel of all manner of Ku Kluckery and tyranny. They know that the fight against Volsteadism is much more than a fight to replace bootleg liquor with honest liquor, that it is in fact a fight against that whole array of prejudices which are at the bottom of the attempt to close the door of opportunity to a man like Smith.

THERE is no disentangling the Smith candidacy from the fight on Volsteadism, Ku Kluckery, ancestor worship and social discrimination. That is what it means in the minds of the people. The attempts made by Gov. Smith a few months ago satisfy short-sighted politicians by stepping away from that reform of prohibition with which he is identified, has been, fortunately for him, a complete failure. When he tried to talk the language of the conventional politicians in regard to "enforcement" neither his opponents nor his friends took him seriously. He is irrevocably a wet and as a wet he will inevitably run. The only question is whether he will, before the campaign is much older, translate his wetness into a national program and thus give it the dignity of statesmanship.

That is the issue he represents. That is the one popular issue on which he can really challenge the Republicans. On every other question he will find his own following either divided or more or less apathetic. He will find it easy enough to criticise much that the Republicans have done; he will find it much more difficult to convince the country that the Democrats could do it so much better that they ought to be intrusted with power. Nor, in our judgment, will he win by harping on the oil scandals.

NO one can guarantee him a victory if he makes the reform of prohibition his paramount issue. It is never easy for a Democrat to win when the Republicans are united. But one can guarantee him a campaign which will win him the respect of the nation for having had the courage and the imagination to attack the greatest domestic evil, the greatest source of corruption and hypocrisy, which now afflicts the American people.

BALLADE OF UNDUE PESSIMISM.

Who heed false fame's mad siren call
May learn to rue the road they tread;
The pain is great, the gain is small.
Too small rewards may turn the head
That should be crowned with bay instead;
Is fame for love a fit for tat?
Too rough what roads to fame have led.
But must we dwell on things like that?

Small reck the love, of love we pall,
Ambrosia becomes but bread;
Though sweet the yoke, the shoulders gall.
How be in love when charms have fled
And how feign love when love has sped?
The flame must ever trap the gnat.
And love's false lure is ever spread.
But must we dwell on things like that?

Death is the end of one and all.
As somewhere, sometime, I have read,
In countless graveyards, tombstone sprawl—
The silent cities of the dead;
Too soon we know the narrow bed.
The throne is dust where Caesar sat
Of life's last jest we stand in dread,
But must we dwell on things like that?

L'ENVOI

Sweet Prince, all life's a tangled thread,
My heart is faint, my purse is flat,
Of courage, I've a sorry shred,
But must we dwell on things like that?

What pains us is that the political line of reformation probably will be to refuse to accept big contributions from any of the boys under indictment.

The Colonel could not stand it: ...the Colonel thought Grant was not ...out for a military career, and ...asked him to resign. So he found ...himself out of a job, with no way ...to make a living, and with an ur... ...gent need of liquor.

In the blazing hot summer of ...1859 he wandered through the ...streets of St. Louis, trying to sell ...real estate and making a failure of ...it. He was so shabby and forlorn ...that he attracted people's atten... ...tion; and he was so disorganized ...that he went about borrowing ...small sums of money from chance ...acquaintances. Yet, within nine ...years of that time he was Presi... ...dent of the United States, after ...having won a world-wide renown ...as a General.

What a tremendous drama lies ...in his rise from a frowsy drinking ...man to President! Suppose the ...Civil War had not happened? ...Would we have ever heard of ...Grant? I think not. The Civil ...War made him; it was his fortu... ...nate circumstance.

It does not seem to me that he ...possessed any ability at all, or ...worth mentioning, except as a ...soldier; and he was a very great ...soldier—probably the greatest sol... ...dier that has yet appeared among ...the American people, with the ex... ...ception of Stonewall Jackson. But ...he did not want to be a soldier. ...It was like some wonderfully ...good automobile mechanic who ...has a lifelong hankering to be a ...physician, but who could never be ...a good one. Grant's desire was to ...be a business man, though he had ...absolutely no talent for business.

They ...persuaded him to approve of one ...shady transaction after another. ...They dragged his administration ...into the mud, though his own per... ...sonal honesty was deep, enduring ...and unouchable.

As a proof of his childish sim... ...plicity in business affairs one needs ...only to consider his unfortunate ...connection with Ferdinand Ward. ...This occurred in the early 1880s. ...Ward, who was called for the mo... ...ment "The Napoleon of Wall ...Street"—one of the many Napo... ...leons in the history of that re... ...markable region—came to Grant and ...offered to take him in as a part... ...ner. Chemical Industy Grows Amazingly in 10 Years

...cost of helium is shown by this ...scale:

Year.	Price Per M Cubic Feet.	Price Per Cubic Foot.
1912.....	$2,000	$2.00
1917.....	1,000	1.00
1020.....	600	.60
1925.....	250	.25
1928....	$25 to $30	$0.025 to $0.03

A new field, of impressive high helium content in a Western state, is expected to bring the price even lower.

"Airship mistress of the world—that is the position that America should occupy because of her helium gaswells," said Dr. Moore to a Post-Dispatch reporter.

100-Passenger Airship.

"The British are building a huge airship now capable of carrying 100 persons. It will fly over here and, I believe, will fly back safely to Britain. It is an unfortunate reflection upon us that, with our rich endowment of helium, we should allow ourselves to be outstripped in lighter-than-air experimentation. It is true the Government has appropriated $2,000,000 of the cost of a $4,000,000 airship that will have a gasbag capacity of 6,000,000 cubic feet of helium. But our engineers have only commenced to draw the plans.

"The British and the Germans continue to experiment with airships in spite of the fact that they have to use hydrogen. This clearly shows their belief in the importance of this branch of aeronautics. We have the only helium in the world, and we can produce it 2 to 5 cents cheaper than other nations can produce dangerous inflammable hydrogen, and yet we lag behind in lighter-than-air flying."

The present method of extracting helium from other gases is comparatively simple. The usual cooking gas, as it comes out of certain wells, contains nitrogen and the hydrocarbon gases ethane and methane, in addition to helium. The crude gas is subjected to high pressure at low temperature and all of it liquefies except the helium, which has a low boiling point of —268.5 Centigrade. The other gases are poured off and helium, still a gas, is carried into a tunnel by a draft.

One great plant, which cost $4,000,000 was built at Fort Worth. Another plant has been proposed to tap a new gas field. Dr. Moore is called the "father of helium" in this country because, while Sir William Ramsay, British physicist, first isolated helium, Moore has done more development work with it.

Favors Endowments.

Dr. Edwin E. Slosson, research chemist and director of Science Service, a news organization that follows closely new scientific developments here and abroad, finds chemistry in America flourishing as never before but believes there is too little endowment of "pure" science by business.

"Chemistry in America is in a more flourishing state than ever before," said Dr. Slosson. "The American Chemical Society is the largest scientific society in the world. Chemistry is continually playing a more important part in all the industries, and in the United States the chemist is more than ever coming to the aid of the business man.

"Our universities are building new and finer laboratories, although these are not keeping up with the stadiums. Our state and national governments are spending more money than any other nation on agricultural research, which is largely chemical. Our original contributions to the advancement of the science are numerous and important, as a glance at this week's program (a total of 300 papers on original work) will show.

"But we must frankly confess that we are not so much farther ahead of the rest of the world in the making of science as we are ahead of them in what we spend on buildings, factories and schools. The American people are not so good on the kick-off as they are at keeping the ball in play. For instance, we are making and wearing more of the synthetic silk substitutes than other nations, but all four of the processes employed in making them were invented in Europe. We have more automobiles per capita than anywhere else in the world, but the gasoline engine was originally 'made in Germany.' We are using three-fourths of the rubber in the world, but it is all grown under foreign flags.

"We are using more electrical machinery than any other people but the dynamo and the motor are European inventions. We are now making most of our own dyes but they are made mostly according to foreign formulas, although we have improved the processes and multiplied the products. All of which means, simmered down, that the American people are not yet 'sold' on the idea of the importance or value of fundamental research in pure science. They still hold that Yankee ingenuity and American adaptability will do everything."

Prof. William Draper Harkins of Chicago University, noted for his work in atomic research, finds that a surprising amount of pure scientific experimentation is being done in America but that industry might be more generous in endowing this particular field.

"American research in pure chemistry is as good in quality as in any other country in the world," Prof. Harkin said. "Our only serious rivals in the field are found in Germany and England. On the whole a greater quantity of work of the highest accuracy is done here than in any other country.

"The success of American research in pure science since the World War has been due to the excellent work of a considerable number of individuals rather than the outstanding work of any single individual. The greatest developments have occurred in the advance of knowledge concerning atomic and molecular structures—the absorption of light by atoms and molecules—the effect of light on chemical activity—and the structure of solids and liquids as revealed by the X-rays. Work with high pressures and with extreme temperatures also has resulted in important findings in both pure and in applied chemistry.

"While the industries do not give nearly as much support to pure science, which feeds them, as they should, they are rapidly improving in this respect. Thus, America needs men and also needs organizations like the American Chemical Society, to stress the contributions growing out of pure research. The industries in turn should be given assurance that the work they support shall be conducted with the greatest possible efficiency by men of high ability."

New Element Discovered.

Mention should be made, in connection with the field of pure chemical science in America, of the recent discovery of a new element by Dr. B. Smith Hopkins, professor of chemical research at Illinois University. Dr. Hopkins, in 1926, first isolated the metal he called illinium after seven years of experimentation. He reported to the chemical congress here on the rare dust which, as the first and only element to be discovered in th United States, ranks as Exhibit A in scientific Americana.

Illinium, which is less than two years old in the world of known phenomena, may revolutionize a process or an industry and again it may not. Its future is one of the inscrutables, and Dr. Hopkins and his laboratory aids have embarked on complicated tests, following the isolation of the metal, on the chance of hitting some adaptation of it.

"Every metal, upon discovery, has been comparatively useless until experiment showed us what we could do with it," Dr. Hopkins said." Aluminum for years following its isolation was not adapted industrially and now it is one of the important adjuncts of civilized life.

"For years tungsten was a sort of scientific curiousity. Then laboratory experimentation showed it had an important usage in the production of high grade steel. Tungsten, once a useless metal, completely changed the electric lighting industry. The possibilities of every new metal are untold."

Isolation 7-Year Task.

Dr. Hopkins began his 7-year task in 1918, looking to the isolation of an undiscovered element whose presence was indicated by faint lines in the spectral field of X-rays reflected from two other "rare earth" metals—neodymium and samarium.

The chemist took the sand residues from a factory engaged in the manufacture of gas mantles, and made elaborate experiments. He began a series of "crystallizations"—seeking to eliminate all other metals that he knew were included in the residue sands. The work he did necessitated the construction of a delicate scale, capable of showing the difference in weight between a plain piece of paper and a piece of paper on which he had written his name. The scale was sealed in a glass case so that changes in temperature were one week in reaching the apparatus and could not interfere with scale readings.

Chain after chain of elaborate processes were gone through with ineffectually. When the first isolation of the metal was achieved—as shown by distinctive lines in the field of the spectroscope—the amount of the element obtained was less than a pinch of dust. When Dr. Hopkins announced his findings, he had less than half an ounce of a pinkish-yellowish substance containing the new member of the family of metals.

Others Are Set to Work.

The report of his findings went round the world and set other chemists busy in European and Japanese laboratories. A new metal may mean a new medicinal salt that will comfort or assure life to thousands; it may mean a new type of steel rail with a heretofore impossible tensile strength; it may be the germ of a new engine, flying machine or broadcasting device.

"We have small amounts of illinium in various forms and compounds," Dr. Hopkins said. "We obtained them by laborious processes. We are now examining several American ores in the hope that we may find a comparatively rich supply of the new metal. We may and we may not.

"At any rate, illinium is now a fact. It is concrete. The rest is for the laboratory. Even iron at first had no use—was just part of a rock."

Toll or Free Bridge?

...right of recapture. The public, in the language of the standard bridge-bill form, has this right of recapture "at any time" after the completion of the bridge, by purchase or by condemnation, in accordance with the laws of either of the affected states governing condemnation. But it will be noticed that the special provision limiting the amount of compensation payable by the public applies only after a term of years.

In other words, the measure of protection to the public is greatly increased after a term of years—in the case of the Dupo bridge, after 10 years. If the public seeks to acquire a bridge by condemnation before the end of the specified term, it must take its chance that the courts will allow a value based not only on actual cost, but also on tuose other elements of value which the claims of public utility corporations in valuation proceedings have lately made familiar—good will, going value, prospective profits, "reproducing new" cost, and the rest.

Also for this terms of years, no limit is fixed on the amount that may be allowed for promotion costs. In short, the standard form of bill, for this term, leaves the question of the price to be paid by the public in recapture proceedings wholly to the determination of the courts.

Amount Limited to Costs.

After this period, it is specifically provided that the amount to be paid by the public in acquiring a bridge by condemnation or expropriation "shall not include good will, going value, or prospective revenues or profits, but shall be limited to the sum of (1) the actual cost of constructing such bridge and its approaches, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value; (2) the actual cost of acquiring such interests in real property; (3) actual financing and promotion costs, not to exceed 10 per cent of the sum of the cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches and acquiring such interests in real property; and (4) actual expenditures for necessary improvements."

The term of years after which this limitation becomes effective is left blank in the Committee form, to be filled in by the Committee according to its conception of what is proper in each case. The term has been made as low as five years and as high as 30. Generally it is 10 or 15 years.

"We try to fix a term," said Representative Burtness (Rep.) of North Dakota, a member of the House sub-committee on bridges, "that will be fair alike to the public and to the bridge builder. The idea is to give the public protection at all times, and to give it after a certain period an added measure of protection.

Builder Considered, Too.

"But the Committee feels that the builder of a bridge is also entitled to consideration; that he is entitled to an opportunity to make some money on his investment. That is why you find in our bills a difference between the value that may be placed on a bridge for recapture purposes during a term of years and the value that may be placed on it after the expiration of that term.

"There is naturally a pressure from persons seeking bridge permits to have the term made as long as possible; on the other hand there is the pressure of the public interest. It is for the committee to find a point at which the public and the private interest will coincide."

All the bridges built under permits from Congress since the act of March 23, 1906, fall within the provisions of that act, which gives to the Secretary of War the power to regulate the tolls that may be charged. The act does not lay upon the Secretary the duty of fixing original rates, but it provides that he "may at any time, and from time to time" order any adjustments that may be needed to make the rates "reasonable and just."

In conformity with this provision, the Secretary of War makes an investigation whenever a complain reaches him that tolls are too high. Whatever rates he may then fix, become the legal rates. There is no formula either in the law or in the War Department regulations by which the Secretary shall be guided, but each case is dealt with, according to the officers directly in charge of such investigation, on its merits. So many and so variable are the factors involved, these officers say, that it would be impossible to proceed by a fixed general formula.

No Power Before 1906.

If a bridge was built prior to March 23, 1906, the Secretary of War has no power over the tolls. The only recourse that the public has in a case of that kind, as Representative Denison explained to the House, is to build a free bridge alongside the private bridge.

Denison warmly defended not only the form in which private bridge bills are now being passed, but also the general policy of Congress in regard to bridges.

"There are many cases where the states themselves," he said, "cannot build free bridges; they cannot or will not tax their people to build expensive bridges over the rivers, especially those on their borders. They are using all the money they can get to improve their roads. It may be long years before many of the states can raise funds to pay for free highway bridges over interstate waterways.

"There is ample capital that is now ready to be invested in improved bridges. Your committee sees no reason why, under such circumstances, private capital should not be allowed to be invested in order to give the people better and more modern methods of crossing the rivers."

Investors Are Interested.

The only contention raised by what may be called the "insurgent" bridge group is that in the exercise of its power to grant permits, Congress should be extremely careful to safeguard the public interest. In the opinion of some members, there has been no wholly satisfactory answer to the demand for an explicit provision protecting investors in bridge securities. The committee's policy is questionable, too, it is pointed out, on the ground that its bills unduly restrict for a term of years, the right of the public to recapture private bridges on reasonable terms.

Problem Before States.

For the states, counties and municipalities, there is the question whether they should, through bond issues or direct levy, build the bridges themselves, or entrust the job to private promoters. As we have already seen, if the public attempts to recapture a privately built bridge within a certain term of years, it faces the virtual certainty of paying a price materially in excess of the actual cost of the bridge. If it attempts to recapture such a bridge after the lapse of the fixed period, it still faces the possibility that the bridge company, alleging an attempt at confiscation, will seek in the courts to upset the congressional value-fixing formula.

The public as well as a private concern can issue bonds for the building of bridges. It can charge tolls till a sufficient sum has been accumulated to pay off the bonds, and then it can make the bridge free.

Should the public do for itself what it is now leaving, in many cases, to private enterprise? Should it tax itself to build hundreds of miles of paved highways, and then pay tolls for the privilege of using one short link—a link whose value the public itself has created?

Those, according to men here who have interested themselves in the bridge problem, are questions for the states, counties and municipalities to think about.

GUIDE TO EXPORTERS ISSUED BY BUREAU

Deals in Particular With Preparation of Shipments to Latin American Countries.

In an effort to save the American exporter unecessary delays and costs in the final stage of getting American goods into foreign markets, and to help insure delivery of the products abroad with the least amount of expense and trouble to the foreign customer, the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce has published a manual on the preparation of shipments to Latin America.

T. L. Gaukel, the bureau's local representative, says the new handbook will provide full information as to the essential documents required, consular fees, labeling, packing and marking, shipping by mail, samples, entry and warehousing, fines and irregularities, etc., and will show how to eliminate many of the vexatious delays and costly penalties incurred in exporting goods to the countries south of the United States.

"The daily inquiries of St. Louis manufacturers for elementary information concerning proper documentation of foreign shipments, as well as the difficulties reported to us in connection with clearing foreign shipments are evidence of the widespread need of this new compilation," he states.

In part, these unfortunate experiences are attributable to the complex and exacting consular and customs regulations of various countries, and confusing lack of uniformity in their requirements and practices. To a certain extent, they are also traceable to the fact that many of our firms have delegated this phase of their business to untrained employes who do not have the necessary special knowledge.

The first essential in the execution of an export order, according to the manual, is an understanding of the requirements of the country of destination with regard to marking or labeling of goods. Next is adequate information on the tariffs, so that the proper packing may be used to insure its safe arrival and at the same time provide against over-assessment of duty through the use of the wrong container or by packing articles having a different tariff classification in the same container. Documentation is also explained in detail, with emphasis placed on description of the goods and declaration of weight. In this connection, the consular fees charged for certification is given under each country classification.

As the handbook deals chiefly with the requirements to be met and the difficulties to be anticipated and avoided in preparing goods for shipment to Latin American countries, where Middle West firms have for years enjoyed a large proportion of the trade, it will be a partifularly useful volume to firms in this locality.

To Attend Foreign Trade Council Convention.

Fourteen St. Louisans, representing the Foreign Trade Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce and the World Trade Club, will leave tonight and Tuesday night to attend the fifteenth annual convention of the National Foreign Trade Council at Houston, Tex. They will have headquarters at the Rice Hotel.

Trade between the United States and Latin America, which is of particular interest to St. Louis business, will be the dominant theme of this convention. Delegations from Latin America are expected to attend. A tour of Mexico aranged by the Federated Chamber of Commerce of Mexico will follow the gathering. An attendance of more than 1500 is anticipated.

streets, Grant and his family sat disconsolate in their house and counted their assets. Altogether they possessed only $80. Ward was sent to the penitentiary. On the witness stand Grant admitted that he had never seen the firm's balance sheet; had never looked in the ledgers, but always thought it was all right, because "there seemed to be plenty of money around."

It was then that Mark Twain—who was running a publishing concern of his own—appeared and persuaded Grant to write his "Memoirs." He consented, hoping to repay some, at least, of the money he had lost in the venture.

Through the fall of 1883 and the spring of 1884 he sat with cancer clutching at his throat, dictating his reminiscences in the whispering tone of a stricken man. In the summer of that year he passed sadly and pathetically out of life. I think that, in his heart, he felt that he had never done anything that he really wanted to do

SITE ON LINDELL PURCHASED FOR HOTEL PROJECT

Sam Koplar Reported Planning Lofty Structure for South Side of Boulevard at Euclid.

APARTMENT FOR LOT AT NO. 4615

Handsome Residence Will Be Razed to Clear Ground, Which Sells for $700 a Foot.

By Berry Moore.

A feature of the week in realty was the renewed interest displayed in Lindell boulevard, both on the part of those in the market for quick turns and operators with large building plans.

Negotiations have been concluded for two sites on Lindell boulevard just east of Euclid avenue, with large apartment-hotel projects in contemplation. One of the sites is on the south side of the street and the other is on the north side adjoining the corner of Euclid at 4615 Lindell boulevard.

Both sites are occupied by handsome residences, but the purchase in each instance was made on a basis of the value of the ground which, it is understood, broke all previous records west of Taylor avenue. The property on the south side of the street is in the name of William Stix. Negotiations for it were conducted through the Mercantile Trust Co.

Apartment-Hotel Planned.

Sam Koplar, president of the Koplar Co., represented by Cornet & Zelbig, it is understood, was the purchaser of the holding on the south side of the street. This embraces 72 by 246 feet, occupied by a large three-story residence. Plans are under way for replacing the house with a lofty apartment-hotel structure on a surpassing scale, it is reported. Koplar recently was in New York relative to this project, according to realty circles.

The Koplar Co., recently was incorporated, with Sam Koplar as president, to acquire the Congress, Senate and Embassy apartments, and as an operating company in the building field under his guidance. Approximately 45 per cent of the stock in the new company was offered to the public with Koplar retaining the majority of the stock.

Koplar built the Senate, Congress and Embassy apartments and many other earlier high-class buildings of this type, though not on so ambitious a scale.

12-Story Apartment for Other Site.

Persons represented by George Zimmwinkle, but whose identies were not disclosed, were the purchaserers of the site on the north side of the street occupied by a large residence, known as 4615 Lindell boulevard and owned by J. P. Flemming.

A 12-story apartment is to be built on this spot. The reported price for this property including the residence, which was virtually thrown in, was at the rate of more than $700 a foot. Flemming, who had only recently purchased it from the West End Realty Co., composed of John Riley and James Moran, realized a profit of around $5000.

SITE ON LINDELL PURCHASED FOR HOTEL PROJECT

Sam Koplar Reported Planning Lofty Structure for South Side of Boulevard at Euclid.

APARTMENT FOR LOT AT NO. 4615

Handsome Residence Will Be Razed to Clear Ground, Which Sells for $700 a Foot.

By Berry Moore.

A feature of the week in realty was the renewed interest displayed in Lindell boulevard, both on the part of those in the market for quick turns and operators with large building plans.

Negotiations have been concluded for two sites on Lindell boulevard just east of Euclid avenue, with large apartment-hotel projects in contemplation. One of the sites is on the south side of the street and the other is on the north side adjoining the corner of Euclid at 4615 Lindell boulevard.

Both sites are occupied by handsome residences, but the purchase in each instance was made on a basis of the value of the ground which, it is understood, broke all previous records west of Taylor avenue. The property on the south side of the street is in the name of William Stix. Negotiations for it were conducted through the Mercantile Trust Co.

Apartment-Hotel Planned.

Sam Koplar, president of the Koplar Co., represented by Cornet & Zeibig, it is understood, was the purchaser of the holding on the south side of the street. This embraces 72 by 246 feet, occupied by a large three-story residence. Plans are under way for replacing the house with a lofty apartment-hotel structure on a surpassing scale, it is reported. Koplar recently was in New York relative to this project, according to realty circles.

The Koplar Co., recently was incorporated, with Sam Koplar as president, to acquire the Congress, Senate and Embassy apartments, and as an operating company in the building field under his guidance. Approximately 45 per cent of the stock in the new company was offered to the public with Koplar retaining the majority of the stock.

Koplar built the Senate, Congress and Embassy apartments and many other earlier high-class buildings of this type, though not on so ambitious a scale.

12-Story Apartment for Other Site.

Persons represented by George Zimmerwinkle, but whose identies were not disclosed, were the purchaserers of the site on the north side of the street occupied by a large residence, known as 4615 Lindell boulevard and owned by J. P. Flemming.

A 12-story apartment is to be built on this spot. The reported price for this property including the residence, which was virtually thrown in, was at the rate of more than $700 a foot. Flemming, who had only recently purchased it from the West End Realty Co., James Moran, realized a profit of around $5000.

Phil H. Zepp, real estate officer of the Mercantile Trust Co., who handled the negotiations on the south side of the street, declined to disclose the price paid by Koplar.

Another Dwelling Sold.

Another sale was that of an old dwelling at 3740 Lindell boulevard, with lot 65x213 feet, understood to have been acquired by Joseph Turnis, who is proprietor of the Arcadia ball room, and who has large resources. No plans for a new building has been disclosed for this site, which ostensibly has been purchased as a speculation. The site is opposite the 88½ by 142 feet at 3745 Lindell boulevard, recently sold by Paul Robyn to the Lewis-Marr Realty Co. for $75,000, or approximately $837 a front foot, representing a profit of $57,000 on an investment of eight years. The latter site, which is just west of and adjoining the site of the 14-story Daniel Boone apartment, is being cleared for a 14-story apartment building designed by Pleitsch & Price, architects.

Turnis recently acquired a 99-year lease of the property at the northwest corner of Theresa and Olive streets, just east of the Arcadia ball room, under a 99-year lease. A row of old three-story landmarks, which occupied the site, were demolished to make way for an apartment building and garage in connection. This project, however, has been deferred, pending the character of the development of Olive street, which with its new status as a boulevard has an alluring feature. The street will be virtually hooked up with Lindell boulevard, with the widening of Lindell avenue between Grand boulevard and Channing avenue.

Negotiations also are pending for the purchase of the old residence of the late John F. Lee, at 3744 Lindell boulevard, recently purchased by Walter Stinde, professional operator, through Cornet & Zeibig. The lot, which is 65x213 feet, is held at $1000 a front foot, the old dwelling being virtually of negligible value as compared with that of the lot itself.

Landmark to Be Razed For Hotel Project

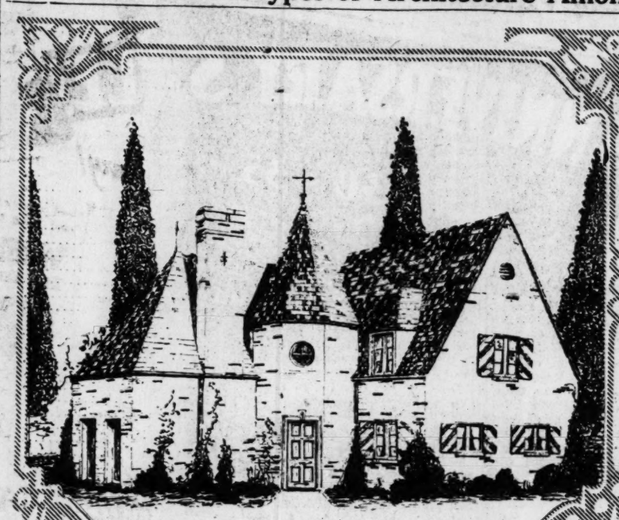
A landmark in downtown St. Louis, the seven-story building at the northeast corner of Ninth street and Washington avenue, with its massive granite shafts and arches, is to be razed to make way for the 25-story hotel building planned by Preston J. Bradshaw.

The owner and operator of this new hotel project is the Heiss Hotel Co., of which Charles Heiss, J. Lionberger Davis, Bradshaw, Paul Bakewell Jr., and Theo. H. Wigge are directors.

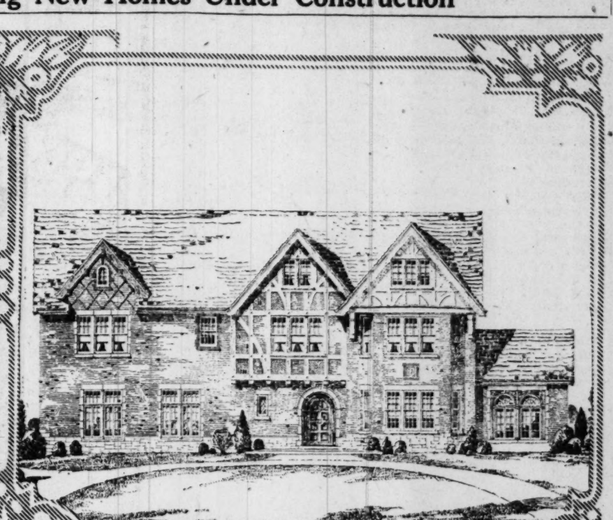
The property was sold for the Adolphia Realty Co. of which Leo H. Quint is president. Vivien H. Emmer and Albert A. Auffrichtig of the Apex Realty & Mortgage Co., conducted the negotiations.

The building to be removed was built in 1887 by the late Morris Rosenheim, the trustees under his will having sold this property last September to the Adolphia Realty Co.

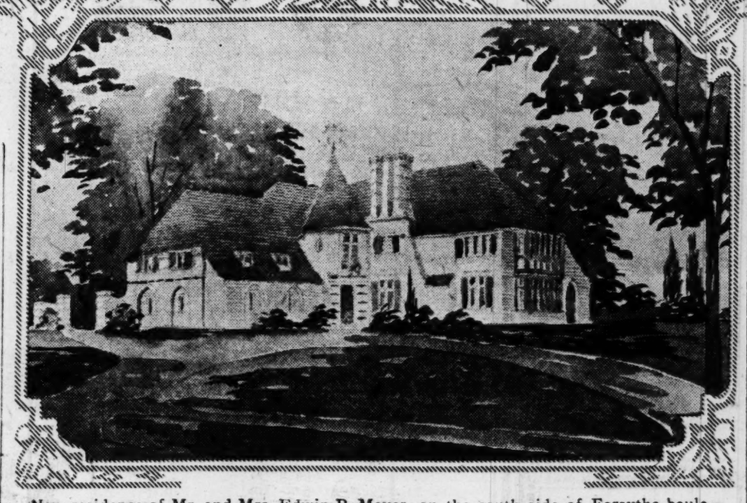
Three Types of Architecture Among New Homes Under Construction



Home in the Norman style of architecture, being built on Pontiac Trail, Osage Hills, for Norman B. Pemberton.—Beverley T. Nelson, architect.



Residence in English design being erected at 5587 Lindell boulevard for Frederick F. Fischer.—Nolte & Naumann, architects.



New residence of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin P. Meyer, on the south side of Forsythe boulevard, just west of Skinker road.—Maritz & Young, Inc., architects.

GEO. F. BERGFELD CO. BUILDING HOME FOR FREDERICK FISCHER

One of a number of fine homes being erected by the George F. Bergfeld Co. Inc., is at 5587 Lindell boulevard, for Frederick F. Fischer, president of the Fischer Meat Co.

It is a two and one-half story residence of English design and contains large reception hall with marble floor, marble circular stairway, large living room, dining room, sun room, breakfast room, pantry, kitchen, two maids' rooms and bath on the first floor. Four bedrooms with two colored tile baths are on the second floor. The rooms are all exceptionally large and airy several of them having three exposures. There is a large garage attached, with open porch above.

The house was designed by Nolte & Nauman, architects.

SEARS-ROEBUCK & CO. STORE SITE ENLARGED

Adds 25 Feet to 200-Foot Frontage Recently Acquired on Kingshighway.

Sears-Roebuck & Co., nationally known mail order house, have acquired 25 feet at 1410 North Kingshighway through Martin & Breitt. This is an addition to the 200 feet frontage on Kingshighway, just south of Easton avenue, recently acquired by the concern through the Franciscus Realty Co.

The concern also recently purchased through the Franciscus Realty Co. 200 by 400 feet at the southeast corner of Grand boulevard and Winnebago street.

Both sites have been acquired for department stores where the concern's wares will be available at catalogue prices, thus supplementing its mail order business.

Architects are now working on the plans for the new stores which will be on a pretentious scale. Construction is to be started without delay.

L. O. HONIG, MANAGER OF BOATMEN'S BUILDING, QUITS

L. O. Honig, manager of the Boatmen's Bank Building, has resigned and May 1 will join the Isaac T. Cook Co., in charge of office building rentals.

The Cook company operates the following office buildings: Arcade, Paul Brown, Landreth, University Club, Carlton, Buder, Pineate and others, as well as a number of loft buildings.

"There is an increasing demand from out-of-town concerns for St. Louis office space which is most encouraging," Honig said. "St. Louis is being more and more recognized by manufacturing and industrial corporations as a location better suited to their business, because of the nearness to raw material centers, and also because St. Louis is within a night's ride of more cities than any other city in the country, an important factor in the distribution of a sales force."

Honig has been identified with business interests in the neighborhood of Broadway and Olive street for almost 26 years.

PROPERTY AT EUCLID AND FOREST PARK SOLD

Henry R. Weisels Co. reports the sale of the property at the northeast corner of Forest Park boulevard and Euclid avenue, owned by Joseph Baltrus, to Frederick Ott.

The lot fronts 177 feet on Euclid by 45 feet on Forest Park boulevard. It is improved with a one-story brick building, containing five stores and a three-story 14-room residence on the corner, 4583 Forest Park boulevard.

The property has strategic value, owing to the fact that it is one and one-half blocks south of the Euclid and Laclede transfer point and a few blocks from the Jewish, St. John's, Barnes and Crippled Children's hospitals.

The purchaser is contemplating erection of a six-story fireproof building to contain stores, offices for physicians who desire to be close to the hospitals, the upper floors to be arranged in apartments for nurses.

HOFFMEISTER FIRM TO BUILD NEW CHAPEL AND PARLORS

A new chapel and parlors to be erected by the Hoffmeister Undertaking Co. on the site of its present main building at 7814 South Broadway will cost approximately $100,000. It was designed by George F. Hayden, architect. The chapel will have seating capacity for several hundred persons.

A lobby situated at the central point will connect offices, chapel, parlors, reception and other rooms. The exterior will be faced with terra cotta.

MANY BUILDING PERMITS TO BE ISSUED SHORTLY

25-Story Hotel and 14-Story Apartment Included in Total of Planned Structures.

The volume of building operations will be swollen within the next month when permits will be taken out for numerous large building projects. Noteworthy will be those for the 25-story Heiss Hotel, to be erected at the northeast corner of Washington avenue and Ninth street, from plans by Preston Bradshaw; the 14-story apartment hotel to go up on the Paul Robyn plot at 3747 Lindell boulevard, designed by Pleitsch & Price, architects, and for which the site is now being cleared; an eight-story roof garden apartment to be erected by the Herman Mayer Co., architects and general contractors, at Grand and Russell boulevards, and a five-story apartment and business building on the north side of Delmar boulevard, between Vandeventer and Sarah street, by Bush-Burns.

These will be followed by several other large projects of this type on Lindell. A number of ambitious apartment building projects are also being harbored by professional real estate operators, who have made large profits in the recent stock market boom.

New construction started in St. Louis during the past month amounted to $9,729,300, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. The above figure was 58 per cent ahead of the total for the preceding month and was 55 per cent ahead of the total for March of last year.

Included in last month's contract total were the following important classes of work: $3,732,500, or 38 per cent of all construction, for residential buildings; $3,852,800, or 29 per cent, for public works and utilities; $1,953,000, or 20 per cent, for commercial buildings; and $356,000, or 6 per cent, for industrial projects.

The March contract record brought the total amount of new building and engineering work started in this city since the first of this year up to $23,082,700, being an increase of 10 per cent over the amount reported in the corresponding period of last year.

New work planned in St. Louis during the past three months has reached a total of $37,184,900, as compared with $23,309,300 for the first three months of last year, the increase being 60 per cent.

DAVIS PLACE SALES TOTAL $100,000 IN WEEK'S REPORTS

Sales totaling $100,000 in Davis place and Pershing Heights, are reported for this week: James Pappas, president of the Standard Meat Co., purchased the corner of Clayton and Hanley for $22,500; James Vangelos sold the property. A number of plans have been approved for new homes and duplexes for Davis place.

EIGHT HOMES BEING BUILT IN BEL-NOR; STORES PLANNED

Eight houses now are under construction in Bel-Nor. Two more will be started next week and will be followed by more as soon as plans are completed. Many of the lot owners are making preparations to build. A report of the Bel-Nor Realty Co. states there will be about 100 new homes built on their property in 1928.

Sales have been very good in the last 30 days. Business property has been sold to the A. R. Licklider Realty & Construction, Co., which is completing plans to erect a modern store and apartment building fronting on Natural Bridge avenue. It is the intention to construct three buildings of this type, the first to be started in about 10 days. The building will be the finest of its type west of the city limits in this section.

The Licklider company will occupy one of the stores as an office.

The Bel-Nor Realty Co. is making preparations to install more reinforced concrete streets, starting about May 1. They have about five miles of frontage on made streets. Work will be started on the Bel-Nor public school building about June 1 and will be completed in time for the opening of school.

N. O. NELSON COMPANY TO SELL DOWNTOWN BUILDING

The N. O. Nelson Manufacturing Co. has decided to sell its eight-story and basement building at the southeast corner of Tenth and Chestnut streets and erect a building at the present warehouse site at Boyle and Duncan avenues.

When the property on Tenth street is disposed of a combination office, display and warehouse building containing 150,000 square feet, will be erected. It will have a loading platform 260 feet long and parking space under shelter for 150 automobiles.

What of YOUR Job?

Progressive contractors and builders—not only in St. Louis, but everywhere—are finding in Pumicite the perfect alloy for Portland cement concrete. Garage floors need it—because it makes a more dense concrete, insuring more water and oil proof surfaces—and concrete work with Pumicite is beautiful—no hair checks—no craze—a permanent and dense surface.

Mix one bag of Pumicite (average proper mix) to one yard of Portland cement concrete of average approved strength, and you will find it adds strength—workability—appearance and quality to your job.

"Pumicite Perfects Concrete"—and at no additional cost, because Pumicite replaces an equal volume of cement.

Many amateur builders as well as contractors, have found that Pumicite helps them to get better results. No experience is needed to use it. Your dealer can supply you—or phone The Pumicite Co. CEntral 2940-2941.

Stone Combines Both Ruggedness and Beauty

An Advertising Force Often Used to Create Exceptional Satisfaction in the Mind of the Builder.

By G. A. SINCLAIR,
Sinclair Marble and Stone Co.

Built into every architectural creation is a certain measure of advertising force. In most cases this force determines the extent of the future business brought to the office of the architect.

The best points of internal construction are often concealed from the casual observer, while the external physical appearance of the work stands for all time as an instrument for the passing of judgment. Whenever the new or unusual can be combined with the practical it is obviously to the architect's advantage to make full use of it.

Stone can often be employed as a means of creating exceptional satisfaction in the mind of a client, and whenever used always stands as a reflector of credit, advertising the architect who has employed it. It is not only practical but beautiful as well. It is to your advantage to become more closely acquainted with its features.

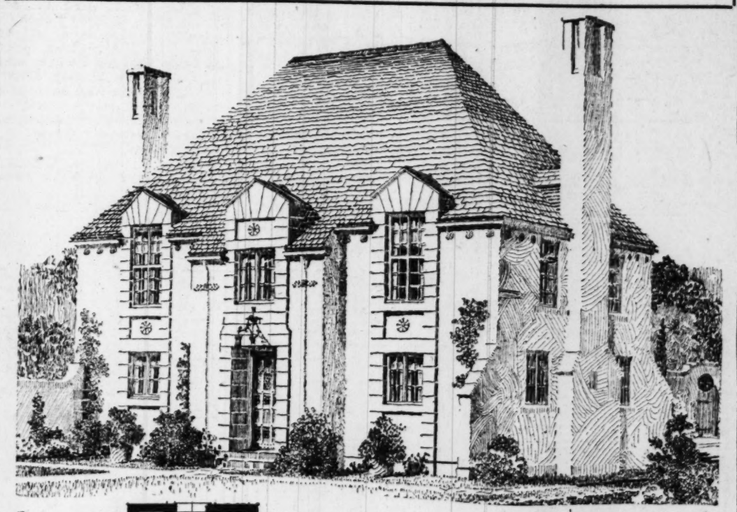
Stone combines in the greatest measure both ruggedness and beauty. Its crushing strength exceeds that of granite, being more than 22,000 pounds per square inch. Its great density prevents the absorption of moisture, making it impervious to all weather conditions. Its lasting qualities have been proven beyond question through years of service.

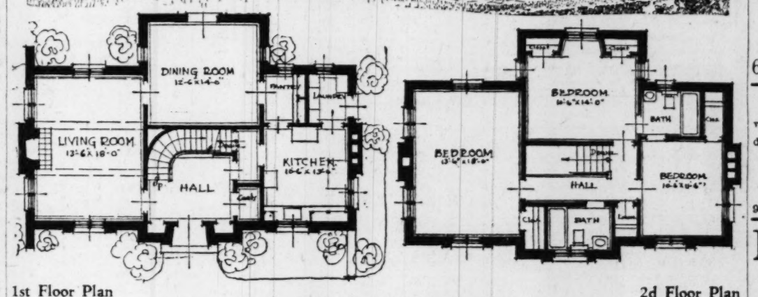
Flagstone walks contribute much to the beauty and distinction of the garden or landscape in which they are set. They must, however, not only look well but possess nonskid and nonabsorbent features as well.

Stone used for flagging must meet unusual conditions. Bits of foliage, earth, insect life, lodge on its surface. The nonskid surface is positive insurance against a slippery surface existing even under these conditions. No matter how long it remains in service it always retains this rough nonporous surface. Irregularity of shape and variety of shading combine to furnish the utmost in light and shadow effects. It is the permanent choice of landscape authorities wherever it is known.

FOR FURTHUR INFORMATION REGARDING THESE PLANS ADDRESS THE HOME BUILDER, POST-DISPATCH.

A Charming Symmetrical Home





1st Floor Plan — 2d Floor Plan

Klingensmith & Wilkins, Architects, Plan No. 6S-251.

For those who prefer the symmetrical type of home, this compact plan of simple construction offers all the usual things with enough difference to make it charming.

The plan contains a living room, dining room, kitchen, laundry, service pantry, a large stair hall on the first floor and three bedrooms and two baths with ample closet space on the second floor.

The walls are of hollow tile stuccoed and all quoins and ornaments are formed in the stucco. The roof is of thatch slate of even thickness but graduated in exposure. A wall extends to the street and back to the garage providing, besides service separation, a continuous line from street to garage, thereby increasing the lowness of appearance with apparent increase in size.

The interior of the house is finished throughout with oak sanded and not planed; this includes all doors. The floors, except those of the bathroom and service portions, are of wide oak planks. The walls throughout are finished in smooth plaster, papered except the dining room, which is paneled with wide oak boards, the joints of which are covered with a lath strip.

The usual electric refrigeration and gas incineration are, of course, provided. The heating is the warm air type with a blower fan and ozonater. It was the endeavor of the owner to have a home of dignity and repose without any stiffness or hardness of line or surface.

FACTS TO CONSIDER! When Buying Double Flats!

First: A new building will be practically free from expense for repairs for at least 3 years, also tax free, excepting the lot, for a period of several months. Will rent quickly, due to attractive new condition of exterior and interior; also, they will bring a higher rental for the same reason. Last, but most important, if they are located near great plants employing thousands of well-paid men. Think these facts over, then see 5647 to 51 St. Louis Avenue and 3339 to 53 Clara Av.; you will be surprised how easily you can own a fine double, and each feature above is fully covered.

VACANT LOTS AND NOT THE IMPROVEMENTS ON LOTS ENHANCE IN VALUE AS DEVELOPMENT PROGRESSES. THE VALUE OF A BUILDING DECLINES WITH AGE. BUT LAND ENHANCES. THE RISE IN VALUE OF THE LAND USUALLY OFFSETS THE DECLINE IN VALUE OF THE BUILDING. THE INVESTMENT IN VACANT LOTS IS SMALL, USUALLY ONE-FOURTH OF THE PURCHASE PRICE, HENCE A SMALL ADVANCE PER FOOT IS A BIG PROFIT ON THE INVESTMENT. IMPROVED LOTS ARE SCARCE AND ARE GETTING SCARCER EACH DAY AS THE SUPPLY IS BEING USED.
THERE IS NO BIGGER DEVELOPMENT THAN THE SOUTHWEST DISTRICT. BIG MONEY HAS BEEN MADE THERE, IS BEING MADE AND WILL BE MADE IN THE NEAR FUTURE.
WHY NOT SPECULATE WITH SAFEMENT OF RISK IN BUYING A LOT IN SOUTHWEST PARK. LET US SHOW YOU HOW TO MAKE A MONEY SAVING AND QUICKLY. A MONEY-MAKING SALE IS NOW IN PROGRESS. Used Car Mistakes Are Costly

If the used car you buy should prove unsatisfactory (which sometimes happens even when intentions are the best) it is a serious matter for the purchaser.

You can make certain that such an unpleasant and expensive mistake cannot happen to you by buying your car from

HUDSON-FRAMPTON MOTOR CAR CO.

We sell each used car with the distinct agreement that if unsatisfactory (the buyer is sole judge) it may be returned to us any time within 5 days, and full amount credited on any new or used car in stock.

Why Buy a Used Car Where You Cannot Get This Advantage? Our Prices Are Honest. Our Assortment Complete.

Our large volume of business keeps our stock fresh and furnishes a wide variety to select from. Here are a few examples:

PARLEY ON FEDERAL BUILDING FOR CITY

John A. Laird, Representing Chamber of Commerce, Discusses Project With Officials.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—John A. Laird, as representative of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, conferred today and yesterday with members of Congress and Government officials regarding the proposed $3,825,000 Federal building in St. Louis, flood control legislation and the proposed removal of the artillery school of fire from Fort Sill, Ok., to Fort Bragg, N. C.

Carl T. Schuneman, assistant secretary of the Treasury in charge of public buildings, told Laird today that the Government intended to acquire a site for the proposed building as soon as Congress appropriated the necessary funds. Last season $500,000 was appropriated for this purpose and recently H. M. Lord, director of the budget, recommended the appropriation of an additional $600,000. After a site has been acquired, the Government will ask for bids on its properties at Eighth and Olive streets, Fourth and Chestnut streets and Third and Olive streets. The value of these properties has been estimated at more than $5,000,000.

Laird said that he was assured by Schuneman that St. Louis would eventually get public buildings worth approximately this amount. In addition to the proposed Federal Building, the Government expects to build a $1,000,000 addition to the central postoffice at Eighteenth and Walnut streets, Laird said. He added that he did not insist on a dollar for dollar exchange at this time because he was not certain that the present properties would bring more than $5,000,000.

Laird, a Colonel of Organized reserves, said that at the War Department he was told that there was small prospect of immediate removal of the artillery school of fire from Fort Sill to Fort Bragg. Army officers stated, he said, that at present Fort Bragg did not have adequate housing facilities for the troops now stationed there.

Members of the Oklahoma delegation in the House have insisted that the proposed removal of the school was occasioned by the failure of Oklahomans to furnish Major-General Charles P. Summerall, Chief of the General Staff, with a Pullman car last summer when he made an inspection of the Oklahoma fort. The War Department officials have stated that the removal has been considered from time to time on the ground that the North Carolina fort offered the better facilities for all types of arms.

Will Make Protest Against $3,800,000 Appropriation.

Harold M. Bixby, chairman of the board of the Chamber of Commerce, announced yesterday that a delegation would go to Washington, whenever Missouri Representatives in Congress think the time is propitious, to protest against the $3,800,000 proposed Federal building appropriation.

Bixby declared that at least as much as is realized from the proposed sale of Federal property here should be put back into the new building, so that it will measure up to the standard set in recent office and municipal building construction in St. Louis.

DISPUTES ROBISON TESTIMONY

Admiral Latimer Writes He Did Not Play Poker With Sinclair.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Admiral J. L. Latimer, commandant of the Philadelphia Navy Yard, denied today that he played poker at a dinner with Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, in 1922, as testified by Capt. J. K. Robison, retired, defense witness in the oil man's trial in connection with the Teapot Dome lease.

In a letter to Secretary Wilbur made public at the Navy Department today, Admiral Latimer said that he had never attended a dinner given by Sinclair or one at which Sinclair was present. He declared he had never played poker with Sinclair or a game at which Sinclair was present. The Admiral said he had never met That was in the fall of 1924 when he was ordered to Cheyenne as a witness at the Teapot trial there in the place of Secretary of the Navy.

Reminiscences of Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr.

The writer of this extraordinary series tells of the days when the incomparable Teddy, himself, organized the activities of his own home.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., who went to Sagamore Hill at Oyster Bay as a young bride, has a hundred amusing stories to tell of her difficulty in growing accustomed to the strenuous Roosevelt life.

Mrs. Roosevelt turns the searchlight of her wonderful memory upon the crowded, colorful days of the Roosevelt home. Real human interest stories about this intensely human family—told for the first time.

"MY AUNT ALICE"

Mrs. Roosevelt, in the second installment of the series, tells an amusing story of how her Aunt Alice was swept along by circumstances, and even then emerged with flying, if false, colors.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

E. G.—The Post-Dispatch issues accident insurance policies at present. Call in Circulation Department.

BOB.—The original spelling of the name of General Pershing was Pfoerschin. He is a descendant of one Frederick Pfoerschin, an Alsatian, who emigrated to the United States where the name became Pershing.

R. R. R.—Your questions may be answered by the receiver for the institution. See article in Post-Dispatch of February 18 last, page 12, column 4.

E. B. R.—The total eclipse of the sun May 19 will be visible as partial in South Africa, southern end of South America, and South Atlantic Ocean. There is no eclipse due on June 2, the three for 1928 being May 19, June 17 and November 12. They will not be visible generally in the United States.

E. L. B.—January 22, 1928, was the last date of publication of directions for mounting colored pictures of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine. You may see the copy at the public library, or buy it by writing the Circulation Department.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

D. N. T.—You can sue to recover your money. Consult a lawyer.

I AM GRATEFUL.—You can sue the storage company, and the surety on their bond. Consult a lawyer.

E. KA.—You would be entitled to a reasonable amount for your clothes and other expenses, but it cannot be said here what a reasonable amount is. You might consult a lawyer if your husband refuses to act reasonably.

VERY ANXIOUS.—The creditor could refuse to accept partial payments, and could sue for the whole amount due, if he wanted to do this. (2) He could send a collector if he wanted to.

R. K. S.(1) You are not responsible for the rain water which drains onto land of your neighbor. If he wants to keep it off his land he will

Amazing New Glass Cleaner Offers $15 A DAY COMMISSION

Here's an absolutely new money-maker—Jiffy Glass Cleaner. You can make $50 a week spare time—$100 a week full time—just demonstrating and helping me handle orders in your territory. Nothing else like it. Easily and instantly cleans windows, mirrors, windshields, showcases, etc., without water, soap or chamois.

Anyone, Anywhere Can Earn Big Money

All you do is demonstrate to housewives, auto owners, storekeepers, garages, etc., and take orders. I don't sell dealers. So you and you alone get the commission on all business from your locality. It's fun to demonstrate. Just moisten a cloth with Jiffy Glass Cleaner, rub over a window and polish with a dry cloth. Instantly removes every trace of dirt, grease and grime without streaking. And windows stay clean twice as long.

Albers Made $47 in One Day!

He says $100 a week is easy for him. Men and women everywhere are earning amazing commissions with Jiffy and my 350 per cent profit plan. Vaughan, Va., made $125 a week; Van Allen, Ill., better than $100 a week; Mrs. Hodges, N. Y., $18 to $20 a day; H. C. Hanson, N. Dak., $75 a week in spare time. You can do as well as any of them.

SEND NO MONEY

I'll prove you can make $50 to $100 a week without capital, training or experience. I furnish everything. Tell you just what to do and say in that fascinating words. You don't risk a penny. And you have a chance to double or triple your present earnings. Get the facts without delay. Mail coupon NOW!

DIVORCED from Wife 10 Years His Senior, WEDS ANOTHER 30 Years His Junior

The Secret Romance of Josef Hofmann, the Internationally Famous Pianist, and His Youthful Pupil.

Josef Hofmann.

The second Mrs. Hofmann.

Anton Hofmann, 3-year-old son of Josef Hofmann by his second marriage.

Josef Hofmann, his first wife and daughter, Josefa.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK CITY.

TONGUES are still wagging furiously over the latest surprise furnished by Josef Hofmann, world-famous pianist and for many years a prominent figure in exclusive circles of American society. For Hofmann has just made public the fact that he and Mrs. Marie Eustis Hofmann have been secretly divorced for the last four years. This announcement in itself was enough to surprise the general public, which prides itself on keeping informed of every move its celebrities make. But surprise in this case grew to astonishment when it was further announced that for four years Hofmann, who is 52 years old, has been secretly married to one of his piano students, 31 years his junior, and that they have a son whose existence has not even been auspected, although the child is now more than three years old.

The romance which has culminated in this startling succession of events began five years ago at a party given by Alexander Lambert, fashionable teacher of piano, at his studio on West Ninety-first street. Lambert and Hofmann have been friends for many years and the great pianist casually dropped into his friend's studio while the party was in progress. Among the guests present was Miss Betty Short, a young lass not quite 17, who had come to New York from her home in San Francisco to study under Lambert. A pale girl with piercing black eyes and dark hair, she immediately attracted Hofmann's attention. And soon the great virtuoso and the young piano student were engaged in animated conversation, as if they had been friends for years. As time was to reveal, it was one of those rare cases of love at first sight. Soon after that, Miss Short changed music teachers and began to take piano lessons from Hofmann, but as Miss Short was generally regarded as a very talented pianist and since Hofmann gave lessons to a number of promising musicians, nothing was thought of it. As far as the public was concerned, Hofmann and Miss Short continued to remain simply teacher and pupil to one another. And even though in the last few years they have been seen together often at parties and social functions, all but their most intimate associates assumed that it was simply their common interest in music that brought them together. It was not until the recent startling announcement was made that it became known that the pale young woman with the Madonna-like face and quiet, dignified manner who had been studying with the famous Josef Hofmann for four years was in reality Mrs. Josef Hofmann the second.

FOR in the interval between their meeting and the recent announcement of their secret marriage and parenthood there took place an intense drama of love, quietly enacted far from the public view. It was not long after their first meeting that Hofmann and Miss Short realized that they were deeply in love with each other. It was a difficult situation. Hofmann was married and had been for 20 years. He had a daughter, Josefa, three years older than Miss Short. Nevertheless, he told his wife of his infatuation and asked for a divorce. At first, it is said, she refused to consider the idea. But she must have consented soon, because in 1924, a year after Miss Short and Hofmann had met, Hofmann took a suite at the Latham Hotel, on Fifth avenue, where Miss Short and her mother were living. And apparently Hofmann and Miss Short were married immediately thereafter, for in less than a year they were the parents of a son, named Anton, after Hofmann's own teacher, the famous pianist, Anton Rubinstein.

THIS unexpected announcement of his secret divorce and marriage is not the first time that Hofmann has proved himself a surprise to the American public. The first time he made himself the subject of excited comment and gossip in musical and social circles was in 1887, when he made his New York debut as a pianist at the age of 10. He was a child prodigy and the masterly manner in which he dispatched the most difficult compositions created a sensation. He was hailed as the genius he was, and concert halls were packed just as often as he appeared in public. In fact, the demand for recitals by the prodigy was so great that he was sometimes forced to give as many as four public performances in 48 hours, and it soon became apparent that a nervous collapse awaited him if he maintained that killing pace. His father, Casimir Hofmann, who had been a music teacher and opera conductor in Warsaw, Poland, where Josef was born, accompanied the child to this country. On coming to New York he had unwisely made a contract with a musical bureau on his son's behalf, and because of this contract was unable to call a halt to the performances, which obviously were threatening the boy's health.

Finally, in 1888, the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children stepped in and brought charges against the youngster, seeking to have him lessen the frequency of his public appearances until he became older and stronger. While the court hearing was pending, the president of the society told Hofmann that a wealthy man, who wished to keep his identity secret, wanted to make him a gift of $50,000, on condition that the young artist would use it for further study and development of his great talents.

The offer was accepted and Hofmann returned to Europe, where for 10 years he studied under the great Anton Rubinstein. The wealthy American who had saved Hofmann's health, thus making the musician's future career possible, turned out to be the late Alfred Corning Clark. In later years Clark and Hofmann met several times, but Clark never let it become known that he had been the anonymous benefactor, and Hofmann wasn't able to discover that fact until after Clark's death.

AT THE end of his period of study with Rubinstein, Hofmann again appeared in public, but this time he was a fully matured artist, with completely developed talents and robust health. His concert tours of Europe and America became veritable progresses of triumph. In the meantime, things were happening in America which were later to play an important part in his life.

For instance, in 1898 a very fashionable wedding took place in Washington, D. C. A Miss Marie Eustis was married to her first cousin, George Peabody Eustis. She was the niece of United States Senator James Eustis, later Ambassador to France. She was very wealthy and socially prominent. Three years later she divorced her husband and for the following few years devoted herself to the luxurious life of a wealthy and much admired society woman. She had an estate at Aiken, South Carolina, a home at Newport and one at Westbury, Long Island. In 1904 she met Hofmann at a party given at the home of wealthy friends on Long Island. Hofmann was then 28 years old and was being enthusiastically received by such socially prominent people as the Whitneys and the Mackays. Mrs. Eustis and the young pianist became devoted to one another immediately, but their friends thought it was simply a passing attachment. For one thing, Mrs. Eustis was almost 10 years older than Hofmann. Furthermore, she was rumored to be engaged to a prominent society man, and formal announcement of the engagement was expected momentarily. The friendship between Hofmann and Mrs. Eustis continued and the following summer he was her constant escort abroad. Then in November, 1905, their engagement was formally announced. And a short time later it was made known that they had already been married for several weeks when they announced their engagement. Thus, Hofmann's recent secret marriage seems to have been something of a repetition of his first. In due time a daughter was born to them and they lived together for the following 20 years, until Hofmann's second romance led to their divorce.

WHEN Hofmann's secret divorce and marriage were announced he found himself besieged by inquisitive reporters and friends, so he and his young wife hurriedly left New York to find quiet in some retreat in the country. However, to act as their official spokesman they left their close friend, Dagmar Godowsky, movie star and daughter of the pianist, Leopold Godowsky. She is very enthusiastic about Hofmann's romantic marriage and thinks that it will be a very happy one.

"Betty's romance with Peppy—that's what we call Josef—was one of the loveliest things that has ever happened," she says. "She is a wonderful woman. There's nothing I can say that will describe her adequately. And who could help but fall in love with Peppy? He is such a genius—not a musician alone—but a wonderful inventor, a mechanic and a chemist. Not many people know that he has become very wealthy from his inventions alone. He was the inventor of the Hofmann air springs for automobiles that everyone knows about, but very few know it was a musician who invented them. He invented a motor for automobiles at one time, but I don't know if it was ever adopted. He has devoted a great deal of study to chemistry and electricity. He is so versatile! So brilliant! Such a mind! Isn't it entirely natural that Betty should fall in love with him? And if you knew her you would not be surprised that he should have come to love her.

"THE first Mrs. Hofmann saw what a beautiful love affair it was," continued Miss Godowsky, "and placed no obstacles in their way. She really acted like a civilized woman should act under such circumstances. I admire her tremendously for it. From the very start she realized that Mr. Hofmann was deeply in love with Miss Short and that Miss Short loved him deeply. That was all there was to it. How the divorce was arranged I don't know, but I know it was done as quietly as possible. Betty and Peppy were married a few days later."

Hofmann last year was made director of the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia and is said to receive an annual salary of $100,000 for his work there. He is now building a beautiful home for his second wife in Merion, Pennsylvania, the exclusive residential suburb of Philadelphia. The new home will be equipped with a large workshop and laboratory where Hofmann will find diversion from his teaching at the institute and his concert engagements by working on various inventions in which he is interested.

The Strange Mr. Warren's "QUESTIONNAIRE COURTSHIP" and His Fateful Gamble With Death

Under a Fifteen-Year Sentence for Murder, He Took a Second Trial and Was Given the Extreme Penalty.

KANSAS CITY, Missouri.

ROSCOE FRANKLIN WARREN sat on trial for his life. The evidence was in, the prosecutors and the defense attorney had completed their arguments, the jury had retired. The defendant, the lawyers, the Judge and a few spectators waited in the courtroom. It was nearing midnight on Saturday, March 31.

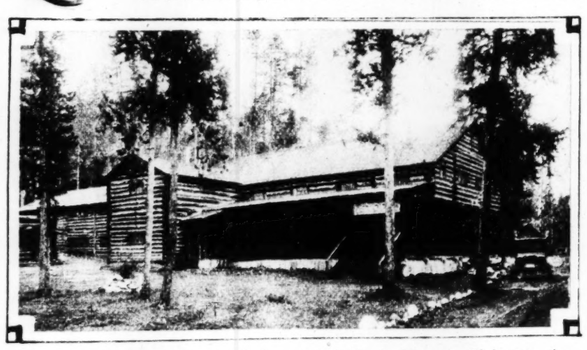
"I'll bet you a new hat," said the Sheriff to Ira B. McLaughlin, defense attorney, "that you get an acquittal."

McLaughlin grinned. "All right," he said, "I'll take your bet, and hope I lose."

They waited on.

It was the second trial for Warren, charged with the murder of John C. Deskin, his best friend. Nearly three years earlier he had been found guilty of second-degree murder and sentenced to 15 years in the penitentiary. He had appealed. The Supreme Court had reversed the conviction on a showing that important defense evidence had been excluded by the trial court.

This time no evidence had been excluded. The prosecutors, after presenting the State's case briefly and simply, had sat back and allowed the defense to have its own way. And the defense, pleading insanity and self-defense, had availed itself of the opportunity. The case was in capable hands, too. Ira B. McLaughlin, noted as one of the best criminal lawyers in the west, with 25 acquittals and two compromises out of 29 murder cases, had handled it in expert style. The testimony he adduced both as to insanity and self-defense was convincing. But his case had one intangible weakness which he had found particularly hard to offset. That was a widespread prejudice against Warren—a prejudice traceable to his effeminate dress and manner and to his recent marriage. While at liberty under appeal bond, Warren, then 49 years old, had married his fourth wife, Dorothy DeCroff, a 19-year-old miss just out of high school. There prevailed a general impression that he had taken advantage of youth and inexperience to make this young girl the wife of a convict facing 15 years in the penitentiary. The public resented it. Had Warren permitted the attorney to bring out his and the girl's own story of the romance, that impression might have been removed. But Warren would not permit it. It might embarrass his wife. The story of that romance must be withheld at all costs, he said, and it was.



Pahaska Tepee, near Yellowstone Park, one of the Rocky Mountain Club properties.

THE young wife, deeply devoted to her convict-husband, sat with him in court that night awaiting the verdict which she hoped would set him free. At six minutes before midnight, Judge Ben Terte, having given up hope of a verdict that night, sent a deputy sheriff to conduct the jurors to a hotel, where they would be locked up until Monday morning. He returned with word that the verdict had been reached and was being written out at that moment. An acquittal, everybody thought. Or possibly a manslaughter verdict at the worst.

The jurors filed in. The foreman presented a slip of paper to the Judge. The Judge glanced at it and almost fell out of his chair. He recovered and scrutinized it closely. He recoiled and looked helplessly at the lawyers. Finally, he passed it on to the clerk.

"Read the verdict, Mr. Clerk," he said.

"We, the jury," read the clerk, "find the defendant guilty of first-degree murder as charged in the information and fix the penalty at death by hanging."

During the next few moments, Warren, the nervous wreck who had sobbed and raved and gesticulated wildly at his first trial, was the most composed person in the room. Mrs. Warren swooned. McLaughlin stood speechless. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney John V. Hill was thunderstruck. He hadn't even asked for a first-degree verdict, to say nothing of a death penalty. The Judge at length recovered sufficiently to dismiss the jury and order the Sheriff to take charge of the prisoner. Thus ended that extraordinary trial. Roscoe Warren, the fashion-plate rough rider, who had appealed from a 15-year sentence, had, with more favorable evidence, got the rope. The girl who, by marrying him, had bet her happiness on an acquittal, had lost and was a prospective gallows widow. It was a most unusual upset of jury "form."

As full testimony concerning the circumstances of his marriage might have presented the defendant in a more favorable light before the jury, his quaint romance now acquires new significance, and his action in sparing his wife embarrassment at the risk of his own neck takes on a flavor of self-sacrifice and knightly honor, characteristics which, it may be said, cropped out frequently in the career of this eccentric, who seems to be a strange cross between a dandified French Count and a Rooseveltian cowboy.

The facts about that romance have not been published until now. The story was shared only by Warren, his wife and his attorney until Mrs. Warren herself related it to me recently in the attorney's office. She told it then only after spending two hours at the jail persuading her husband to consent to its release.

The marriage followed what evidently was one of the queerest courtships on record. It was, in a way, a "questionnaire courtship," in which each laid the cards on the table. The two were married three weeks after they had become acquainted through a "blind" want ad carried under the "personal" classification in the Kansas City Star.

The situation preceding the love affair was this: In 1922, following the death of his third wife, Warren, then general agent for a life insurance company here, organized and promoted the Mutual Rocky Mountain Club. It was an outing club for Masons and their families and numbered among its 400 members many prominent business men of this and other cities. Among its properties was the famous Pahaska Tepee, Buffalo Bill's old hunting lodge in the Shoshone National Forest, at the eastern gateway of Yellowstone Park.

A lover of outdoor life, Warren plunged heart and soul into his new venture. He invested all the money he had and all that he could raise. He even waived his own salary as manager for the first year in order to help the club get on its feet. And under his care it prospered. But Warren, despite his devotion and generosity, was not a popular manager. He was peculiar. Acquaintances regarded him as "cracked." His character presented an everlasting conflict. While big-game hunting and mountain climbing were his chief hobbies, he was intensely vain and fastidiously fond of fancy dress. Though he wore a wide-brimmed "he man" hat, his suits were dainty affairs trimmed with braid, and he had his shoes made with tops of cloth to match his trousers. He would spend hours practicing with a revolver and was an expert marksman, but he would spend other hours girlishly fingering trinkets of bric-a-brac and would send to New York if necessary for shoe buttons of the proper shade. He even had suits made to match his horse, and often provoked the scorn of his fellows by appearing in patent leather boots with high, ladylike heels. He prided himself upon his dancing, too, and is said once to have paid Irene Castle $1000 for 10 lessons.

HIS associates in the management of the club, it appears, soon determined to get rid of him. At various times he was accused of misconduct with women—charges which he invariably disproved. Indeed, his conduct with women appears to have been singularly above reproach, especially in view of the fact that he attracted women. Then there were charges of mismanagement and misappropriation of funds. Evidence was introduced at the trial to show that the trustees had "framed" embezzlement charges to force him out. At any rate, he was removed, and on the day of his ousting he entered a meeting of the trustees, killed Deskin and fired a bullet through his own body, a card case deflecting the shot and saving his life. That was on October 13, 1924. He recovered and after several months in jail was tried and given the 15-year sentence.

Immediately after his release on appeal bond in September, 1925, Warren set about to market certain articles of camping equipment he had devised and also to organize another club in competition with the first one. To carry on this work he needed an assistant—a young woman who could handle his correspondence and also serve as a hostess in the mountain resort. So on November 15, 1925, there appeared in the Kansas City Star this "personal" advertisement, which ran for three days and then reappeared on November 20 with minor changes. It read:

> WANTED—Young lady as secretary and dancing partner, brunette, 5 feet 2, refined, educated, willing to learn, accustomed to good society, able to make classy appearance in evening gown. Describe yourself fully and frankly regarding qualifications. Address 744A Star.

Warren got more than 200 answers to that ad. The applications literally swamped him, so in order to give everybody a chance and at the same time make a wise selection himself, he rented an office in a building housing a dancing school and devoted the next few days to study of his applicants.

Not content with the descriptions supplied in response to the "fully and frankly" clause in his ad, he required applicants to appear personally and fill out an exhaustive questionnaire, giving elaborate details as to their height, weight, age, complexion, color of hair and eyes, neatness, education and even their faults and defects as they saw them. He wanted full information about their business experience, their tastes and habits, their interest and training in art, science and music. He wanted particularly to know what amusements they liked and laid special emphasis on dancing and outdoor recreation. About the only thing he didn't ask them was their real names. They gave assumed names and so did he. This done, he spent two or three more days going over the questionnaires, some of which were eight or ten pages long.

Finally, out of the 200 or so, he selected about 30 promising applicants and had them appear again. This time he took them in turn on the dance floor and tested them. That cut the field to about ten; and Dorothy DeCroff was among the survivors.

MISS DeCROFF made a favorable impression from the start. She had been graduated from Westport High School and had taken a lively interest in art. She was also an expert swimmer and a good dancer. Moreover, with her dark hair and eyes and her quiet, dignified manner, she was just the type the fastidious Mr. Warren wanted. So, after studying her seven-page questionnaire, he said he would like to have a conference with her.

That conference broke all records for length and variety of topics discussed. It lasted for 13 hours, with interruptions only for meals, and when it ended, Dorothy DeCroff had the job. She had the job a long time before it ended, but by the time it had got into the second hour the two were so much interested in each other they couldn't quit talking.

Early in the session, both decided they had met somewhere before, and finally determined it was at an art exhibit. Then they told their real names, and Warren told the girl his life history, with no attempt to conceal its darker chapters. He told her of his trouble and the 15-year sentence he faced. He told her of his three marriages, of his two grown sons, of his hereditary nervous infirmity, his frequent illness, of his tastes and habits regarded by others as peculiar. Whatever else may be said or believed about Roscoe Warren, there is his wife's testimony that he was honest. She says she believes she got to know him better during that one conference than many wives get to know their husbands in a lifetime. And whatever impression may have got abroad as to his taking advantage of her, there is her declaration that he was then and afterward the most honorable of men.

WARREN and his new secretary were together frequently after that, but she says their interests were chiefly business for several days. There had been no hint of a romance until about a week after their meeting, when Warren suggested that maybe it would be a good idea for them to get married if she were willing to take a chance with him on the Supreme Court's action. His business, he said, would compel them to travel a great deal and he thought it might cause her embarrassment. She could think it over. She says that by this time she was very fond of him, as he seemed to be of her, and she was willing to take the chance. For a week, then, he paid her ardent court and on December 7, against the opposition of her parents and other relatives, they rented a car, drove to Olathe, Kansas, and were married in the local "Cupid's Parlor."

Olathe is only about 20 miles away, an easy hour's drive, but this pair spent seven hours on the journey. About every mile, Mrs. Warren relates, Warren would stop, remind her of all the trouble he faced and ask her if she didn't want to back out while there yet was time. Repeatedly he urged her to think it over carefully, and each time she told him she had already thought it over carefully and wanted to go through with it. So they did and from that time they were never separated until Warren was locked up in the Jackson County Jail here following his second trial and conviction. He declares her devotion surpassed belief and that he would have died long ago but for her nursing. He has followed her like a pet dog.

As for her, she asserts she has never regretted her step for a moment and would do the same thing again under similar circumstances. Even with a death penalty hanging over him, she declares, she would rather have Warren than any other man she ever knew and intends to stick to him to the last. Almost daily she visits the jail with parcels of food or bedding.

A New Guide Book for "IGNORANT PARENTS"

And Most of Them Are, Says Dr. John B. Watson, the Behaviorist Psychologist, Who Outlines a Modern Code for Raising Children.

Don't "punish" the child—use corrective disciplinary measures at the time of an act's commission.

A FEW OF DR. WATSON'S "DON'TS" FOR DOTING PARENTS.

Don't let the child sleep in the same room with anyone else.

Don't caress the child.

Don't dress the child in tight-fitting clothes.

Don't make the child dependent on you for amusement.

Say don't too often.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

THE man who would do away with parents if he could has written a book about it. This man is Dr. John B. Watson, founder of behaviorist psychology, and he makes the flat statement that parents, as a class, know nothing about rearing their children.

This book is called "Psychological Care of Infant and Child," and it is his hope, perhaps even his belief, that it will revolutionize the profession of parenthood. Moreover, he hopes that eventually it will be accepted as a companion piece to that slim volume that has served mothers for a generation or more as a Baedecker to infant interiors, Dr. Holt's "Care and Feeding of Infants."

First at Columbia University and later at Johns Hopkins, Dr. Watson developed his own theories of psychology, to which he gave the name "behaviorism." This is based on a belief that psychological theory must be supported by observation of behavior. It is dangerous to theorize about the way human beings act, Dr. Watson holds. You must first find out, accurately and scientifically, all there is to know about any particular human action.

And that is what he tried to do with babies. He is able to write with a certain conviction because he is the only person who has ever taken babies into the laboratory for purposes of psychological experiment. He has tested their reactions to innumerable things—to rabbits and even boa constrictors, to fire and loud noises, to rooms which are proof against the admittance of any light whatsoever and to lights flashed suddenly in their eyes—and he has come forth with a number of interesting conclusions, the majority of which are very startling to old-fashioned, sentimental fathers and mothers.

Testing children, ranging from birth to two or three years, to discover what they were afraid of, he found only two instinctive fears, he writes, that of loud, sudden noises and that of having support suddenly withdrawn. All others are the result of improper training, he maintains, not excepting those fears that parents have seemingly always taken for granted in their children—fear of the dark, fear of furry animals, fear of strangers and all the other old superstitions.

EVEN more radical is his conclusion concerning the supposed "instinctive love" of children for their parents. "Only one thing," he writes, "will bring out a love response in the child—stroking and touching its skin, lips and like nerve centers. It doesn't matter at first who strokes it. It will 'love' the stroker. This is the clay out of which all love—maternal, paternal, wifely or husbandly—is made. Hard to believe? But true." He goes even further:

"The behaviorists believe that there is nothing from within to develop. If you start with a healthy body, the right number of fingers and toes, eyes, and a few elementary movements that are present at birth, you do not need anything else in the way of raw material to make a man, be that man a genius, a cultured gentleman, a rowdy or a thug."

Dr. Watson's experiments with babies and his observations of adult behavior have led him to believe that the creation of "love responses" in children is, in general, harmful. He holds that the child who is surrounded by doting grownups is likely to be maimed mentally for life—made forever dependent on coddling and special privileges and prerogatives. He is firmly opposed to kissing and fondling children of any age whatever. ". . . it doesn't take much time to pet and kiss the baby," he writes. "You can do it when you pick him up from the crib after a nap, when you put him to bed, and especially after his bath. What more delectable to the mother than to kiss her chubby baby from head to feet after the bath. And it takes so little time!

"TO COME back to the mechanics of love and affection. Loves grow up in children just like fears. Loves are homemade, built in. In other words, loves are conditioned. You have everything at hand all day long for setting up conditioned love responses. The touch of the skin takes the place of the steel bar, the sight of the mother's face takes the place of the rabbit in the experiments with fear. The child sees the mother's face when she pets it. Soon, the mere sight of the mother's face calls out the love response. The touch of the skin is no longer necessary to call it out.

"A conditioned love response has been formed. Even if she pats the child in the dark, the sound of her voice as she croons soon comes to call out a love response. This is the psychological explanation of the child's joyous reactions to the sound of the mother's voice. So with her footsteps, the sight of the mother's clothes, of her photograph. All too soon the child gets shot through with too many of these love reactions. In addition the child gets honeycombed with love responses for the nurse, for the father and for any other constant attendant who fondles it. Love reactions soon dominate the child. It requires no instinct, no 'intelligence,' no 'reasoning' on the child's part for such responses to grow up."

All this shows up in later life as "invalidism," Dr. Watson says. "Mother fights our battles for us and stands between us and the things we try to avoid doing. But society doesn't do this. We have to stick to our jobs in commercial and professional life regardless of headaches, indigestion and other tiny ailments. There is no one there to baby us. If we cannot stand this treatment we have to go back home, where love and affection can again be commandeered."

This is what he advocates instead of coddling:

"There is a sensible way of treating children. Treat them as though they were young adults. Dress them, bathe them with care and circumspection. Let your behavior always be objective and kindly firm. Never hug and kiss them, never let them sit in your lap. If you must, kiss them once on the forehead when they say good night. Shake hands with them in the morning. Give them a pat on the head if they have made an extraordinarily good job of a difficult task. Try it out. In a week's time you will find how easy it is to be perfectly objective with your child and at the same time kindly. You will be utterly ashamed of the mawkish, sentimental way you have been handling it."

Dr. Watson has encountered much opposition to his theories, particularly those which touch mother love. "Once at the close of a lecture before parents," he writes, "a dear old lady got up and said, 'Thank God, my children are grown—and that I had a chance to enjoy them before I met you.'

"Doesn't she express here the weakness in our modern way of bringing up children?" he asks. "We have children to enjoy them. We need to express our love in some way. The honeymoon period doesn't last forever with all husbands and wives, and we eke it out in a way we think is harmless by loving our children to death. Isn't this especially true of the mother today? No matter how much she may love her husband, he is away all day; her heart is full of love which she must express in some way. She expresses it by showering love and kisses upon her children — and thinks the world should laud her for it. And it does."

It is just this which makes Dr. Watson particularly indignant. Sometimes, he says, he can't stand it to contemplate the gurgling mother and her responsive child. The sight is so sickening to him that he just has to go away until he cools off.

His views on the punishment of children are just as positive. "Such things as beating and expiation of offenses, so common now in our schools and homes, in the church, in our criminal law, in our judicial procedure, are relics of the Dark Ages," he writes.

But he adds, "I do not hesitate, when children begin reaching for objects not their own, to rap their fingers smartly with a pencil. To get the right psychological conditions, the parent should always apply this painful stimulus just at the moment the undesirable act is taking place. If you wait for father to spank when he gets home it is practically impossible to establish a conditioned negative response.

"We can sum it all up," he continues, "by saying that the behaviorist advocates the early building in of appropriate common sense negative reactions by the method of gently rapping the fingers or hand or other bodily part when the undesirable act is taking place, but as an objective experimental procedure—never as punishment."

AGAIN, as to fear, Dr. Watson makes no excuse for the parents. "I think I can take you into the laboratory," he writes, "and give you a clear picture of the kind of sledge hammers you are using in fashioning the fear life of your child.

"Our laboratory work shows the fear life of the newborn infant is simplicity itself. From birth the child will show fear whenever a sudden loud sound is made close to its head and whenever it is thrown off its balance, as for example, when its blanket is quickly jerked. No other fears are natural, all other fears are built in.

"And yet, think how complicated is the fear life of the three-year-old, the adolescent, the timid adult. Study the fears of the adults around you. I have seen a grown man cower and cringe and literally blanch with fear at the sight of a gun. I have seen a man stay all night in a hotel rather than enter his dark home when family and servants are away. I have seen a woman go into hysterics when a bat flew into a room. I have seen a child so torn by fear of moving animal toys that his whole organized life was in danger. Think of our fear of lightning, wind, railway trains, automobile accidents, ocean travel, burglars, fire, electricity and the thousands of other things that literally torture us even in this modern, supposedly secure life we lead. Think how peaceful, how calm, how efficient our lives would be if we were no more fearful than the newborn baby.

"Suppose I put before you a beautiful, healthy, well-formed baby nine months of age. On his mattress I place a rabbit. 'I know this baby's history; I knew he has never seen a rabbit before. He reaches for the rabbit first with one hand, then the other the moment his eyes light upon it. I replace the rabbit with a dog. He behaves the same way. I next show him a cat, then a pigeon. Each new object is gleefully handled. Afraid of furry objects? Not at all. But how about slimy objects? Surely he is afraid of fish and frogs. I hand him a gold fish, alive and squirming. I put a green frog in front of him. . . . Immediately he goes after it as vigorously as after the other members of the animal kingdom. But surely all ancient history tells us that man instinctively avoids the snake. Literature is full of references to the fact that man's natural enemy is the snake. Not so with our lusty nine-months infant. The boa constrictor I put in front of him—when young the most harmless of snakes—calls out the most vigorous of all those favorably friendly responses."

Through a whole series of experiments, many of them elaborate and complex, Dr. Watson took the babies at his disposal in clinics and laboratories. And thereby reached the conclusions he advances in his new book. He has much fault to find with the age-old traditions surrounding the rearing of children.

He believes the clothes that babies wear are altogether wrong and he makes the suggestion that a competent psychologist study the situation and design an entirely new type. The present clothing—dresses, petticoats, shirts, et cetera—is too tight and binding, too difficult to get on and off and does not permit the child enough freedom of movement, he maintains.

He criticizes the toys that are made for children. "Again nearly all the toys are made to be run only by an adult," he writes. "I tried the other day to buy a top which a 3-year-old could wind and release. Only after much effort did I discover it. A test in the shops shows hundreds of trains with springs so short that they will run only after an adult with effort winds them. Dumping wagons and carts galore are found that only the adult can work, airplanes and motor boats that mother has to call father in to operate. Here again we teach the child dependence."

Don't let the child have too many toys, he adds. And teach the child to make his own toys. This last he regards as particularly important, as tending to make the child independent. One of the longest chapters in the book is devoted to "What Shall I Tell My Child About Sex?" Dr. Watson believes that sex instruction cannot begin too young. He bitterly assails prudery in parents as giving rise to maimed and distorted minds.

DR. WATSON has now severed his academic connections. He has an executive position with a large New York advertising agency, but continues his psychological studies of children nevertheless.

For doubters, who raise the old question, "What can a man—and a professor at that—know about raising children?" it should be said that Dr. Watson has four children of his own, three boys and a girl, and he has given considerable time and energy to their upbringing. In telling other people how to train their children, he has not neglected his own.

But even his watchful eye is not sufficient to insure the ideal environment for his children. He relates that once while motoring with two of his sons, their mother, nurse and grandmother, he made a tabulation, without offering any word of interference, of the number of times the children were kissed. In the course of the two-hour ride, he says, one of the children was kissed 32 times—four times by his mother, eight times by the nurse and 20 times by the grandmother. And the other child was almost equally smothered in love.

THE literary world just doesn't know what to do with Trader Horn. For nearly a year it has been trying to place him in a definite category, but he is still at large. Trader Horn (not his real name) is the author and main character of the book, "Trader Horn," a tale of adventure on the Ivory Coast of Africa in the latter decades of the past century.

It was introduced last June and proved so absorbing a story to the reviewers that they hailed it and whooped it into a best seller. Many persons bought it and sat up all night before grate fires in their bathrobes, sucking the last drop of blood spilled across its pages and seeing in the house cat a man-eating tiger ready to spring.

But as morning came on the more sanguine felt the undeniable spell of the narrative dying away before the light of cold reality, of the kind that Western civilization knows, and the pagan goddesses, stolen rubies, piles of human skulls and the queer modes of death described in the book faded into the fireplace.

Some felt that they had been deceived, although they couldn't say just why, because the thing had had the semblance of truth as they had read it. Others felt that they had been listening to one whose imagination had daubed bright colors upon the ordinary background of an African trader. These arose and insisted that Trader Horn should share the niche in literature occupied by Baron von Munchausen. Trader Horn was interesting, yes, but so was the Baron. Let this man acknowledge literary kinship with Munchausen, who told his tales of odd adventure admittedly for the enjoyment they gave his guests and the fame they brought to his board.

WHO was "Trader Horn," anyway? Did he really exist? Well, replied his publishers, Simon and Schuster, he was an old African trader, now 75 years of age, who had, quite by chance, made the acquaintance of Ethelreda Lewis, an English woman and writer. Mrs. Lewis recognized the wealth of adventure that lay in the old man's brain and induced him to write of it. He had done this, and his own account, supplemented by Mrs. Lewis' recordings of his conversation, was what made up the book. There was the book. Let him, who would, read it without prejudice and deny its authenticity, if he cared.

Alfred Aloysius Smith (Trader Horn's real name) had come to Mrs. Lewis as a peddler of wire kitchen utensils—gridirons, toastforks and the like, as she sat upon her doorstep in her South African home, puzzling over chapter 14 of her next novel. He believes the clothes that babies ar are altogether wrong and he kes the suggestion that a compe- t psychologist study the situation d design an entirely new type. The sent clothing—dresses, petticoats, rts, et cetera—is too tight and bind- , too difficult to get on and and does not permit the child ough freedom of movement, he intains.

He criticizes the toys that are made r children. "Again nearly all the ys are made to be run only by an ult," he writes. "I tried the other y to buy a top which a 3-year-old uld wind and release. Dumping wagons and rts galore are found that only the ult can work, airplanes and motor ats that mother has to call father to operate. Here again we teach e child dependence."

Don't let the child have too many ys, he adds. And teach the child to ake his own toys. This last he re- rds as particularly important, as ding to make the child independent. e of the longest chapters in the ok is devoted to "What Shall I Tell Child About Sex?" Dr. Watson lieves that sex instruction cannot gin too young. He bitterly assails udery in parents as giving rise to aimed and distorted minds.

DR. WATSON has now severed his academic connections. He has an executive position with a rge New York advertising agency, t continues his psychological studies children nevertheless.

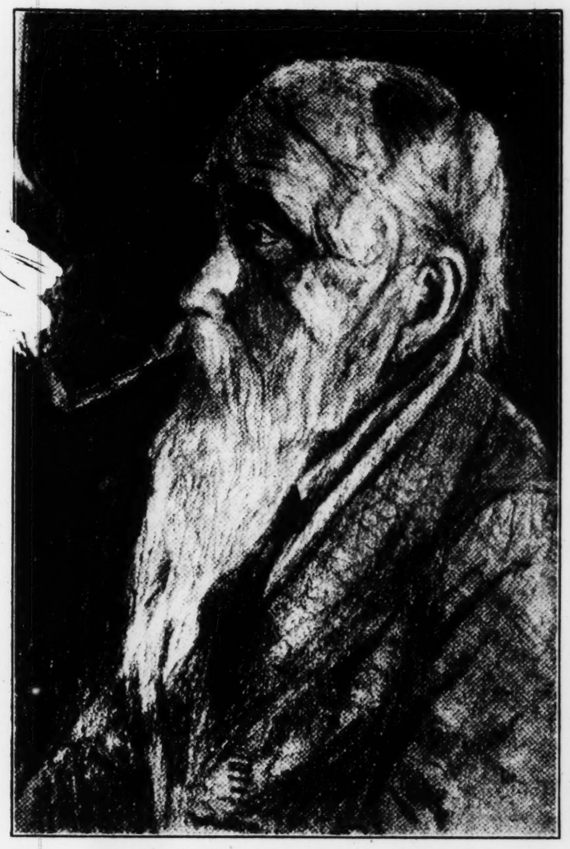
The Spell of TRADER HORN



Trader Horn.

Is He One of History's Most Picturesque Adventurers or Another Baron Munchausen? Opinions Differ— But Everybody Agrees That He Spins a Wonderful Yarn.

THE literary world just doesn't know what to do with Trader Horn. For nearly a year it has been trying to place him in a definite category, but he is still at large. Trader Horn (not his real name) is the author and main character of the book, "Trader Horn," a tale of adventure on the Ivory Coast of Africa in the latter decades of the past century.

It was introduced last June and proved so absorbing a story to the reviewers that they hailed it and whooped it into a best seller. Many persons bought it and sat up all night before grate fires in their bathrobes, sucking the last drop of blood spilled across its pages and seeing in the house cat a man-eating tiger ready to spring.

But as morning came on the more sanguine felt the undeniable spell of the narrative dying away before the light of cold reality, of the kind that Western civilization knows, and the pagan goddesses, stolen rubies, piles of human skulls and the queer modes of death described in the book faded into the fireplace.

Some felt that they had been deceived, although they couldn't say just why, because the thing had had the semblance of truth as they had read it. Others felt that they had been listening to one whose imagination had daubed bright colors upon the ordinary background of an African trader. These arose and insisted that Trader Horn should share the niche in literature occupied by Baron von Munchausen. Trader Horn was interesting, yes, but so was the Baron. Let this man acknowledge literary kinship with Munchausen, who told his tales of odd adventure admittedly for the enjoyment they gave his guests and the fame they brought to his board.

WHO was "Trader Horn," anyway? Did he really exist? Well, replied his publishers, Simon and Schuster, he was an old African trader, now 75 years of age, who had, quite by chance, made the acquaintance of Ethelreda Lewis, an English woman and writer. Mrs. Lewis recognized the wealth of adventure that lay in the old man's brain and induced him to write of it. He had done this, and his own account, supplemented by Mrs. Lewis' recordings of his conversation, was what made up the book. There was the book. Let him, who would, read it without prejudice and deny its authenticity, if he cared.

Alfred Aloysius Smith (Trader Horn's real name) had come to Mrs. Lewis as a peddler of wire kitchen utensils—gridirons, toastforks and the like, as she sat upon her doorstep in her South African home, puzzling over chapter 14 of her next novel. In the pleasant conversation that ensued between the two British subjects far from home, the old man's casual references to his wanderings and the philosophy which he wrought gracefully into epigrams so struck the fancy of the novelist that she straightway locked chapter 14 in a closet and induced the peddler to write his own story. She directed him, encouraged him, clothed and fed him and added her impressions of his conversation to each chapter he wrote, so that the reader not only saw the Trader from the inside but also from the vantage point of the observer, and an experienced one. Result, best seller.

But that, insisted the critics of the book, did not prove the truth of the tale. It merely established the legitimacy of its coming into being, showed that Mrs. Lewis was not humbugging the public. How was the reader to know that she had not been humbugged by the Trader? Wasn't he, after all, probably an old fraud? Unintentionally so, possibly; an old man in his dotage, fond of spinning yarns and not caring particularly whether they jibed with fact? These were queer things he told of cannibals and elephants and "josh houses," with their skulls and human goddesses.

THE Trader, meantime, had become a celebrity, spuriously or otherwise. He was a gentle, likable old fellow, and accepted the spotlight in England with perfect grace. Under its spell and the magic of good food and drink, he became even more articulate and when he opened his mouth it was to relate more queer facts about Africa which hadn't appeared in his book. He spouted them. There seemed to be no end. He must come to America, where his book had enjoyed its biggest sale, and tell about himself.

He descended upon New York last month. The reporters fell upon him as the ship docked and asked their questions. He answered them in kindly mood and said he was glad "to get back to the herd" after his years of wandering. He felt "a bit of a rogue elephant" (one that has been chased from the herd). He was just like the book, the press reported. He went to the suite of rooms engaged for him at the Fifth Avenue Hotel and exercised the prerogative of the professional baseball player of sleeping in his underwear amid the silken splendor. This did not hurt his popularity.

At teas he stood knee-deep in literary lights and society leaders and, unembarrassed, pulled up his pants legs to show the guests scars from some of his adventures.

"Rocks and spears, folks," he would exclaim, pointing to a leg deeply scarred below the knee. "The white doctors told me it was amputation, but I went to the witch doctors and here's my old leg—the original." No one thought at the time of the parallel of the man who proved the truth of his tale of the hand-to-hand encounter with the bear by pointing out the tree under which the battle took place.

New Yorkers were charmed with the Trader. His little African anecdotes were unlike anything else they had heard out of Africa. For instance, who ever knew that the baboon could only count to two? Or who even knew that a baboon could count? But the Trader said that it was this shortcoming in the baboon that enabled the Kaffir native, who could count to five, to outwit him. If two men went into a grain field to protect the grain from the baboon, the baboon would wait until the two men left and then leave the thicket, where it lay in hiding, and steal the grain. But if three men made up the guard, and one remained with a rifle, the baboon would wait until two had left and then run into the trap, because he couldn't count to three. He was easily shot down.

Then there was the hippopotamus that died of a broken heart. Strange? Not if you knew your Africa. This hippo was very devoted to the Negro boy who fed him.

This Negro boy would mix a corn mash and pack it tight into huge globules the size of cannonballs. At meal time the hippo would sit back gravely on his haunches and open his tremendous jaws. Between these, with the skill of a Herb Pennock, the boy would toss the balls of food. When he had had enough, the hippo would make known his satisfaction by closing his mouth.

One day the boy was laid low by a fever and in a short time died. Another Negro boy was given the job of feeding, but as soon as he entered the inclosure the hippo charged and he had to shin over a wall to escape. Globules of corn mash were made as of yore and tossed over the fence to the animal, but he refused to touch them and they lay decaying on the ground, as the hippo languished, growing thinner every day. Eventually, he died, a victim of love, according to the Trader, sorrowing for his dead companion.

Peter, a one-eyed lion, was especially dear to the Trader. He slept at the foot of the bed. Peter was just a young lion, but "you have no idea of the weight of a lion," explained the Trader, as he told of Peter's annoying habit of trying to crawl up and get his head on the pillow. What could a person do but kick him back to his place?

Tiring of this treatment, Peter one day disappeared into the jungle. Returning six months later, he strode into the clearing in company with a winsome lioness. The Trader tossed Peter a chicken and was annoyed to see him give it to his bride, which plainly showed who held first place in his affections. The visit lasted all day and seemed to be merely for the purpose of obtaining the blessing of the former master, for in the evening Peter and his bride departed into the jungle and were never seen again.

What yarns the old man spun! As a diver, he had descended into the hull of the sunken Empress of India, months after it had gone down with a load of treasure, and found the door of the ship's safe jammed upon the shin bone of the captain, who had tried to remove the treasure as the ship went down. He had seen at close quarters, too, the old blind shark and the pilot fish that guides him, like a blind man's dog. At various times he had been a trader of goods in Africa, purveyor of gorillas, prospector for gold and copper, leader of Latin-American filibustering expeditions, soldier of fortune, a Scotland Yard detective and newspaper reporter.

Trader Horn was prevailed upon to address America by radio in one of the gigantic "hook-ups." It was while he was entertaining thousands of radio listeners, in an easy colloquial manner, that the critics, recovering from the effect of his talks, began sharpshooting again.

FRANK H. VIZETELLY, well-known publisher, angrily questioned Trader Horn's statement that Henry M. Stanley, African explorer, "carried a loose trigger, Stanley did, and all the white men on his expedition perished." Vizetelly called it an "abominable falsehood," stating that he had personally talked to three members of Stanley's expedition.

N. Herrera de Hora, who has passed many years in Africa, called up by telephone during the radio talk and offered two criticisms. One was that gorillas did not inhabit the seacoast, as Trader Horn implied. The other was that Trader Horn's adventures with Nina T., the white girl who acted as a human goddess to cannibals, were a crude paraphrase of Rider Haggard's "Nada the Lily." The story of Nina T. runs throughout the book, "Trader Horn."

Reports from New York do not reveal what answers, if any, were made to these objections. The cagey old Trader, it seems, was too subtle to engage in debates. Purposely or not, he threw the hounds off the scent by cleverly drawing a pair of herrings across the trail. The herrings were sensational claims, casually made as he was re-embarking for England after a visit of two weeks. They were striking enough to make front-page clergymen turn several shades of envious green and toss their monkeys and machine guns out of the pulpit.

Herring No. 1 was a statement that he had once almost acquired possession of the original Ark of the Covenant and the Ten Commandments, and that some day he was going back and dicker with the Arab Chief that had them concealed.

Herring No. 2 concerned that famous lady, the Queen of Sheba.

"The Queen of Sheba was only a Malay lady out of Madagascar," he said. "She came out of Madagascar to make her mark on history. I got it from the natives. They knew all about her and told it to me straight. I found good solid proof of it on a totem pole I found later, and you may lay to that. It links up the old and the new. You have to go to Peru, then to India and back to Africa to tie it all up; but it's there, it's there. I told John Galsworthy about it and John Galsworthy said: 'Old man, you've got it.' And I have. My next book will be about that."

WHAT did Trader Horn do on the voyage home? Did he chuckle over the way he had bamboozled America? Did he figure how long his royalties on his first book, which average $4000 a week, would run? Or did he rack his memory for the thousands of thrilling incidents that lie buried there? Or are his stories pure and premeditated fiction? Or can it be that he thinks he is telling the truth and isn't carried away, weak old fellow, by the eagerness of men and women to hear his yarns?

Really, it doesn't matter a whole lot. Genuine or fake, historian or charlatan, Trader Horn has enriched modern literature with a series of tales that have the color of the Arabian Nights, and has carried hours of entertainment to the hearts that revel in books of adventure. One reading the book finds it hard to read deception into it. It is not until the volume has been laid aside and the reader walks forth into a world of electricity, political bombings, scientific progress and moral backsliding that he begins to look upon "Trader Horn" as outlandish, rather than merely bizarre. And he wonders if that mayn't be due to his environment.

Aye, Trader Horn is a picturesque old codger. Clear-eyed and erect for all his 75 years, with just a bit of talent for spinning a yarn. Fanciful stuff, mayhap, to a man who's never sated his wanderlust. Aye. But what do such fellers know of the stern realities of the Ivory Coast? And what is the smell of palm oil or the trumpeting of the rogue elephant as he sinks in the swamp to such as thinks gorillas run in herds and that cannibal women aren't virtuous? Or to him that marvels a circus elephant can stand four-footed on a barrel, when the elephant is one of the steadiest and surest climbers in the jungle? Such fellers would use white man's medicine in the jungle and probably refuse to be treated by a witch doctor, and die. Aye, die in their boots.

Well, anyway, regardless of who is right, Trader Horn tells a great story, and probably twice as many will pay $4 for his Queen of Sheba expose as did for his maiden effort. Aye, and not without reason. He can spin 'em, can Trader Horn.

TALES of REAL DOGS

Midnight Sun, the "Real-Life" Dog Detective.

By Albert Payson Terhune

DOWN near Jacksonville, Florida, lives Midnight Sun, a police dog whose exploits are worthy of Nick Carter, if not of Sherlock Holmes. He is a real life detective dog. When last I heard of him, he had forty-two captures to his credit, and still was going strong. Here is his story:

He was born in Ohio. But when he was four months old he was bought by a man named Gragg of Okmulgee, Oklahoma. Gragg was an oil expert. A series of local thefts had convinced him that the right kind of dog is the best guardian of any man's property. So he sent for this German shepherd (police dog) puppy, to train the youngster as a protector of his house and grounds.

Before he had had the pup a month, Gragg decided that this was the cleverest dog he had owned or known of, and that Midnight Sun was far too valuable to be wasted on mere watchdog duties.

When Midnight Sun arrived at Gragg's home, he was shut into a kennel yard, especially prepared for him, except at such times as Gragg had him out for exercise. One day Gragg went down town, after locking the puppy carefully into the yard. By the time he had traveled half a mile, Midnight Sun was trotting along beside him.

Thinking someone had let the pup out of the yard, Gragg took him back home. The yard door swung wide, but none of the household would admit having unlatched it. Gragg shut the puppy safely into it again and continued his downtown journey.

THIS time, in less than five minutes, Midnight Sun had joined him on the walk. Back to the house went Gragg. There members of his family had seen the pup work at the somewhat complicated latch until he got it undone. Then he had butted open the door and escaped.

A padlock replaced the latch. But, next day, as before, Midnight Sun got out of the yard and followed his master, catching the latter's trail with ease and tracking him in a wholly new direction.

Now even the cleverest dog cannot pick a new padlock. So Gragg was much puzzled. Back home he went, to find the yard door shut and the padlock still in place. He shut Midnight Sun in the yard again and posted one of the family at a window to watch the youngster.

Scarcely was Gragg out of sight when Midnight Sun took a running start and, with a scrambling leap, he had climbed the six-foot wire fence and dropped lightly to the ground on the other side, instantly scampering off, nose to earth, on his master's trail.

In short, no yard could hold him. But apart from that he was an ideal pal and guard, and he learned everything taught him with a bewildering quickness. Gragg was enough of a dog man to realize that this was one pup in a thousand and that there was almost nothing he could not be taught. He was a genius at tracking. Gragg sent the puppy to Benna Stein, a German who had made a specialty of training police dogs. Stein saw at once that this was one of the greatest pupils he had had, and he concentrated on Midnight Sun's training. He specialized in teaching the pup the various man-hunt methods in vogue among the German police.

Stein taught Midnight Sun to spring at an assailant's throat.

Stein was working in the Government forestry service, in Georgia. Thither he took Midnight Sun. Within half a year the dog was an expert "detective" and was sent back to Oklahoma to take his place as a valuable member of the police force. Here is an account of his early activities there, written by Gene Cohn, a year or so ago:

"His first big job was the pursuit of Wilbur Underhill, 'king of the hijackers,' wanted for murder. Then came Bert Nelson, an international burglar, and Matt Kimes, the 'phantom bandit.' His record to date is 52 captures and assists.

"Once Sammy White, a desperado, opened fire on him and his master and peppered them with a .30-30. Although White wounded the dog, yet he lost the battle against Midnight Sun.

"The dog has nosed his way through the cotton plantations of Georgia and through turpentine forests and over precipitous mountain trails. He has faced the bullets of hunted men and risked death by slipping down a precipice. His body bears the scars of gun wounds.

"NOTHING has stopped Midnight Sun, once the thrill of the man hunt was upon him. Men who have walked in streams to cover their tracks; men who took to trees to throw him off the scent; men who have hidden in underbrush or slipped on hands and knees over rocks—these have been his 'dish.' Eighteen-hour-old trails are his delight. He does in life what the trick dogs of Hollywood do in the screen stories."

Stein hit on an idea of starting a police dog school in Florida for the training of German shepherd dogs for detective work. When he opened this school, he sent to Oklahoma for Midnight Sun—not as a pupil but as an assistant teacher. The experiment was a success, for the detective dog's example and performance were an inspiration to the younger and less talented canines.

One of the first things Stein taught Midnight Sun was not to flinch from gun-fire and to spring at an assailant's pistol-arm. He taught him also how to trip up a fugitive and to bring him sprawling to the ground and hold him there.

In teaching Midnight Sun, as well as his later police dog pupils, Stein found it necessary to swathe himself in a huge padded canvas suit through which the curved white fangs of the young dog could not penetrate when the teacher was instructing him in pulling down a running thief or in disarming a thug.

Perhaps, soon or late, an outlaw's bullet may end Midnight Sun's detective career. Or, some clever fugitive may hit on the old trick of sprinkling red pepper along his own trail, so that the pursuing dog shall sniff up a nostril of the fiery stuff and thus be thrown off the scent, in agony.

But meanwhile Midnight Sun is making good and is piling up an unbelievable record.

LOCAL opinion differed as to why Montross Magruder III was a snob. Some held that it was born in him, along with his fine bearing, his Magruder nose and his good, though overimpressive looks. Others maintained that it was due to his upbringing, which was founded upon the rock of what was possible and what impossible to a great-grandson of the Hon. Montross Magruder, chief historical pride of the stiff, old, tradition-crusty city of Harchester.

And Harchester is forever committed to the deification of the historical Magruder and the reverence of his statue in Magruder Park, posed statesmanly and surrounded by the gilded lettering of the deathless phrase which almost made him Vice President of these United States. For 30 years Montross Magruder III had absorbed the atmosphere of ancestor worship, with never a hint or suggestion to trouble his faith or taint his satisfaction till——

He wondered what on earth she could have meant by it. In fact, he was awake at 2 o'clock of a spring morning, wondering what she could have meant by it.

She had referred to the Hon. Montross Magruder, Magruder of Harchester, as a plumber! Outrageous and incredible!

The scion of the family rolled out of bed and gravitated to a window of the Magruder mansion overlooking the statue. His gaze wandered from the austere and lofty visage to a moonlit area below, and he almost fell out of the window.

For he incredulously beheld his trouble of mind assume alluring reality before his astonished eyes, in the form of Miss Polly Wade, seated alone upon a park bench and contemplating the simulacrum of the mighty dead. The descendant of the mighty dead yanked down the shade. He jammed on the light. He rushed to the settee whereon his garments were neatly folded and, after a series of contortions incompatible with the Magruder reputation for orderly procedure, sauntered forth in the nonchalant impersonation of a young gentleman taking the air for his health. The girl spoke first.

"Hello. Couldn't you sleep, either?"

"I happened to be awake," he explained. "And I thought I saw you. And so—I—er"——

"You did see me," she confirmed. "I'm real. Don't be nervous."

"I AM never nervous." He gave fitting emphasis to this important fact. "But I thought I would come down and see whether anything was wrong."

"Yes," said Miss Wade, "there is."

"Anything that I can set right?"

"If you can't, I don't know who can. It's your necktie. It is hanging under your left ear, and, while it gives you a carefree and unconstrained air"——

"Can't you ever be serious with me, Miss Wade?"

"What do you want me to be serious about?"

"Why, this." He made a comprehensive gesture. "Your being out here alone."

"I'm not alone any more," said the girl pointedly.

"If you mean that you would prefer me to leave you"—he began, and left it so mournfully in the air that she relented.

"I'm furious, if you want to know. So mad I couldn't sleep. So I came out to look at Grandpa and see if I could figure out how he got that way."

"What way?"

"I seem to recall, from the dim past of week before last, a chilly voice saying: 'I think we need not pursue the subject further.'"

"You called him a plumber," said Montross Magruder.

"You mustn't take these things too literally," kindly explained Miss Wade. "Plumbing, in the modern sense, wasn't invented in his day, I suppose. I only meant that he was the bunk."

"Really, Miss Wade!"

"How many times have we met?" she inquired. Her mildness alone should have put him on his guard.

night Sun—not as a pupil but as an assistant teacher. The experiment was a success, for the detective dog's example and performance were an inspiration to the younger and less talented canines.

One of the first things Stein taught Midnight Sun was not to flinch from gun-fire and to spring at an assailant's pistol-arm. He taught him also how to trip up a fugitive and to bring him sprawling to the ground and hold him there.

In teaching Midnight Sun, as well as his later police dog pupils, Stein found it necessary to swathe himself in a huge padded canvas suit through which the curved white fangs of the young dog could not penetrate when the teacher was instructing him in pulling down a running thief or in disarming a thug.

Perhaps, soon or late, an outlaw's bullet may end Midnight Sun's detective career. Or, some clever fugitive may hit on the old trick of sprinkling red pepper along his own trail, so that the pursuing dog shall sniff up a nostril of the fiery stuff and thus be thrown off the scent, in agony.

But meanwhile Midnight Sun is making good and is piling up an unbelievable record.

A TOUCH of GREEN

By SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS

LOCAL opinion differed as to why Montross Magruder III was a snob. Some held that it was born in him, along with his fine bearing, his Magruder nose and his good, though overimpressive looks. Others maintained that it was due to his upbringing, which was founded upon the rock of what was possible and what impossible to a great-grandson of the Hon. Montross Magruder, chief historical pride of the stiff, old, tradition-crusty city of Harchester.

And Harchester is forever committed to the deification of the historical Magruder and the reverence of his statue in Magruder Park, posed statesmanly and surrounded by the gilded lettering of the deathless phrase which almost made him Vice President of these United States. For 30 years Montross Magruder III had absorbed the atmosphere of ancestor worship, with never a hint or suggestion to trouble his faith or taint his satisfaction till——

He wondered what on earth she could have meant by it. In fact, he was awake at 2 o'clock of a spring morning, wondering what she could have meant by it.

She had referred to the Hon. Montross Magruder, Magruder of Harchester, as a plumber! Outrageous and incredible!

The scion of the family rolled out of bed and gravitated to a window of the Magruder mansion overlooking the statue. His gaze wandered from the austere and lofty visage to a moonlit area below, and he almost fell out of the window.

For he incredulously beheld his trouble of mind assume alluring reality before his astonished eyes, in the form of Miss Polly Wade, seated alone upon a park bench and contemplating the simulacrum of the mighty dead. The girl spoke first.

"Hello. Couldn't you sleep, either?"

"I happened to be awake," he explained. "And I thought I saw you. And so—I—er"——

"You did see me," she confirmed. "I'm real. Don't be nervous."

"I'm furious, if you want to know. So mad I couldn't sleep. So I came out to look at Grandpa and see if I could figure out how he got that way."

"What way?"

"I seem to recall, from the dim past of week before last, a chilly voice saying: 'I think we need not pursue the subject further.'"

"You called him a plumber," said Montross Magruder.

"You mustn't take these things too literally," kindly explained Miss Wade. "Plumbing, in the modern sense, wasn't invented in his day, I suppose. I only meant that he was the bunk."

"Really, Miss Wade!"

"How many times have we met?" she inquired. Her mildness alone should have put him on his guard.

"Five, I believe."

"Right. And how many times have you handed me that 'Really, Miss Wade' line, in just that fadeaway voice?"

"Really"——

"That makes 14."

He breathed heavily through the imposing Montross Magruder nose. "I shall endeavor not to let it happen again."

"That's better. Of course, that evening being the first time I met you, I didn't know you were in the family, or I shouldn't have called him a plumber. It was very kind of you," she continued, "to take compassion on a stranger and explain to her all the beauties of Harchester and the glories of the Magruder history. I haven't felt lonely since."

He looked up at the statue and down at his companion. "Although the topic may be an unpleasant one"——

"Unpleasant is right," she confirmed. "It's particularly unpleasant just now, if you mean the Hon. Magruder."

"Why just now, if I may ask?"

"I've just learned that my paper on Magruder of Harchester and his immortal hokum has been flunked."

"That's too bad," he returned, in the manner of one who condoles with a small child over a bruised finger. "Your graduating essay from your academy, I suppose?"

"Academy nothing! My junior thesis for the historical research scholarship at Shurt Col."

"Do you, by any chance, refer to Sturtevant College?"

"I certainly do refer to that same old, conservative, rock-ribbed, prune-fed institution."

"My cousin, Miss Montross, is professor of history there."

"I'll say she is! That's why I'm flunked. Upholding the family honor, I suppose, at my expense."

"The family honor needs no upholding," stated its representative.

"Oh, doesn't it? What do you know about your revered ancestors, really?"

"The burden of proof would seem to be upon you," he returned, with exasperating reasonableness.

"YES? All right." She turned a baleful gaze upward to the occupant of the pedestal. But Miss Polly Wade's heart misgave her. There is a limit to what one may tell a worshipful scion about the august head of his family, no matter how salutary it may be for his soul. "I think we need not pursue the subject any further," she quoted.

But he was insistent. "Did you come here to make a study of Magruder or Harchester?"

"I came here to visit my aunt and to help a young, but ardent, swain of mine to graduate from Magruder College. Now that I'm accounted for, what about you? What is the properest young man in Harchester doing up at this unearthly hour?"

At this characterization, he flushed. "I—er—haven't been sleeping well."

She nodded. "I know. Conscience," she diagnosed.

"Really, Miss—I'm not aware why you should think I have a bad conscience——"

"What about your behavior of night before last?" she demanded. "Were you, or were you not, observed about midnight on the country club veranda shamelessly flirting with a wild young thing from the far and woolly West, whom nobody in Harchester knows a darned thing about, except that she is visiting a perfectly respectable aunt, and kissing her on the nose? Not the horrified aunt, but the horrified girl. You can refuse to answer, if it tends to incriminate or degrade you."

"You dodged," said he, feebly.

"Well, really, yourself! What do you take me for? A stationary target on the Class E range?"

Young Mr. Magruder was not wholly spiritless. "You shouldn't have looked at me as if—as if you—I'm human, after all, you know."

"That isn't your local reputation," she teased. "Don't be too human," she added, as he moved toward her. "This is a serious historical discussion, not a petting party."

"I thought we'd closed the historical phase, by mutual consent."

"It won't be closed," asserted Miss Wade, between set teeth, "until I've put it over and made your respected cousin—admit that I'm right. As for you"—she pointed a finger at the majestic figure of the Magruder—"you and I will have this out yet."

As she uttered her defiance, the lunar elves shifted the single spearlike moonbeam full upon the Hon. Magruder's most Magruderish feature. Through some quality of the metal, the noble Roman nose stood forth, a subdued, but powerful, green. Miss Wade gave a gurgle.

"I'd do anything in the world for any one who did that for me," she said, with upturned eyes and tremulous lips.

"Oh, magnificent! Superb!" she cried.

By that change of hue, the whole face was magically altered. For the lofty, assured and ineffably smug expression of conscious statesmanship was substituted a cheerfully malevolent leer. The mask had dropped, and there, in the stillness of night, sat a shrewd old trickster, privily chuckling to himself at the way he had put it over the gullible generations. Miss Polly Wade joined him in the chuckle. "Look at him now," she exulted.

"I see no cause for amusement," loftily stated Montross Magruder.

"Because you have no sense of humor."

At this aspersion upon mankind's most cherished vanity he flushed, but had the resource to retort: "Our conceptions of humor would undoubtedly differ." This is more refined than protruding the tongue and saying: "You're another," but not intrinsically different.

MISS WADE turned a warmer and much more ornamental red than her companion. "Do you know where you're headed for, Montross Magruder?" she inquired with a sweet and deadly solicitude. "Unless something is done about it, in 10 years from now you will be exactly like him."

She turned again to the statue. The ray had shifted and now a brighter iris burned upon the polished nose. "You've got to admit," the girl insisted, "that it makes him look more human."

Young Mr. Magruder gave a snort, thereby sealing his fate. For, up to that moment—Polly Wade is willing to take oath to it—she had no thought of anything of the sort! The moon must have put it into her mind.

"Let's make it permanent," she murmured. Voice and eyes had become a lure, an enchantment, an instant and deadly temptation, with the elf-management conniving by a clever manipulation of the lights.

"I don't understand you," said Montross Magruder. But his voice lacked conviction, perhaps from a dim forecast of impending horrors, perhaps because her hand had crept to his.

"Paint," she whispered. "For his nose."

"What?"

"Green, green paint."

"You can't mean it. You're insane!"

Well, of course, Polly Wade hadn't meant it. She had stated it merely to jar him out of his ancestral satisfactions. But now she began to concentrate upon it. "Insane?" she murmured. "Couldn't you be a little that way, too?"

"But it's so—so . . ." He groped for a sufficient word and fell back, not too satisfyingly, on "silly."

"I like people to be silly, once in a while. And I would so love to see Grandpa's nose really green before I leave town. Just one little coat! That isn't much to ask, is it? Though, of course, two would be better."

He gurgled indeterminately, but he had not detached himself from that soft, undermining handclasp.

"I'd do anything in the world for any one who did that for me." Upturned eyes and lips tremulous with plea gave point to the promise.

"I decline to consider such a thing," said he hoarsely.

"You're a sad disappointment to me. Good night, Grandpa. I shall yet live to see you sport the verdant hue of spring. Remember, Mr. Magruder, the promise stands, if you have a change of heart."

At breakfast Polly Wade formulated a question. "Aunt Marcia, what's the matter with Monty Magruder?"

Miss Hayes was an elderly and independent lady of an impious cast of mind. She did not share in the local reverence for the Magruder lineage. "He was all right until you arrived on the scene. Everybody was satisfied—especially Monty."

"Yes, I know. I'm treating him for it."

"Polly," her aunt admonished her, "I hope that you will bear in mind that Montross Magruder is a person to be taken seriously!"

"Is he taken? Seriously?"

"It is more or less alleged that Ida Lounsbury is or confidently expects to be engaged to him. Keep off the grass. One doesn't flirt with Montross Magruder."

"Not easily," admitted Miss Wade. "Though it can be done. And, once he's started, you'd be surprised—" She broke off.

"Aunt Marcia, don't you think it would be a real job of missionary work to cure him of that ancestral obsession of his?"

"Have you tried it?" asked Miss Hayes.

"Haven't had the chance. Besides, I've been concentrating on Grandpa Magruder."

"I should suppose you'd done enough of that in your college effort. What kind of nonsense was that about the Founder of the Family?"

The girl's eyes became serious. "It wasn't nonsense. It was fact. I wrote my thesis to prove that the Hon. Montross Magruder, with that noble blah of his that has gone ringing down the ages, is something else again, and I've proved it. From the original documents of the State House, that nobody else had ever dug up. And," she added hotly, "if there had been a square deal, instead of being flunked I'd have got the research scholarship."

MISS HAYES smiled. "You know, I can't quite fit you in, with the idea of a scholarship. What do you want with the thing?"

"To dress up pretty and show off to the callers," was the irreverent reply. Then, with a change of tone: "Just because I enjoy life, that doesn't mean there's nothing else in the old bean. I'm a serious young party when I work. After I'd snitched the scholarship, I was going abroad to study. And now that pious old fraud on the pedestal has gloomed it all."

"Have you told Montross?"

"Nearly. But I had to slow up on him. In his present condition of shock, it might prove fatal."

"Is he suffering from shock? What have you been doing to him?"

"Oh, be fair, Aunt! Why pin it on me? I haven't been doing anything, except offering a little reward."

"Well? Go on."

"I've offered one chaste kiss to the scion of the family, if he'll paint his grandfather's nose green."

"Say it again. Slowly."

"Green. Nose. Grandfather. Reward. Chaste salute," patiently explicated Miss Wade.

"Are you serious?"

"Of course not. But he thinks I am."

"You don't suppose you could get him to do it?"

"I hope not. I wouldn't think much of him, if he did."

"Do you think much of him now?" asked Miss Hayes keenly.

"Occasionally," admitted the other. "There's something nice and straightforward about that young man when you break through the Magruder crust. There are times when I suspect that he deserves to be loved for himself alone."

"Heaven help him!" said Miss Hayes.

SUPPER was in progress at the country club dance that evening when Montross Magruder appeared. Within fifteen minutes of his arrival, he was segregated with Polly Wade in a swinging seat on the side porch. In the innocence of his masculine mind, he believed this to be due to a feat of superior and triumphant strategy on his part, whereas Polly had intended it all the time. His conversation at once verged toward the seriously personal. Polly checked it firmly.

"Let's talk about art," she suggested.

"Art? What kind of art?"

"The art of Raphael," she replied ecstatically. "Of Titian, and Velasquez, and—and the house painters' union." She leaned close to him. "The paint," she said, in the accents of hope and trust, "is just inside the back window of the garage. The window is open. I left it open myself. Remember the reward."

"Really, Miss—"

"No, you don't! Pause before you finish those fatal words," she adjured him dramatically. "Everything is set. Wednesday night the sophomore class of Magruder is going to put on a riot and paint the town red. What more appropriate and safe time to paint Grandpa's nose green? Especially as the police will be chasing the naughty student boys. I'll even go along and superintend the job. Now will you do it?"

"I—will—not."

"Oh, well!" sighed the girl. "If you want a thing well done, do it yourself, is the safe rule, I suppose. . . . I'll leave the reward on Grandpa's cheek that Grandson might have had."

An unguarded chuckle sounded from the silence behind them, checked by a sharp "Sshh-h!"

"Who's that?" whispered Polly. He turned slowly. "I think it's Ida Lounsbury."

"Your appointed fate! Do you suppose she's heard the whole thing? Who's with her?"

"Some college kid."

POLLY peered. "Oh, that's all right," said she, relieved. "It's Charley Varnum, my gay young senior. He'll never give us away, will you, Chas?"

"Right!" corroborated the voice from the dimness. "That's a hot thought, though," it continued, addressing the sharer of its seclusion. "Paint the old bimbo's nose green."

"It's a disgusting thought," averred Miss Lounsbury. "I can't see any sense in it."

"If you'd gone to Magruder College and had to write an essay per year on the Magruder greatness and his influence on national thought and all that tosh-woddle," stated young Mr. Varnum viciously, "you'd get the point. I think it would be a noble object lesson to a Magruderized community—Why the short arm jab, Ida, deah? . . . I didn't see it was you, Mr. Magruder."

"Obviously not," said Montross Magruder, and the two moved on.

Polly had the grace to feel a little uncomfortable. "You know you are rather a duck, Monty, dear. I could almost learn to esteem you highly, if—if only—"

"If only?" he prompted, leaning toward her. "Only what?"

(Concluded on Page 8.)

"If only," she concluded, in a meek, sleek voice, "Grandpa's nose turned green. . . ."

"Can't you find any other topic of conversation besides my grandfather's nose?" he asked.

"It has a fascination for me," she confessed. "Besides, every time I see you, I'm so strongly reminded of him."

Time was when Montross Magruder would have regarded this as the acme of compliments. Now he positively winced.

THE appointed night of the sophomore riot duly arrived. Glowing patches of sky reflected the unlawful glory of bonfires. Patrol wagons clanged through stilled streets. And in the dimmest hour of morning, when the tumult and the shouting were all in the other end of the town, Miss Polly Wade got a special thrill. She heard, or dreamed she heard, a sound of footsteps in the driveway, and saw, or dreamed she saw, a furtive figure steal away from the garage, bearing a loose-swinging burden in one hand.

All Harchester got a thrill the next morning. For, in the troubled watches of the night, the great Magruder's nose had turned green. Not a modest, unassertive, readily removable verdancy, but a malignant gangrenous, arsenical hue, a livid, vivid, staring, glaring green with a dire effect of permanency. The colorist had first scarified the metal in crisscross gougings and then thoroughly rubbed his work in.

Harchester had a fit. The police scoured the town. Crowds massed and stared and murmured in the park. Montross Magruder Sr. emerged from his scholarly seclusion long enough to offer up a roar of outraged family pride and a reward of $1000 for the arrest and conviction of the vandal, swearing that he should suffer the fullest penalty of the law. Upon this, a tinge of discomfort crept into Polly Wade's mixed-up feelings. She had never dreamed that Monty would really do it. . . .

She looked up and saw him fronting her like an apparition from the darkness. Like an apparition he beckoned silently.

She rose and went to him.

"Get into the car," he directed.

Polly looked at him and quaked. It was not an unpleasant quake, but it was distinctly a subversive one. She sought to exorcise it with words: "All right, I'm game."

His big motor-car, instead of turning down the driveway, crept into shadows across the lawn, violating a flower-bed and pushing destructively through a clump of rhododendrons. Polly had just begun to wonder what gilled her escort when there was an imperative call from the driveway, a cri- son light flashed, the inquiet probe of a search-ray jabbed the darkness about them, and, lurching out upon the main roadway, their car shot forward like a spur-stung animal, a clear block ahead of the clanging pursuer.

"Who's that?" she demanded, when she could control her breath.

"Police."

"After us?"

"Yes."

"What for?"

"Don't talk to me," he snapped.

FOR the next 10 miles, her energies were devoted mainly to hanging on. Montross Magruder was driving like a demon. Polly could understand the motive for his escape. But why was he taking her along, and where? She had just decided to ask, when she felt his attitude tauten. Far away to the left and ahead of them, a rolling, pink-shot column spouted into the sky. There was the rending shriek of a whistle. Polly realized that, if they pulled up now, the pursuers would have them. If they got across, the freight train, long and slow, would block the chase.

"Go on!" she cried.

"All right."

The car, which had slackened pace for her decision, gathered itself and sprang. It all depended upon where the converging point was. A signal flashed and clanged its warning before them; the whistle shrieked a protest, and they were across the track, safe by yards in the unreckonable darkness.

"Not so close!" said Polly, in a tremulously disparaging voice. Then: "Stout fellow! I loved that."

He switched off the lights. The car turned and wormed its way along a maze of rural byways. "We've lost them," he announced.

Appreciation of social requirements returned to fill Miss Wade with mild dismay. "Then we can go back."

"We're not going back."

"Where are we going?"

"To New York State. The border is only three miles from here."

"Don't be absurd. I haven't the slightest interest in the border."

"Don't bluff," he said wearily. "Our talk on the country club veranda has been reported. That was Ida Lounsbury. Your purchase of the green paint in Banchester has been traced. The whole thing is complete."

She was impressed. "You mean they'd arrest me?"

"Rather!"

"What about you?"

"I can take care of myself," he informed her stiffly.

Evidently he was relying upon his immunity as a Magruder, she reflected indignantly, while she, who, at worst, represented only the inciting influence, was to be the goat. A goat, however, whom he had been at some risk to rescue; she had to grant him that. The car moved into the lighted area of a small city's fringe.

"So this is safety," she observed. "What now?"

"The Hotel Colonnade."

She turned and stared at him. "What are you going to do?"

"Go back to Harchester."

"To admire Grandpa's vernal nose?" The spirit of mischief had possession of her again. "You must admit that it's a humanizing touch."

He admitted nothing. "I suppose you're satisfied?" he said, in accents of polite inquiry.

"Perfectly. Are you?"

"I don't think that requires an answer."

"Well, you didn't have to do it unless you wanted to, you know."

It was said with intent to annoy. And it annoyed even more than she intended, because the rescuing knight supposed that she was ungraciously referring to his successfully placing her beyond the reach of the avenging law.

"Obviously," he returned.

Now "obviously" is not listed as one of the "fighting words." But such was the curtness, the aridity, the quiet disgust of young Mr. Magruder's tone that it inspired Miss Wade with an instant and passionate desire to slay him forthwith. This being impracticable, she bade him a freezing good night and vanished into the upper regions of the hotel.

AT DAWN the sun penetrated her window like an accusing eye. It convicted her of unfairness, of stupid misconstruction of motives, of cowardice, and of disloyalty to an accomplice in crime. She called up the desk and inquired for the first interstate trolley to Harchester.

At seven-thirty, Montross Magruder, gazing from his window on the ancestral stone pile, beheld an incredible sight. Facing the statue of the Hon. Montross Magruder sat Polly Wade, wearing an expression of considered appreciation, widely at variance with the facts. For the object of her pleased scrutiny was a far from esthetic spectacle. Reconstructive art had done its best to restore his most prominent feature, but the result had been painful; the famous Magruder nose looked like a distant view of a stern and rock-bound promontory variegated with patches of verdure.

The descendant of greatness was about to array himself hastily, and once more spring to the rescue, when he perceived that he was too late. A car drew up to the curve with grinding of brakes, a fat, active man crossed the park in a rush, and Polly Wade was in the custody of a stern Chief of Police to whom she looked like a thousand dollars. Not even when knighthood was in flower could the rescuing hero be expected to hie him forth in a suit of lavender pajamas and rescue the heroine from the clutch of persecution. Montross Magruder made haste to reach his lawyer.

Meantime, before a seething courtroom, Polly Wade got her first adequate notion of the enormity of the crime whereof she stood accused. Indeed, as the evidence piled up, she began to wonder whether she could ever prove her innocence, except by denouncing Monty; her threat against the nasal integrity of the great Magruder, the purchase of the paint at Banchester, a trail of green spots leading to the Hayes driveway, the discovery of the depleted pot and the stiffened brush in the garage. As in a dream she was almost prepared to hear the words "hanged by the neck until dead," when there was a stir at the entrance and the quietly authoritative voice of Montross Magruder addressed the court.

"Your Honor, you're on the wrong track. I did it myself."

WHEN a semblance of quiet was achieved through suppression of the booming of the crowd, the ladylike hysteria of Mrs. Magruder and the plaintive protests of the Chief of Police, who saw the thousand-dollar reward paling to the hue of rainbow gold, Montross Magruder Sr. was heard explicitly denying his parenthood and declaring that, before he would lift a finger, his son might go to jail and rot there. So to jail he went.

And in jail Polly Wade joined him, through what wheedling of susceptible officials only she herself knows.

"Oh, Monty! I am sorry."

"Why didn't you stay in New York?"

"I don't like New York. And I wanted to see what was going on. They can't do anything to you, can they?"

"Oh, can't they! You don't know my family. But it isn't that that I mind."

"What is it?"

"You'll be gone before I can possibly get out," he said sorrowfully.

Polly's chin elevated its angle several degrees. "Do you see the white flag attached to me anywhere?"

Tone, rather than symbolism, gave him the clue. His eyes warmed and brightened. "You mean you won't go?"

"I will not. Not while you're in jail."

"You're a darling," said Montross Magruder recklessly.

"Darling, yourself. But you're an awful idiot, you know. I never intended that you should do it."

"Do what?"

Daintily dipping her forefinger into an imaginary paint-pot, she pretended to daub the inherited Magruder nose.

"I didn't," he said stonily.

"You— didn't— paint— Grandpa's—nose—green?"

"Certainly not. You needn't keep up the deception with me!"

AMAZEMENT in her eyes responded to the dawning doubt in his. "You thought I did it?"

"Of course. You said you would. So I supposed you had. Didn't you?"

"I never!"

Both voices were raised in a beautifully synchronized duet. "Well, if you didn't do it, who did?"

"That's what I'd like to know," said Montross Magruder.

"It's what I'm going to find out," affirmed Polly Wade.

Sunrise of the following morning found the Present, in the person of Polly Wade, again scanning the face of the Past.

"I'd trade all I know about you for all you know about yourself," she murmured. "Who did paint the poor old beak green, Grandpa?"

There was a sound of quick footsteps. Polly jumped up with an exclamation. "You! When did you break jail?"

"Early this morning," answered Montross Magruder.

"Bail?"

"Mail."

"What's the answer?"

"Here it is, special delivery. Received late yesterday evening."

The letter was addressed to the Chief of Police of Harchester and advised that dignitary to save himself time, trouble and professional regret by examining the thumb-print on the under side of the left-hand coat tail of the Hon. Montross Magruder.

"It was no more mine than it was yours," exclaimed the third owner of the hallowed name. "So they turned me loose."

"What was the postmark on the letter?"

"Centretown, Virginia."

"THAT'S where Charley Varnum lives," cried Polly, in swift enlightenment. "Oh, I oughtn't to have said that!"

The countenance of Montross Magruder emptied itself of all intelligence. "I missed the name," he stated.

She gave him a grateful look. "You would. Well"—she resumed her seat on the bench, turning a pensive regard upward to the great Magruder's ravaged countenance—"I suppose I'll have to deliver that reward to Charley."

"Try and do it!" retorted Montross Magruder, acting with promptitude and enterprise.

"Stop," directed Polly, in muffled tones. "Grandpa's looking."

THE WATTEAU BLONDE

Hers a healthy pallor. Hair, pale gold or light brown. Eyes, pale gold her eyes vary from gray to blue. Changeable as her moods, Naturelle Pompeian Powder, Light Bloom.)

THE CIRCEAN BRUNETTE

Amazing eyes—like clear green grapes... her skin flawless, pale. (She should use a bright lipstick, and the Nude shade of Pompeian Powder with Oriental Bloom.)

FRANKLY . . RED-HAIRED

Skin, fine and delicately colored. Eyes, blue or green, and often requiring slightly darkened brows and lashes. (Her coloring calls for Naturelle Powder, Oriental Bloom.)

THE WATER-LILY BLONDE

Hair like fine spun gold, eyes a soft gray-blue, skin white with a hint of water-lily pink. (She should use ½ White with ½ Flesh-Pink Powder and Light Bloom.)

THE CLEOPATRA BRUNETTE

Dark of brows and hair—yes, even of skin. Hers is indeed a striking sort of beauty! (She wisely chooses Rachel Pompeian Beauty Powder and the Dark tone of Pompeian Bloom.)

You... like Cleopatra... are a Type

Study your beauty... make the most of it...

By Madame Jeannette de Cordet

WHICH of all the lovely types are you?

Before you've dared to protest, "I'm not really a type, I'm just an 'in-between'" (as if everyone weren't one type or another!) . . . or before you've had a chance to be emphatic about it and say, "I'm a blonde" or "I'm a brunette" . . . let me ask you this:

Do you know how you can be sure?

Eyes? Hair? They'll never decide it for you, for only in your skin-tone can the real answer be found.

And you! Are you looking carefully into yours? Then tell me . . . Is your skin-tone faintly amber? Rose-mist, shot with gold? Ivory? Cream? Olive? Petal-pink? Whichever it is, I have a secret for you:

Emphasize your type—delicately accentuate your own natural coloring—and you'll see . . . you've grown lovelier . . . more romantically different in the quality of your beauty!

To gain this flattering effect is not difficult at all! For though American types of beauty are as varied as the lands from which our forebears came, Pompeian has found true accent for every one! Among the five shades of Pompeian Beauty Powder you will find your skin-tone—matched like thread to silk!

Smooth it on, after a dash of Pompeian Bloom—a rouge that has your natural flush in one of its five true tones.

Now you've found your type's true accent! Once more, peer into your mirror, to see what you will see! Who is this new beauty? Who but you grown lovelier—more strikingly individual in your beauty!

Broadway Sets New Hair Vogue

"So many girls in my crowd are talking about the new way they're doing their hair, I just had to try it," says Miss Dorothy Connor, 737 Bergen Street, Brooklyn, attractive secretary for a prominent New York City business man. "You've no idea how silky and gleaming it makes your hair. And I don't have to shampoo mine more than once a month, now. Danderine keeps it so clean. All you do is put a few dashes of it on your brush every time you use it. It makes your scalp feel just grand. Your hair is lots easier to dress, and it stays in place wonderfully."

You won't wonder at the overwhelming way millions of girls are showing their approval of Danderine when you use it. It quickly removes that oily film from your hair, brings out its glorious color, gives it lustre, it dissolves dandruff, cleanses, tones and stimulates your scalp. All drug stores have the big 35c bottles. A fragrant necessity for the well-groomed girl.

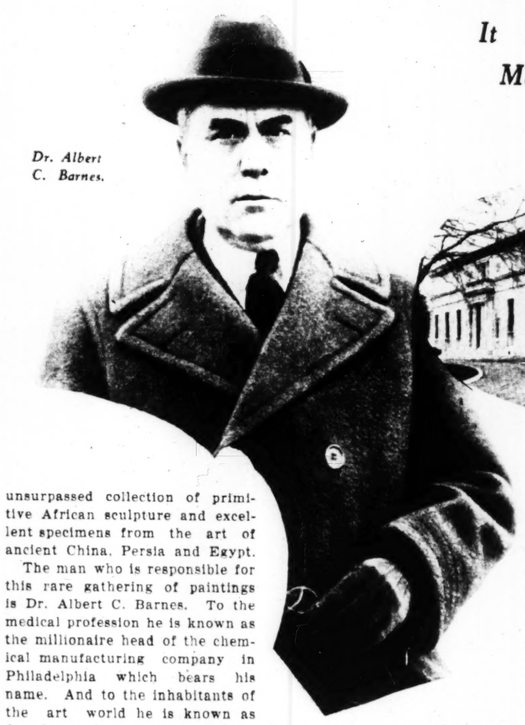
HOW MERION, PENNSYLVANIA, BECAME A WORLD ART CENTER

It Started When a Millionaire Drug Manufacturer Read the Philosopher Santayana to His Employes.

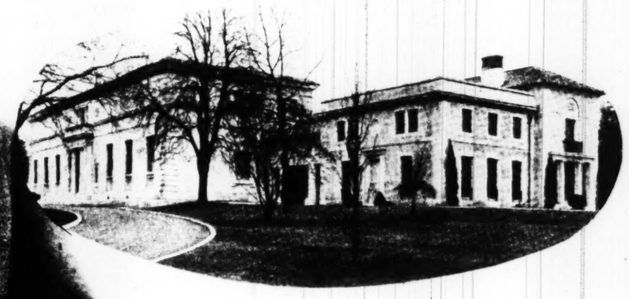
By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

PHILADELPHIA.

DUE to the singular activities of one of its citizens, a small Pennsylvania town boasts the distinction of possessing what is pronounced the finest collection of modern paintings in the world. That town is Merion, Pennsylvania, just beyond the city limits of Philadelphia. There in the midst of a 14-acre grove of trees stands a splendid French Renaissance palace. The name of this structure is the Barnes Foundation, and its walls are adorned with a thousand canvases painted by the greatest artists since 1870. The list of paintings to be found there would make a connoisseur tremble with excitement. There are 150 canvases by Renoir, 100 by the great Cezanne, some 40 by Picasso and Matisse, a dozen by Utrillo and a seemingly endless array of still-lifes, portraits and landscapes by Modigliano, Gauguin, Van Gogh, Glackens, Lawson and a half hundred others whose names are writ large in histories of art and whose paintings fetch increasingly high prices each year. In addition to this dazzling display of moderns is an ever-growing collection of old masters, including Goya, El Greco, Veronese, Tintoretto and Rubens, and for good measure is added an unsurpassed collection of primitive African sculpture and excellent specimens from the art of ancient China, Persia and Egypt.



Dr. Albert C. Barnes.



The Barnes Foundation.

The man who is responsible for this rare gathering of paintings is Dr. Albert C. Barnes. To the medical profession he is known as the millionaire head of the chemical manufacturing company in Philadelphia which bears his name. And to the inhabitants of the art world he is known as founder and head of the Barnes Foundation of Merion, where he spends those millions on art.

ALBERT BARNES was born in Philadelphia 55 years ago. His parents were poor and the comforts and luxuries of life were unknown to him in his youth. What spending money he had was earned by doing odd jobs. However, education was not denied him, and his interest in the elementary work at grammar school justified his going to high school. At Central High School he distinguished himself not only as a scrapper but also as an exceptionally good scholar, and his talent won for him a scholarship at the University of Pennsylvania, where he worked his way by playing semi-professional baseball. He was finally graduated with the degree of M. D. His major interest, however, was not in medicine but in chemistry. Heidelberg University, Germany, was considered the best school for chemists, and young Barnes decided to go there. He had no money, so he obtained employment in a Philadelphia advertising agency, and after he had saved enough to get started on, promptly gave up the job and went to Germany.

At Heidelberg, then, he studied his chemistry. But one day he was made acutely aware of his lack of funds. He got a job singing American Negro songs in a German beer garden, and thus earned enough money to complete his studies.

For a while Doctor Barnes practiced medicine after returning to the United States.

BUT while he did so he also continued to work on a chemical problem in which he had become interested. Even while he was courting the future Mrs. Barnes he worked out some of his experiments over the gas range in his fiancee's kitchen. After years of painstaking experiment and devoted labor, his efforts were rewarded. He had discovered the formula for Argyrol. Technically, this drug, used for the treatment of infected mucous membrane, is merely a patented medicine, but actually it is a valuable contribution to medical science. Its importance may be judged by the fact that in many states laws have been passed requiring a few drops of Argyrol to be put in the eyes of new-born babies to insure normal sight.

In 1902, with just enough capital to last him three months if luck wasn't against him, he established the A. C. Barnes Company in Philadelphia to manufacture the drug. Some of the larger manufacturers offered to buy his formula from him, and when he refused to sell, they put substitutes on the market in an effort to force him to give up. Doctor Barnes has had to fight counterfeiters and imitators ever since. Yet he had hardly turned 30 when he found himself a millionaire.

BARNES organized his employes into a seminar which met daily and discussed philosophy, psychology, literature and art. It was only a small group, but it was decidedly democratic, including all of his employes—five white women, three Negro men and Doctor Barnes himself.

It was as a result of reading the philosopher Santayana's writings on beauty and esthetics that the employes' interest in paintings started. Doctor Barnes began to acquire pictures to hang up in the factory to be discussed and analyzed by the members of the group. Doctor Barnes' collection of pictures increased rapidly. Five years ago he decided that his collection should have a museum of its own. At the same time he decided that the work conducted so successfully by his factory seminars should be continued and made available to the public. He concluded, therefore, that his pictures should not only be hung in a museum, but that courses in the principles of art appreciation should be provided. And to accomplish this he established the Barnes Foundation, chartered as an educational institution by the State of Pennsylvania, and endowed in perpetuity by Doctor Barnes with the sum of $6,000,000.

The "Questionnaire Courtship"

So much for the romance. What effect the story would have had upon the jury is, of course, problematical, but in view of what happened it couldn't have done any harm. The jury, composed chiefly of working men, was a group extremely unlikely to find any sympathy for an effeminate man of 49 if he were also suspected of having taken advantage of a young girl.

SUCH a jury was also unlikely to be moved by an insanity plea, and apparently it wasn't, although the evidence introduced on this point was voluminous. The fact that Warren came of a line singularly cursed with mental trouble and suicide was well established. It was shown that for three generations back his maternal ancestors had suffered from a peculiar nervous disorder which came to be known as the "Wilson headache." During seizures, sufferers became for a time raving maniacs. Warren's maternal grandfather attempted suicide. An uncle, Admantha Wilson, did commit suicide. So did Admantha's son, Ralph Wilson. Another son, Jesse, died from one of those headaches. Warren's mother suffered from the same affliction and so did Warren. So did his brother, Albert, who killed himself at 30. On the other side, his paternal grandmother had a nervous ailment that at times deprived her of the power of speech. His father was subject to gloomy spells and finally ended his life. Four suicides in two generations!

Warren denies he is insane and declares the killing of Deskin was accidental; that he was shooting at another man, whom he had reason to fear and who appeared, at the moment, to be trying to draw a weapon on him. He says it was grief over hitting Deskin that caused him to shoot himself a few seconds later. The other man was H. B. Housh, a trustee of the club, who had prosecuted the movement to oust Warren.

The shooting occurred in the office of an attorney in the Scarritt Building. Believing all embezzlement charges had been disproved, Warren had packed up his guns, kept on display in the club rooms, and sent them west by a son, Roscoe Jr. He expected to follow. On October 13, 1924, he went to the rooms to get his overcoat and found an automatic pistol which had been overlooked. He put it in his overcoat pocket. Then he and another son, Neale, accompanied another attorney to the trustees' meeting.

THEY entered as Deskin was reading a resolution demanding Warren's resignation. Behind and a little to the left of Deskin sat Housh. When Deskin, reading, referred to the alleged embezzlement, Warren pointed his finger and shouted: "That's a damnable lie!" Housh reached for his pocket. Warren drew the automatic and fired five shots. One went wild, two hit Deskin and two hit the wall back of where Housh had been sitting. Warren then backed out and shot himself.

The defense contended that Warren, sensitive of nature and wrought up over what he believed to be an attempt to rob him of his equity, fired on impulse. The State tried to show premeditation, but its strongest evidence was the testimony of a man who knew Warren and Deskin only by sight.

This man said he was in the Ivanhoe Temple one day and saw Deskin playing pool. Warren came in and Deskin hung up his cue and left. Thereupon Warren, according to the witness, remarked to a bystander, "I'll get him yet." The witness was unable to recall how he happened to go to the Ivanhoe Temple, what others were doing, or even what day it was. He also admitted he didn't know about whom Warren was talking.

But the jury said first-degree murder. It was getting late and there was the prospect of being locked up over Sunday in a hotel.

Teaching Aviation to
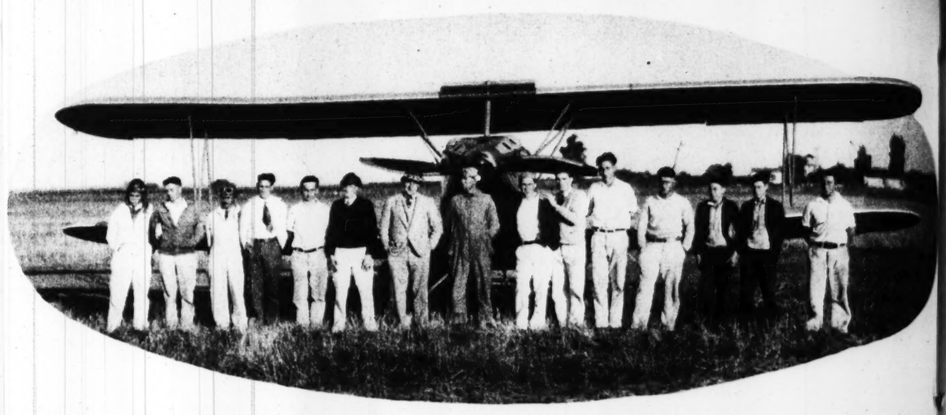
High School Students

Everything From Factory Work to Actual Flying in the Four-Year Course at Galt, California.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

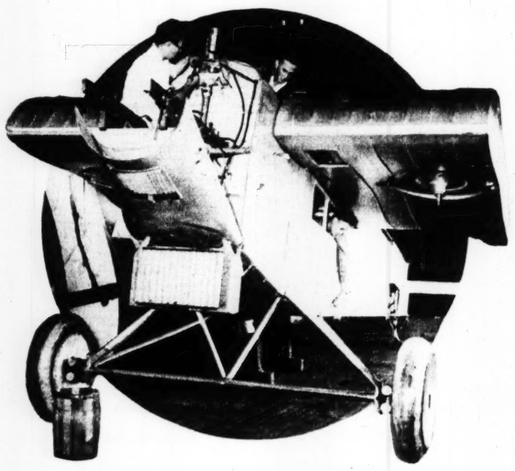


Galt Joint Union High School and their plane on the school flying field.

GALT, California. COL. LINDBERGH recently started something when he appeared before the Boston convention of the National Educational Association and asked that aviation be given a place in the common school curriculum. So impressed were the educators with the speech and the general movement along the same lines fostered by the Guggenheim Foundation that an advisory board of 50 members, mostly school superintendents, was named to look into the matter.

Probably the best recommendation for the innovation proposed by Col. Lindbergh is the aviation course offered by Galt Joint Union High School, which takes the student through four years of study covering the science of aviation from all angles. Residents of this section have become accustomed to seeing the "Spirit of Galt High" in its daily flights over the housetops and realizing that their children may be in the observer's cockpit. It is a modern biplane powered by a 90-horsepower motor and is the nucleus of the aeronautics course.

The Galt venture originated with Principal William Rutherford, known throughout California as "the Flying Schoolmaster." Rutherford overcame the opposition of school trustees, parents and community-at-large and has succeeded in convincing Galt that aviation is one of the coming factors in educational work. In its first year of operation the aeronautics course of this enterprising institution has attracted widespread attention from the Army and Navy and the world of flying.



Martin 7-passenger observation plane being remodeled by students at Galt High.

THE equipment at Galt High includes three planes and eight unattached engines, a well-arranged flying field and complete mechanical shops. Two of the planes and the eight engines are used for ground instruction in teaching the 32 students the structure and action of aircraft and their motors. The "Spirit of Galt High" is employed in actual flights, under the hand of an instructor. The total mechanical outfit, including planes and engines, represents a value of close to $100,000, contributed by the Federal Government from surplus materials in the hands of the Army and Navy flying forces. The contribution is a part of the Washington policy of encouraging aviation and speeding its development.

The course at Galt High covers four years of training, in which the students will be taken through the entire field of aeronautical science. The first year embraces such fundamentals as general physical geography in its relation to flying, together with the elementary principles of aircraft design. The second year's teaching will cover weather and meteorology, along with the construction and operation of engines. For the third year the course will take in the design and construction of modern aircraft and airplanes, the principles of aerodynamics, and the advanced study of meteorology and weather forecasting. The fourth year will bring finishing touches through advanced instruction in airplane design and construction and in engine operation, together with a full year's training in navigation and the principles of flight, and complete schooling in dual-control flying.

DUAL control is as near as the students will come to the actual management of a plane in flight during their days of schooling. The Galt authorities proceed on the belief that the fundamentals are the primary essentials and that pilot work can come after graduation. In dual control an instructor manipulates the stick and the movements are duplicated in the controls handled by a student, giving the latter the "feel" of piloting without the hazard.

The interest displayed by the 32 students in aeronautics at Galt High has been remarkable. Principal Rutherford declares that school discipline is the only thing that keeps Saturday and Sunday from being as busy as other days of the week since the flying instruction was inaugurated.

The extra planes and unattached engines belonging to Galt High are used in practical shop training. The largest engine is of the Packard-Liberty type with 450 horsepower, and its nearest rival in point of size is a 420-horsepower Hispano-Suiza. By using the nonflying planes and the surplus motors for shop instruction, the pupils obtain training in the work of tearing down and reconstructing the mechanism, with resultant familiarity with every part of the equipment. This type of instruction has borne early fruit, as evidenced by the achievement of the students in rebuilding a seven-passenger Fokker type observation plane and converting it into a single-control plane of true passenger type.

THE precision of method employed in the course of instruction is typified by the rigid inspection given the flight plane each time it returns to the ground. After landing, the machine is turned over to a group of students for accurate checking of every detail of the mechanism and instruments. Virtually every square inch is given intimate inspection and the conditions are checked on charts of the type employed by the air forces of the Army and Navy. In this way the plane is kept in tip-top condition and the pupils are made familiar with all its working parts.

Professional pilots who have visited Galt High have enthused over the work of the class, and some of them have volunteered their help in training the students. Stanley Compton, of the air mail, is one of the volunteers giving daily instructions.

"I am convinced that aeronautics is an excellent study for high school work," declares Rutherford, "and I would recommend that each school should have at least one plane for flights and one for shop work. These can be obtained from the Government with little difficulty."

Miss Holzman in kindergarten days. This is how she looked when she started to use Colgate's.

There is nothing mysterious about these enviable results. The men and women fortunate enough to secure them did nothing that you cannot easily do yourself. They visited their dentists for periodic inspections. And they used Colgate's Ribbon Dental Cream regularly twice-a-day.

Choose your dentifrice on the basis of results. Follow the lead of those who have kept their teeth sound for years.

Simply adopt for your own use the dentifrice most popular among people with well-preserved teeth. The one most dentists recommend.

On one hand you have Colgate's, the chief feature of which is thorough cleansing.

On the other you have the fact that countless people who have used Colgate's for years now have exceptionally fine teeth.

In such a vital matter as the care of the teeth, could there be any safer guide than the actual experiences of people like yourself?

CLEAN!

Years ago we set out to make the best dentifrice possible. We interviewed leading dental authorities. They told us that the one thing a dentifrice should do is to clean teeth. We then produced Ribbon Dental Cream—designing it to do that one thing superlatively well. It is not medicated, because all experiments in the meantime have sustained the original principle that cleansing is the only thing a dentifrice can do.

"At times Betty Mae was in terrible misery," writes her mother . . . Mrs. Gibbons' letter follows:

Cleveland, Ohio

"FOR 2 YEARS our little girl suffered untold agonies from constipation. Her appetite vanished. She lost sleep. And no sooner would one medicine begin to help than it would lose its effectiveness for her. I had heard so much about Fleischmann's Yeast that I decided to try it. And in only a few months there was a great improvement. Soon she was enjoying perfect health and vitality. People marvel at it."

Mrs. Thomas Gibbons

"'Stop work,' they told me—but I had to struggle on"

Adelaide Belle Bowman, of Long Beach, Calif.—original tile mural artist. "I was so ill it was almost impossible for me to keep on with my work," she writes . . . Read, above her letter describing her experience.

Long Beach, Calif.

"My METHOD of painting on tiles and then baking them is my own discovery, and I cannot delegate any of my work to others. So when my health began to go back on me I became almost frantic.

"'Stop work and rest,' I was advised. But how could I, with orders incomplete and spaces in buildings left vacant?

"In my run down condition, boils started to break out. Altogether, I had over forty of them.

"Then my doctor started me on Fleischmann's Yeast—three cakes daily. The boils I had at the time healed up. In a month my skin had cleared completely—and my general health had improved, too. I am now able to work 18 hours a day when orders are pressing."

Adelaide Belle Bowman

IN place of medicines, doctors today are urging a corrective food—Fleischmann's Yeast.

As fresh as any garden vegetable, Fleischmann's Yeast banishes constipation, easily, naturally. Corrects indigestion. Clears the unhealthy skin.

At the root of all these ills generally lies an unhealthy condition of the intestinal tract. Fleischmann's Yeast corrects this condition. It keeps the intestines clean—rouses the sluggish muscles.

Buy 2 or 3 days' supply at a time from your grocer and keep in any cool, dry place. Also at many leading cafeterias, lunch counters, soda fountains. Send for booklet on Yeast in the diet—free. Health Research Dept. N-956, The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington St., N. Y. C.

San Francisco, Calif.

"WE HAD BEEN 'ROUGHING IT' in the mountains, my partner and I—laying out mining sites, mapping boundary locations and so on. As a result of carelessness in our eating, indigestion and constipation set in. Pills and cathartics only made matters worse. One day, seeing an advertisement for Fleischmann's Yeast, we sent for a supply of it. And in a short time we knew we should have resorted to it first. For soon we were normal again—full of pep, ready to eat anything!"

Health at its best—this easy way:

Eat three cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast regularly every day, one before each meal or between meals. Eat it just plain, or dissolved in water (hot or cold) or any other way you like. For stubborn constipation drink one cake in a glass of hot water—not scalding—before meals and before going to bed. Train yourself to regular daily habits. Dangerous cathartics will gradually become unnecessary.

"WHEN DISCHARGED from the army after the War I was absolutely unfit—and troubled with boils. At one time I had over 80 of them. I took up my old work as Fireman in an engine company. But the boils were a big handicap. And inoculations and various remedies didn't help, while the irregular hours of my work made matters continually worse . . . One of the boys in the Engine House got me started eating Fleischmann's Yeast. I took it regularly, for 6 months. The boils I then had dried right up. I never expect to have another as long as I live!"

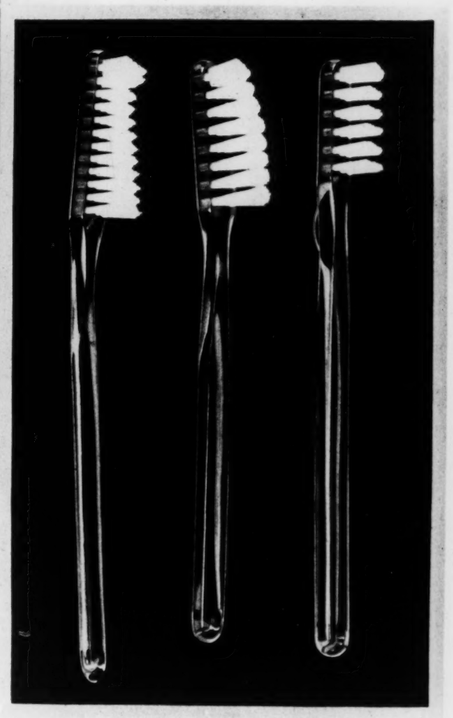
Tell your own health fortune

Easy as ABC's to know what type of dental arch you have . . . to know what type of tooth brush is best for you to use. Just look into your mirror. If it reflects a full-formed face, well rounded, then your dental arch (your teeth and gums) is full-formed, of average size. But . . . your face and mouth may be small, your dental arch small, more sharply oval. Still—either large or small—your dental arch may require special brushing care. Know your type. Then select the brush that is scientifically designed for your specific dental arch.



Face Your Mirror With These Facts

"We can't all use the same type of tooth brush," say dentists, "because dental arches differ." . . . So Pro-phy-lac-tic now makes three new and different brushes. Your mirror reveals the correct brush for you.

Tufted Pro-phy-lac-tic — Most dental arches are full-formed and require this type of brush.

Oval Pro-phy-lac-tic — Scientifically designed for the small, more sharply oval dental arch.

Masso Pro-phy-lac-tic — Gives beneficial massage action to either large or small arch that calls for special care.

YOU know what size gloves you wear. You know what it means in health and comfort to have shoes that exactly fit your feet.

Yet . . . don't you usually guess about the size and type of tooth brush you use twice daily?

Health depends on your choice . . . Appearance is affected by it. Why not know exactly, precisely, what brush is right for your specific dental arch?

Fascinating—and vital to you

You can . . . and easily! Today Pro-phy-lac-tic makes a different tooth brush for every type and condition of dental arch. And ten seconds with your mirror reveals clearly, emphatically, what type brush you should use.

The form of your dental arch (your teeth and gums) closely follows the contour of your face. Yours . . . as revealed by your mirror . . . may be full-formed like most. Or your mirror may reflect small features, a narrow mouth . . . and a correspondingly small, sharply oval dental arch.

But look again if you want good health to be surely yours for years to come. Examine carefully your teeth and gums. Soft, tender, receding gums and teeth that fail to sparkle white indicate that a third type of dental arch is yours—one requiring special brushing care.

Now choose correct brush

Place yourself . . . Decide definitely what type of arch you have. Then select the specific tooth brush that dental science and the Pro-phy-lac-tic Brush Company now prescribe for you . . . Tufted Pro-phy-lac-tic for the large and medium dental arches, the average full-formed type of mouth . . . Oval Pro-phy-lac-tic for the small, sharply oval arch found in the small mouth . . . Masso Pro-phy-lac-tic for either the large or small dental arch that calls for special care. This brush massages the gums as it cleans the teeth.

Lifetime job made easy

Brushing teeth is a lifetime job . . . if you want to keep your teeth for a lifetime. Choosing a brush that's right to use means choosing a brush that's easy to use, comfortable . . . and the most effective weapon to combat deadly dental diseases.

So use your own good judgment . . . these dental facts . . . and help yourself to new health afforded by the right Pro-phy-lac-tic. Then your mirror will soon reveal another fascinating picture . . . a smile that flashes gloriously white teeth set in healthy gums of coral firmness. Pro-phy-lac-tic Brush Co., Florence, Mass. In Canada: Pro-phy-lac-tic Brush Co. (Limited), Montreal.

This cabinet helps you choose right brush

All three Pro-phy-lac-tic Brushes are on display at local stores. Shown in this special cabinet, which contains mirror to help you select right brush. Note the transparent handles in different colors.

Get the PERMANENT that never disappoints

YOU, Madame, may have wondered why there is such a difference in permanent waves. Some are alluring as a skein of sunbeams, and soft. Others are dull and cold as a paste jewel.

The difference depends on the methods used in softening the hair. This simple step was a barrier to exquisite perfection until E. Frederics discovered the Frederics Vita-Tonic Process.

This wonderful process quickly adorns the hair with an alluring softness and lustre that remain undimmed as long as the wave lasts. It will neither harm, stain nor discolor hair of the most delicate texture and shading.

To avoid disappointment and to get the most beautiful permanent, go to the deft-fingered hairdresser using this process. Also see that he uses the Frederics Permanent Waving Machine. Then and only then will you look your loveliest.

To identify the Frederics Vita-Tonic Process look for the name on each wrapper used in softening the hair.

A crêpy throat is a confession

A SMOOTH, unlined throat is one of youth's greatest charms. A crêpy throat is an admission of age, or of shameful neglect.

Dorothy Gray's long experience in treating women's faces showed her how a sluggish circulation lets the muscles weaken so that the tissues sag, while constant dust and exposure rob the skin of its natural, necessary oils.

Dorothy Gray's treatments and preparations for crêpy throat are therefore remarkably successful because they have as their basis the stimulation of circulation into healthy activity, combined with thorough cleansing and lubrication of the skin.

Dorothy Gray's preparations can be obtained, together with a booklet containing full directions for their use, at the leading St. Louis shops.

Lose 20 lbs. as I Did

Why should not men as well as women keep their figures, their health, their vitality? Excess fat blights both alike. And normal conditions are as easy for one sex as the other.

About 30 years ago science discovered a great cause of excess fat. It lies in a gland deficiency which science can supply. Physicians the world over now treat obesity in this modern way.

That method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. Note the results in every circle. Ask your friends about them. Slender figures are many times as common as they were.

Abnormal exercise or diet is neither required nor advised, but moderation helps. Correct [illegible] cause. Simply take [illegible] Marmola tablets [illegible] until weight [illegible] down to normal.

A pamphlet in [illegible] package gives [illegible] formula compl[illegible] Also the reasons [illegible] the many good [illegible] This is done to [illegible] any fear of harm.

Consider that M[illegible] mola has, for 20 [illegible] been winning [illegible] you want. In an [illegible] pleasant way. Do [illegible] you think it time to learn how much [illegible] scientific method means to you an[illegible] yours? The cost is a trifle. You would gladly give many times as much for what a normal figure means. Then learn how easily people get it.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1.00 per box. Any druggist who is out will order from his jobber.

Strange, vivid contrasts in this romantic, uncommon vacation land

...come this summer—sure!

THIS summer's vacation is the time to know for yourself all about Southern California—why poets sing it and artists paint it; why business men and their families return time after time, then permanently reside here—why 10% of each season's visitors settle here for life!

Here you will find all that goes to make a perfect vacation—new sights, new things to do, a complete change, recreation, rest—all in an ideal summer climate.

Here everything is fascinatingly uncommon. All roads lead to adventure, natural beauty, contrasts, surprises! Each day presents a new attraction; each hour offers a novel experience — mountains, beaches, cosmopolitan cities, desert, orange groves, palm-lined canyons, Old Spanish Missions, billion-dollar oil fields, "Symphonies under the Stars" at night in the outdoor "bowl" at Hollywood, the heart of movie-land.

Make plans weeks and months ahead for any one day. It seldom rains here in summer. But nights are cool and refreshing and you need light wraps.

Los Angeles is not only the metropolis of the Pacific Coast and the new gateway to Hawaii and the Orient, but the Outdoor Sports Capital of the nation—every day in the year! Mile-high mountains, ocean-lake-brook fishing, 65 ever-green golf courses, tennis at every turn, a 271-mile Riviera for every aquatic sport (or just plain loafing on the broad, gently sloping beaches of the blue Pacific). Through the surrounding country spread 5000 miles of paved boulevard roads as well as train service and interurban trolleys leading to every interest point. It is but a few hours to the High Sierra, the desert or to Old Mexico!

Los Angeles County last year raised agricultural products approximating $95,000,000 in market value. It is one of the nation's richest in natural resources.

An added attraction for summer visitors will be the Pacific Southwest Exposition at Long Beach, July 27th to August 13th. It will enable them to visualize the wonders, wealth and progress of this great Southwest Empire.

Your plans to come this summer should be made at once. Get further information from your nearest railroad ticket agent about special low rate round-trip fares, May 15 until Oct. 31.

Before you do anything else fill out and mail the coupon for an authentic 52-page vacation book.

Forty different kinds of steel are used in the New Ford

The new Ford Roadster is an especially alert and capable car. Quick as a flash in traffic and at home in any company because of its beautiful low lines and attractive colors. Like all the new Ford cars, it has a Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield—an important safety feature.

THE new Ford is an unusually strong and sturdy car because of the enduring quality that has been built into every part. Of especial interest and importance to every motorist is the extensive use of fine steel in the new Ford.

The story of Ford steel dates back to 1905, when the Ford Motor Company developed the use of a new alloy which raised the tensile strength of steel from 60,000 to 170,000 pounds per inch.

This was the beginning of the Ford idea of using specific steels for specific parts—an idea which has perhaps its highest expression in the new car.

In the past twenty-three years the Ford Motor Company has developed many new uses for steel and has greatly reduced its cost by purchasing its own ore mines and by designing new machines and finding new ways to produce steel at low cost. The Ford open hearth furnaces have a yearly capacity of 420,000 tons of steel. The quality and uniformity of this steel are held to even closer limits than those specified by the Society of Automotive Engineers and the American Society for Testing Materials.

Today, more than forty different kinds of steel are used in the new Ford—each particular kind being selected and perfected to fit the particular needs of each part.

Seven kinds of steel are used in the gears alone in the new Ford because research and experience have proved that seven kinds of steel mean greater efficiency and reliability than one or two. Two kinds of steel are used in the multiple dry-disc clutch, although it could very easily be made with one. One kind of steel is also used for the ring gear and another for the driving pinion. Though these two parts meet, each does a different kind of work. In common practice, the same kind of steel would be used for each part. But Ford uses different kinds of steel—each steel being specially made for the special work it has to do.

There is no limit to selection—no thought that any certain steel must be made to do for many parts to save expense. The Ford policy has always been to use the best possible material for each part, and then through large production, to give it to the public at low cost.

As important as the steel itself is the Ford method of heat-treating steel by automatic control so that the same piece of steel will have different qualities at different points.

The rear axle shaft in the new Ford is especially strong and reliable for this reason. Being complete in one piece, it is naturally stronger than if the parts were made separately. This same one-piece principle is carried out also in the steering gear sector, which is integral with the steering shaft—in the bolts on the connecting rod which are made in the same piece with the rod itself—and in many other parts of the new Ford car.

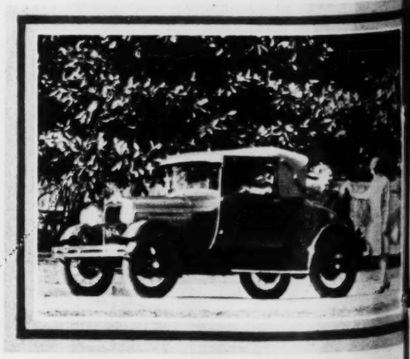
Throughout the new Ford you will find that steel forgings are used instead of malleable castings and steel stampings. They are used everywhere in the chassis except, of course, for the engine castings. More steel forgings are used in the new Ford, in fact, than in almost any other car, regardless of price. They are naturally of greater strength than malleable castings and steel stampings of equal size. The use of steel forgings explains why the new Ford is such a strong and sturdy car, yet comparatively light in weight.

Such high quality of material has a direct bearing on the performance of the new Ford car and is the reason it will give you thousands upon thousands of miles of faithful, uninterrupted service.

When you sit behind the wheel and know the joy of driving the new Ford, you will realize that it is not just a new automobile—not just a new model—but the advanced expression of a wholly new idea in modern, economical transportation.

The Roadster sells for $385; the Phaeton for $395; the Coupe for $495; the Tudor Sedan for $495; and the Sport Coupe, with rumble seat, for $550. (F. O. B. Detroit.)

The new Ford Tudor Sedan is an especially good family car because of its speed, safety, reliability, economy, easy-riding comfort, and the generous room provided for all five passengers.



A new kind of motor car beauty is revealed in this new Ford Sport Coupe. Distinguished by the quiet simplicity of its lines and rich appointments. Body is steel. Furnished in a choice of two-tone color harmonies.
